Four local vessels flank the Nonsuch II as she gracefully passes under the Quinte Skyway bridge at Deseronto at 6 p.m. last night. The Nonsuch II is a replica of the first ship built by the Hudson's Bay Company which traversed Canadian waters in the 17th Century. The replica was constructed to tour Canada marking the 300th anniversary of the founding of the company.

The Master Touch

Capt. Adrian Small takes Nonsuch's tiller himself as she leaves and enters harbor on her voyage from Montreal to Toronto. As the ship left Picton harbor Friday morning on a light wind he steered his vessel and called out the commands that sent the crew to set sails for the trip up the Bay of Quinte to Belleville.

Kierans Upset

Shutdown Possible

Both Sides Rapped

OTTAWA (CP) — Friday was "the worst day so far" in the postal dispute with close to 12,000 men off the job, Postmaster-General Eric Kierans said in a statement critical of both union and treasury board negotiators.

"I don't know how much longer we can go on like this," Mr. Kierans told a news conference.

"We're getting very close to the point where I may have to propose a complete shutdown to the cabinet."

He said the post office management is anxious for a settlement and there is evidence that positions are beginning to feel the same way.

The trouble, he said, is at the bargaining table and he spared neither side from blame. The union system of rotating strikes began June 3 and more recently the post office has been locking up post offices on grounds they are made idle by the rotating shutdowns.

Mr. Kierans did not, however, suggest that Treasury Board

Missile Curb Offered

NEW YORK (AP) — The Times says the United States has offered the Soviet Union a package accord that would curb the size of missile systems, without barring major improvements in them.

The Times says Washington sources had disclosed the following key elements of the proposal:

—A numerical limit on strategic launching systems, with each side allowed to choose its own mix of weapons under a quota that could reduce American forces below present levels.

—A limit within that quota on the permissible number of giant Soviet SS-9 missiles, or anything comparable that might be developed by either side.

—A limit on anti-missile defence systems to less than 100 launchers, either by banning such systems or restricting them to a ring of sites around Moscow and Washington.

Up! Look Way Up... as the Band Played On

About 200 onlookers enthusiastically met the Nonsuch II as it docked at Belleville last night. Together with the RCSCC Quinte band, the 17th Century Hudson's Bay Company replica was greeted by the running lights, flood lamps and horns of dozens of local boating enthusiasts.

Ouch! No It's Not the Bluenose

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
(Staff Reporter)

They didn't sign aboard to become cute kids, but that's the way it has turned out for the crew of Hudson's Bay Company's Nonsuch.

A constant barrage of questions greets them at the ports where they berth along the St. Lawrence Seaway and Lake Ontario.

They must answer them, as part of the Hudson's Bay Company's publicity campaign — and listening to the comments is almost as bad.

"I know what she is, she's the Bluenose." "No she isn't, she looks just like the Santa Maria."

She isn't and she doesn't, but as all part of a 20th Century sailor's life when he crews a 17th Century vessel.

"No, it's fibre glass".

Considering the amount of hand craftsmanship and historical research that went into Nonsuch's sails, remarks like that wooden hull and flax hurt.

The glorious carvings that decorate every available inch of the ship excite comments too.

But so far her captain has heard only one unfavorable remark about the nude figures of women on her stern posts.

They are part of 17th century maritime superstition — naked women calm the angriest seas.

The question of food seems to intrigue spectators.

A hundred times a day the crew is asked where they eat and what they eat, and curiously, how.

The answer is very well, with meals cooked in the modern galley. It is one of Nonsuch's few concessions to the modern world — that and her hand and diesel engine located midships.

And yes, for any querying DWEC inspectors, she has holding tanks.

"How do you roll up the sails?" is a question the crew hears with little enthusiasm. There is always the possibility the captain will send them aloft to demonstrate.

After a few days of this, the crew is always glad to get under way again. But even on the water they don't escape the queries.

Yachtsmen manoeuvre perilously close to the big vessel while she is under way, shouting up their questions.

"How fast are you going? Where are you going? Why don't you sail?" This with full canvas set) and worst of all: "What's her name?"

And finally, the unkindest cut of all — "Why don't you get a motor?"

Barber Given Post

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Edward Heath today named Anthony Barber, Britain's chief Common Market negotiator, as his new chancellor of the exchequer.

He succeeds Iain Macleod, who died suddenly of a heart attack last Monday night.

Heath will announce the name of Barber's successor as European negotiator early next week along with any other appointments made necessary by the changes.

Barber, 50 this month, has a sharp brain and a flair for organization, and unflagging capacity for hard work.

As Conservative party chairman from September, 1967, he worked closely with Heath in establishing a unified command linking the parliamentary party with Conservative headquarters.

But political observers warn against any interpretation that he will merely carry out what is called a "Heath policy" at the treasury.

It is stressed that the new government's central economic strategy was carefully worked out in opposition by the whole of the Conservative shadow cabinet, and that Barber contributed perhaps as much to that strategy as anybody.

Nonsuch Is A Broad-Beamed Charmer

By LEONY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

ABOARD NONSUCH — She is aptly named Nonsuch, for there is no other such as she for sailing Quinte waters on a warm, lazy summer day.

There is nothing quite like her anywhere else in the world for she is a replica of a 17th century ship that sailed stormier seas to open up the northern route to Canada and establish the Hudson's Bay Company in 1670.

She is a blatant, $175,000 publicity gimmick for the Company; a public relations salute to The Bay's 300th anniversary.

Until you sail on her.

And then she becomes a great lady of the sea, quixotic but lovable, very much a person in her own right.

She has her drawbacks — she is no bay boat, having been built for ocean crossing on the north Atlantic.

She is slow in any but the strongest winds — it took her 12 hours to sail from Picton to Belleville, a distance usually covered in half the time by modern yachts.

According to her master, Adrian Small, she is "heavy bodly," a characteristic she shares with Mayflower II, who was almost twice her size.

Capt. Small, who was second mate aboard Mayflower II on her historic crossing of the Atlantic in 1958, believes this save a characteristic of most 17th-century ships, but from this point in time, no one can be sure.

"Ships vary," he says, in his understated sailor's way.

But despite rumors to the contrary proceeding Nonsuch's arrival here, she is neither clumsy, nor unmanoeuvrable.

Broad and bunky, Nonsuch wallows badly in a heavy sea, her master says, but plowing up the bay yesterday under light winds she was steady and peaceful.

The wheel (used for steering, instead of a tiller such as the Nonsuch has), was a vast improvement for manoeuvrability, Capt. Small said. "It was just coming big...ging" at the time Nonsuch was built, but it wouldn't be put in a ship as small as this."

Although she came across the Atlantic on the deck of a freighter instead of under sail like Mayflower II, Nonsuch, with almost 3,000 miles already logged, has done more sailing than Mayflower II, and her master would have more quarrel about taking her across the Atlantic.

But she would require about 40 days for the voyage.

The reason, says her crew, is the men who man her.

"In the old days, sailors know nothing else — it was their whole life," one said. "But here fast on the sails and know how to get the most from her canvas."

Eight men are crewing the vessel on her voyages from Lorel, Quebec to the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

Three — the ship's master, the first mate, Phillip Rose-Taylor and Jan Pearce, ship's carpenter, come with her from England. The rest are Canadians, students for the most part, picked from a summer sailing through the 17th century.

None, save the captain, has ever sailed a ship with sails before, Nonsuch's crew of 20 such's, although a few had handled square sails before.

The men learn to handle the maze of lines and sheets on deck after they signed on, and are still learning, Capt. Small says.

Nonsuch's navigator, who is tired after a hard day's sailing, he admits, does he have the navigational equipment which few leads to what sail.

The crew's bunks are short, narrow and hard, built into the galley aft, where the crew also eats its meals.

All the labor on watch for the night, who sleep aboard (half are put up in hotels along the way), say they have no trouble sleeping.

They are too tired after they berth to worry about modern amenities.

A day under sail is a busy one aboard Nonsuch.

Casting off is a lively procedure, with Capt. Small at the tiller, the mate assisting with commands on the sailing sail, most of the crew scrambling up the rigging to unfurl the heavy flaxen canvas, and one sailor at the bow taking soundings.

"By the mark, three," he calls out, as he swings the weighted line to determine if Nonsuch has enough water, under her 9½-foot keel to stay afloat. "And a half three, and a quarter three."

The master, at the tiller, echoes his words to indicate he has heard and understands and commands quickly to the mate: "Phillip, the mains'l braces."

"Main'l braces," calls out the mate, and a chorus of "Aye, sir," follows as the crew moves to the lines and some scramble more like monkeys then men, up the rigging toward the yards.

After all sails are set on a fair southeasterly wind out of Picton harbor, the time must be called to keep them from underfoot on deck, and as Nonsuch falls off on another tack, the whole cumbersome sail-saling procedure must be gone through again.

Soundings are taken leaving and entering harbor and in tricky passages such as Telegraph Narrows in the Belleville Reach. Standard depth this year in Quinte harbors appears to be three fathoms — 18 feet.

Once under sail, the tiller is taken for one hour and twenty minute periods by crew members. The helmsman holds the ship to the course decided upon by captain and pilot.

At Picton, Nonsuch took aboard a pilot, Quinte yachtsman Robert Davis, and four passengers. The master and the pilot paced the aft poop deck, consulting charts and spotting shoreside markers throughout the voyage.

In the captain's cabin aft, the old traditions prevail.

Three bunks are built in along the sides for ship's officers, and the table is covered with white linen for meals.

Meals are served by the cabin-boy, in this case Patsy Phipps-Walker, the 15-year old daughter of Kingston's harbormaster, who signed aboard as a volunteer for the trip from Kingston to Belleville.

After the midday meal, comes a brief respite, when the crew reads, or listens to rock music on a transistor radio. The mate takes out his bosun's palm, and adds a few meticulously even stitches to the canvas sea bag he is making.

But on a sailing ship, there is always work to be done. One day the ropes must be tarred, the next day the spots of dripped tar must be scraped from the deck's pine planking.

"The ship looks like a dirty trawler," says the mate, as he heads around scrapers and the ship's waterproof stands ready with a file to sharpen them.

So the crew sets to work, shaving blowing into their eyes on the wind, as yellow pine streaks under the tar spots begin to show a naked face against the greyed planking.

On a diminishing wind, Nonsuch sails under the Quinte Skyway and into Telegraph Narrows, as its cook debates the weighty subject of what is served for supper instead of potatoes.

Potatoes, because they keep well without refrigeration aboard ship, are the mainstay of the sailor's diet, demanded twice daily. But an over-zealous passenger has used up all the potatoes for the noon-day bash, and the cook decided on a supper menu of macaroni and cheese, ham and asparagus.

For any housewife in cramped quarters it would have been an impossible meal, with half the crew eating as the other half stood watch through the treacherous Narrows.

The master saw to it that his passengers and pilot were fed, but refused to eat and sat himself until the broad arms of Big Bay opened to welcome him.

"I know, I know. I've been told a thousand times I'd make some man a wonderful wife," warned Bob Hunter, but I never cook when I'm ashore." He tossed the captain's ham in the frying pan.

Like every true sailor, Capt. Small refused to eat ashore until the last whisper of wind had died.

Midway in Telegraph Narrows he conceded to the forces of nature and put up the "iron topsail" — one of the diesel engine airsiddips.

At five knots Nonsuch motored in the gathering dusk toward Belleville, escorted by a fleet of small yachts that put out to meet her.

The soundings began again as the red flashing buoy at Government Dock came into sight and a tired crew began to assemble the lines for landing procedure.

The Sea Cadet's band struck up "Rule Britannia" and a crewman called out to his mates, "Listen, they're playing our song."

But there was a touch of British pride in his voice, and the completion of another passage in the tough old vessel which preserves intact the oceans of the world and opened up North America.

Kierans Getting Upset

President C. M. Drury should change the government's offer to the unions. He says he is responsible for all contract negotiations with government employees. He only plays no role at all in negotiations.

On strike Friday were 19,823 men at 79 offices, postal officials said. The main centres hit included Ottawa, the Montreal area, Vancouver, Winnipeg and Hamilton.

A total of 49 tributary offices were shut down by postal authorities and 1,077 men were sent home without pay.

Negotiations, meanwhile, are not to resume until Monday.

Mr. Kierans's statements about the dispute were later described by a spokesman for the Council of Postal Unions as his/her evidence of a bullying attitude toward employees.

"The result of the government is interested in is blackmail," the spokesman said.

The minister said postal revenues in July will fall short by $10,000,000 of estimated estimates for the month. About one-fifth of the loss will be recovered in the form of pay lost by the men on the one- and two-day strikes, he said.

The fight of the post office, meanwhile, is being taken over to an increasing extent by private mail firms, Mr. McKierans said. He counted 385 competitors, some of whom have gone into business only since the strik began. Toronto had 93 private services, Montreal 55, Vancouver 40, and even Moncton had three.

Mr. Kierans said the proposed transformation of the post office into a crown corporation might eliminate some of the bargaining difficulties. There is no possibility of such a change resolving the present situation, he said.

He also forecast a postal rate increase, following upon the last one in 1968, saying Britain has announced its intention of a further increase and predicting the U.S. will also step up mailing costs.

Over-all Authority For Ports Planned

MONTREAL (CP) — Ottawa will establish a Canadian port authority to provide over-all planning and national policy for the administration and development of the seaports and harbors across Canada, Transport Minister Don Jamieson said Friday.

Mr. Jamieson told a news conference the federal government will phase out the National Harbors Board and decentralize port management.

He said all Canadian ports have different problems and decentralization would enable local authorities to deal with their own problems in each area.

The 35-year-old NHB, which now administers 13 major ports, will be dissolved when legislation implementing the new policy is presented in the Commons this Fall.

Under the arrangement will allow a central council in Ottawa to set-a "rational policy" for Canada's shipping industry.

The NHB will be replaced by a central executive body and an advisory board made up of about 15 representatives from all regions.

"We are moving towards a considerable degree of autonomy under the new policy," Mr. Jamieson said.

He added that new port authorities will be somewhat self-supporting and free of day-to-day intervention by the central authority.

Could the NHB "has done a much better job than they have been given credit for under difficult conditions."

The national port authority will assume responsibilities now under the jurisdiction of the NHB but will expand control to about 50 ports with commercial interests or the potential to develop into trade harbors.

Huntingdon Township Meeting

TWEED (Special) — Township of Huntingdon council meeting was held in the township hall. The minutes of the last regular and the adjourned meeting were read and adopted.

Jose and Rudy Shettel requested the council to open the road across concessions 3 and 4 between lots 8 and 7.

A letter was received from all inspector from the department branch requesting the council to repair the tumbledown bridge on Concession 1 lot 8 and concession 8 K. A. Holland and George Wood were appointed as fence viewers.

The council gave consent, at this time, to David Shotty under the township ditches and bylaw to have part of Lot 3, Concession 2 divided.

The Hungry Hood Superintendent (Kenneth H. Thompson) has received his Certificate of the successful completion of courses held in the years 1958, 1959 and 1960 on road construction and maintenance at the T. J. Mahoney Road School held each year at Guelph Agricultural College.

The next meet for the August meeting at 8 p.m. August 3.

Contract Awarded For Road Work

Cruickshank Construction Ltd., of Merrisburg, Ont. has been awarded the contract for reconstruction of Hastings county road No. 5 (Musket Lane) running from Foxboro to Highway 2 near Shannonville.

The Cruickshank bid for $450,780.33 was the lowest of four tenders received. Other bids were from H. J. McFarland Construction at $453,-863.50 and E. and E. Seegmiller Ltd. at $486,540.70.

Clarke T. Rollins, MPP for Hastings has advised that the Ontario Department of Highways will grant approval to the Cruickshank contract.

The 4.81-mile contract is another in a series of development road projects for which construction costs are paid entirely by the province. The county has acquired the additional right-of-way needed and will construct fences under the normal 50 per cent subsidy arrangement.

Work will commence on the project in a few weeks with completion not expected until late 1971.

Former OPP Officer Dead

TWEED (Special) — A former provincial police officer at Madoc, Constable Milo Chapman, 43, of Brantford, has died in that city.

A native of the Ottawa Valley, Constable Chapman was stationed at Kingston for several years and was later transferred to Madoc. He was transferred to Brantford about six years ago.

Chief Resigns

The village of Tweed is advertising for a new police chief following the resignation early last week of Chief Robert Boyer.

Chief Roy submitted his resignation to council Tuesday night following a minor two-car collision in Selby.

Mr. Roy was charged with impaired driving and at a court appearance Thursd s.y. was remanded for plea until August 13.

At the court appearance Mr. Roy said he would make application for legal aid.

Ontario Provincial Police from Madoc are temporarily policing the village but Tweed Reeve Barbara Hall said council was advertising for a new police chief.

The previous police of a cceman force is expected to be continued but Reeve Allen said the pay schedule would be revamped.

Rousing Welcome For Nonsuch II

Dozens of small craft dotted around Nonsuch II as she approached the Belleville dock at 9.30 last night.

The 53-foot Hudson's Bay Company ketch left Picton yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, scheduled to arrive in Belleville at 4 p.m. to be met by Mayor J. Russell Scott, city officials, and members of the Nonsuch committee.

However, the Nonsuch, being a seagoing vessel, does not reach maximum speed under sail unless she is on the open water. Because of this factor, her top speed under sail yesterday was two knots, or approximately four miles per hour.

At 6 p.m. the Nonsuch ghosted under the Quinte Skyway Bridge at Deseronto and Captain Adrian Small started the six cylinder diesel auxiliary motor which increased her speed to five mph.

As the sky darkened, the lights of the escorting vessels came on, adding a pixie-like quality to the proceedings as the string of craft stretched across the bay.

A crowd of more than 200 eager onlookers packed the Belleville dock to welcome the 17th century replica which arrived in Canada in early spring.

Shortly before docking, the Nonsuch was given a special salute by the Ameliasburg Fire Department. Their two-hose salute shot dual streams of arcing water 50 feet into the air.

Together with blinking red, green, blue and yellow lights and the occasional spot lamp, the band of RCSCC Quinte added the final touch to a traditional welcoming committee.

Representing the city in welcoming the Nonsuch were Aldermen Art Keegan, Gerald Joyce and Don Soulier, and Lorne Williams, director of city recreation. Joe Cox, vice-committee and chairman of the Nonsuch committee, and Inspector Ralph Blatchford of the OPP detachment.

Captain Adrian Small scampered his gratification at the reception and tendered his regrets that he had misunderstood the time of the greeting and had been unable to meet the Mayor, who had departed for Montreal earlier in the evening.

As the crowd eagerly viewed the vessel, the eight crew members busily scaled the shrouds to furl the flaxen sails and the extra touch of authenticity to the event.

The Nonsuch will remain at the dock for the week-end where it can be viewed by the general public between 9 and 5 p.m. each day.

Trenton PUC's 'Final Offer' Rejected by 29-member Union

TRENTON (Staff) — Representatives of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission called a press conference Friday afternoon to outline the commission's position in contract negotiations with local 2065 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

PUC manager Jim Fage and office manager Doug Manlow stressed that no settlement has been reached yet.

They said the PUC had made its "final offer" Thursday but that union representatives had rejected it.

The 29-member union has voted to take strike action if necessary and can legally walk off the job Friday, July 31.

Wages are the main issue in the contract dispute which has resulted in the filing of a "no-board report" by a department of labor conciliator.

Union members have accepted the PUC's offer of a 40 cent hourly increase in the initial year for outside workers with the exception of two meter readers who will get a 33 cent hourly boost.

However, the union has turned down the PUC's bid of an eight per cent across the-board increase in the final year of the two-year contract. This would be an average increase of 25 cents in the second year.

The union is demanding 40 cents an hour in both years for outside workers and 35 cents an hour in both years for inside employees, the PUC negotiators said.

They added that the commission's offer of 12.5 per cent in the first year for inside workers was close to the union demand of 35 cents for that year.

Both parties have reached agreement on a number of issues including a retroprescription policy, improved sick leave benefits, increased vacation time, overtime rates and shift differentials.

Jim Fage said that "management has enough people (six men and two women) to try to do the essential tasks in the event of a strike."

"If there is no major catastrophe we can keep things going," added Mr. Manlow.

The PUC officials noted that no new construction would take place in the event of a strike.

They also said that all holidays — including those of management personnel — will be postponed as of July 31 and rescheduled at a later date.

The 29-member local whose contract with the PUC terminated April 1, 1970, can strike on or any time after July 31 without giving advance notice.

Two Youths Charged

Two Belleville area youths have been charged with breaking and entering following a Belleville city police arrest last night.

Charged are David Terrence Young, 20, of no fixed address, and James Zebedee, 19, of RR5, Trenton.

A police spokesman said this morning that two youths were found inside Kimmerly Beef Warehouse on College Street last night at 10.40.

Police arrived at the scene when they received a call from a neighbor that strange noises could be heard from the building.

Entry was gained by breaking a window and opening a door. Both youths are in custody.

Murder Suspect Is Discharged

George Albert Ibey, 45, of 26 Ford Street, Trenton was discharged yesterday afternoon during a preliminary hearing in which he faced a charge o f non-capital murder.

Mr. Ibey was charged late in May after he was arrested by members of the Provincial Police Department.

He was arrested following investigation by police when a Trenton woman, Doris Elizabeth Wood, 45, of 26 Ford Street, was found dead at the rear of her residence.

Area Parks Are Full

TWEED (Special) — Overcast skies and warm weather are forecast for the weekend but the fine weather can't make much difference to camper registration at Quinte area provincial parks.

The report from Tweed this morning that all provincial parks in the area — Bon Echo, Black Lake and Outlet — are filled to overflowing.

Colborne Boy Drowning Victim

BRIGHTON (Special) — Little Lake west of here claimed the life of an RR3 Colborne youth during the noon hour yesterday.

Randy Kevin Kelly, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kelly drowned swimming about 75 feet from a dock to a raft anchored in the water.

The youth, not considered a strong swimmer, went down before he could make the distance, police said.

A witness at the scene reported the boy was under the water 10 minutes before rescuers located his body and brought it to the surface.

Rushed by ambulance to Trenton Memorial Hospital all efforts to revive the youth failed.

The accident was investigated by the Brighton Detachment of the OPP.

'Family' Group Hit of Festival

TORONTO (CP) — Conspiracy, a three-member group from Ontario's Perth County, outdistanced all other performers at the opening day of the annual Mariposa Folk Festival Friday in showmanship, enthusiasm and talent.

While there were not many challengers in the first two categories, talent, however, was an ever-present commodity as the three-day festival got under way on Toronto's Centre Island.

In both its daytime presentation and its appearance at the evening concert, the Conspiracy group was given standing ovations by audiences numbering in the hundreds in the afternoon and more than 5,000 at night.

The vocal and instrumental group, formed in the last year, was supported in its presentations by about 30 members of the group's "family."

The "family," all residents of Perth County who live in semi-communal fashion on a half-dozen farms near Stratford, are all involved in the operation of Stratford's Black Swan Coffee House.

At Mariposa Friday, while the Conspiracy sang their own compositions, female members of the "family," in peasant-length styles ranging from Grecian to gypsy, went among the audience handing out fruit, vegetables, crackers, cheese and cookies brought from their farms.

"What we want to try and do is involve people," says one member of the Conspiracy. "Our music does it on one level. The way we present it reaches people on other levels, and by letting people share the food we have grown we can speak to them in yet another way."

Banners were flown from the stages the group played on, burning incense and flowers were given to members of the audience, lit sparklers were waved in procession down the aisles—all theatrical gimmicks that didn't appear gimmicky.

Their concert act was the only one to come off as a production, with dramatic use of lighting and a sense of staging.

Nor was the showmanship needed as glue for weak material. The group's songs—whether knocking the Stratford Shakespearean Festival, humorously describing police raids on "grass" (marijuana) growers or a dramatic and musical collage philosophizing on truth and fantasy—had musical appeal.

The members of the group are Cedric Smith of Kitchener, a former actor at the Stratford Festival, Richard Keelan of Detroit, who has many years of experience in the straight musical field of entertainment, and instrumental accompanist Michael Butler of Stratford.

The Conspiracy wasn't the only act to get a standing ovation at the evening concert.

Similar audience response came after performances by Elizabeth Cotton, a 77-year-old guitar player and singer best known for her composition of Freight Train, Odetta, singer of blues, ballads and soul.

There was also generous applause for Michael Cooney, singer and instrumentalist making his third consecutive Mariposa appearance; the Pennywhistlers, six girls from New York specializing in Eastern European folk material; and Rosalie Sorrels, a singer in the country and western folk vein from Boise, Idaho.

Three French-Canadian acts were also featured. The Ensemble Folklorique Kebec presented folk dances; Raoul Roy of Quebec City sang French and English songs; and Montreal-as folklorist at Laval University; and Bruce Murdock of Montreal made his Mariposa debut with song stylings somewhat reminiscent of Bob Dylan.

PRIME MINISTER OF ONTARIO

Your most useful servant can cripple or kill you.

Tractors, combines, balers, corn pickers and other machines have made farmers much more efficient.

But the increasing use of machinery has been paralleled by a frightening increase in farm accidents.

- More Canadians are killed in farming than in any other single industry.
- The accident rate on farms is 20% above the national average.
- Accidental deaths involving farm machines have doubled over the last 10 years.
- 20% of all persons killed in farm accidents are under the age of 10.

But machines do not cause accidents. Farmers do.

- Less than 5% of farm accidents are caused by mechanical failure.
- More than 93% are caused by carelessness.

A thoughtless act, refusal to use safety features like tractor roll bars and power take-off shields, and allowing children to operate, ride on or play near machinery are among the principal causes of farm accidents.

July 25th to 31st is Farm Safety Week and your Workmen's Compensation Board urges you to farm safely this week and every week.

The Democratic Process

A government does well to heed the desires of the people it represents. That is democracy—recognized. A group of parents objected to the transfer of their children from Pinecrest school, Bloomfield, to North Marysburg Centennial even though the school board presented evidence of possible savings in transportation costs and a shorter bus route. All but two families had signed a petition protesting the plan to transfer 40 students and the board, faced with such a show of unanimity, backed down.

The students should be the better for remaining on familiar ground, for we have evidence enough in this area of the turmoil caused by arbitrary shuffling around of students. Young people need a base, one to recall later in life as the place where they received their education. Above all they need security, stability. The less chasing around they do during the school day the better chance they will have to absorb some learning.

United Appeal

If you need something done ask a busy person to do it. Alderman Ben Corke, chairman of Belleville's United Appeal campaign is an example of this premise.

Asked if he would take over the position from Jack Bennet, who will be unavailable at the campaign's height in September, Mr. Corke accepted.

The city has many public spirited citizens and Mr. Corke's taking on of this new task, on top of his other responsibilities, is the kind of thing we expect of them.

The city alderman's interest in the fund raising campaign gains impetus from the fact that he is already council's appointee to the board of directors of United Community Services and a member of the hospital board of governors.

In seeking additional funds this year for the UCS member agencies, Mr. Corke is giving a lead by increasing his own contribution substantially.

Not only is continuity of leadership being preserved then, but there is this encouraging prospect of the various UCS agencies benefiting to a greated extent than ever before.

Credit Buying

Six per cent seems to be the "in" figure in today's economics — the government's wage increase guideline for example is just that, and now we have word from Ottawa that consumer credit outstanding at the end of May this year totalled more than $8,876,000,000, an increase of 6.6 per cent from a year earlier. This is as near 39 million as makes no matter, and further proof of former Bank of Canada governor James Coyne's classic observation of a decade ago: "Canadians are living grandly beyond their means."

White Paper Under Review

Tax Experts Bluff Called by Not-so-Dumb Taxpayers

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Perhaps Prime Minister Trudeau's participatory democracy works, or maybe it is just that the taxpayers are getting smarter, and definitely more concerned.

Whatever it is, they are beginning to get through to the federal decision - makers.

Those who pay the bulk of the taxes — the big middle class, the middle $7,500 to $15,000 income bracket — seem to be smartening up because they are beginning to show increasing evidence of understanding what is going on with government collecting and spending of those taxes.

Listening very carefully in the hushed air of the Summer quiet here on Parliament Hill, you hear a whispering playback of growing awareness in the Cabinet that the taxpayers have had enough.

The Prime Minister and his men have been working on the long-promised White Paper on Welfare.

In the works is some form of built-in minimum income, pension and general welfare increases costing something approaching $2 billion — repeat billion — more than the current bill already topping a substantial $3 billion.

While Health and Welfare Minister John Munro $5 billion may be not a nickel too much, there are other, and stronger voices in the Cabinet warning that the taxpayers will not stand still for it.

And among those voices, murmur the whisperers carrying tales out of Cabinet, is the Prime Minister's.

And that would seem to take care of it.

There likely will be nothing approaching that proposed $3 billion increase.

But the bill will go up — in the name of social justice — and rightly, to carry the cost of desperately needed increases in pensions.

The grossly over-taxed middle income group already was in prospect of having it socked to them — and still is — with the heavier tax load in prospect with the White Paper on Taxation, and the coming compulsion for everyone to pay, need it or not, unemployment insurance.

It has been the middle income backlash against the White Paper on Taxation that opened a lot of Ottawa eyes — and minds — to the new fact of political life that people were a lot smarter than some of the public class and almost all of the senior bureaucracy thought they were.

When Finance Minister Benson's resident intellectuals initially produced his White Paper, it was assumed that the document was simply too complicated for the taxpayers to even begin to understand.

The Finance Minister's departmental academics — many of them committed to the proposition that income is earned only to be "redistributed," as their phrase goes for sharing the rewards of other people's work — contend that only such "experts" as themselves were qualified to discuss the White Paper.

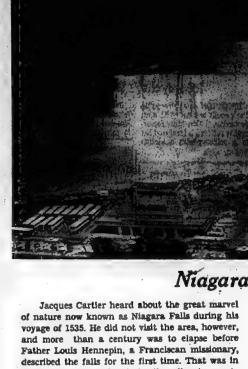
From long conviction in their own infallibility they argued that only "specialists" who studied the White Paper in depth from an established working background in taxation could have anything meaningful to say.

Like so many senior civil servants, the ruling allies of taxpayers and governments — and making it stick — was an established way of working life.

So seldom have the deputies, the mandarins, been doubted, much less seriously questioned, as theirs has been the wisdom almost automatically accepted by a succession of governments since the days of Mackenzie King. After all, governments come and go, but the bureaucracy is self-perpetuating.

And for a time that was the way it was with the White Paper. Substantively it was accepted by business groups and individual taxpayers that they should say nothing without being led by the hand through the jungle of the White Paper by tax experts in consultation with lawyers and accountants.

Then suddenly it dawned on people that it was not necessary to be professionally knowledgeable in all the fine print of the White Paper to be able to ask good, searching questions and challenge some of the basic thinking of Benson's brain-stormers in the White Paper.



And then did the flak go up and the fallout come down!

On proposals for capital gains taxes on private homes, taxes at big corporations, on small business, on tax evaluation of anything and everything in the home.

It turned out, to the horror of the resident socialists around Benson that the paying public was not so dumb, even if a bit numb, that it did not instinctively sense that the White Paper was a working paper on how to over-tax the over-taxed.

So now the backoff is quietly under-way, not because the Government, encouraged by the bureaucrats, still does not simply love over-spending, but because it knows that over-taxing can lose it the next election.

And it knows, because its CBC and some of the Cabinet Ministers, have got it straight from the taxpayers.

Niagara's Spell

Jacques Cartier heard about the great marvel of nature now known as Niagara Falls during his voyage of 1535. He did not visit the area, however, and more than a century was to elapse before Father Louis Hennepin, a Franciscan missionary, described the falls for the first time. That was in 1678. As the only break in the all-water route between the St. Lawrence and the Upper Great Lakes the area around the falls was of great strategic value in colonial times. From the fortifications of those militant times the area has evolved today as one of the prime tourist attractions of the world. Back in 1859 and again in 1860 (on the occasion of the visit of Edward VII, then Prince of Wales), French acrobat Charles Blondin performed on a tightrope across the Niagara gorge. The fiery waters have also been a magnet for other adventurers as well as the suicidal. Mostly though, people go there just to gaze in wonderment at the sight of the tumbling waters. A decade ago young Roger Woodward was swept accidentally over the falls, but he lived to tell the tale. Staff reporter Ian Robertson took this picture from the Seagram Tower.

Support for Nixon and Agnew

Bruce West in
The Globe and Mail

Although I have long been a fan of good old Chet Huntley, who will soon be retiring as one of NBCs top newscasters, I wish he hadn't taken the parting swing at President Richard Nixon and Vice-President Spiro Agnew, tyrorted a few days ago. He always struck me as being more objective and fair than a definite air of sincerity and common sense about him. And surely he must realize that the constant and carping criticism which is being levelled these days at top executives of the United States by the communications media is doing more harm than good. Personally, I have never been a great admirer of Richard Nixon, ever since the days when he served as Vice-President under Ike Eisenhower. . . Yet, although Mr. Nixon's oratory doesn't quicken my pulse . . . it seems to me that he is a fairly good job for his country considering the hornets which confronted him when he took office. He impresses one as being a stubborn and determined man, which may not be such a shortcoming when it is considered that there are various kind and energetic factions in the United States today who would have their President sweeping back and forth like a sapling in a gale if they had their way.

As for Spiro Agnew, I for one think that a lot of what he says makes good sense. It may be a little blunt and it may infuriate some factions, but I think that much of what Mr. Agnew says contributes to two-way discussion. He hits back at his critics, which he has every right to do.

It is interesting to note that the ones who howl the most about Mr. Agnew's statements are the very ones who whine the most about free speeches when they were restrained from preaching such things as armed revolution — even when such restraints are often only verbal.

I don't agree with everything Mr. Agnew has to say, but I am getting rather tired of an increasingly one-sided discussion. I'd like to hear occasionally from those who have a little faith in their country and their system. That's the democratic way, and the gutsy Mr. Agnew seems to be doing a very good job of helping to balance the argument.

Opportunities for Improvement And Not Handouts Are What Canada's 4 Million Poor Need

Quebec Le Soleil: According to Senator David Croll, chairman of the Senate committee on poverty, the social welfare system in Canada should be abandoned. And why not? . . .

There are more than 4,000,000 poor in Canada. . . . As long as we treat them as no-goods, they will continue to be an unsupportable - reality which costs the taxpayer $600 per capita each year. . . .

Our legislators concern themselves more with the causes of the needs of the individuals and with the methods which must be put into effect to help those who can find a place on the labor market and earn a salary for their work. . . .

To contend ourselves with subsidizing the poor is to subsidize poverty. . . . We must inject into the welfare system a new dimension which will permit it to furnish its "clients" with better opportunities to raise their level of learning and training, by using special efforts to upgrade their level of competence, reduce the toll of premature school-leaving, permit families to increase their capacity to improve their income and, in particular, to prepare their children to do more in the course of their lives.

Secretary of State And the Monarchy

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

Left-handed cracks at the Canadian monarchy seem to be a habit with Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier. It is a pity, because he is in many ways an intelligent and articulate choice for his office as a minister of the Crown.

He began to wonder if he was deeply affected when he was an impressionable young man by some fairly tale about a wicked king.

In a nation-wide television broadcast Mr. Pelletier undertook to predict that the monarchy will be abolished in Canada by "the force of things". If that means anything at all, it means that the symbol of unity to whom he has sworn allegiance should not have his allegiance.

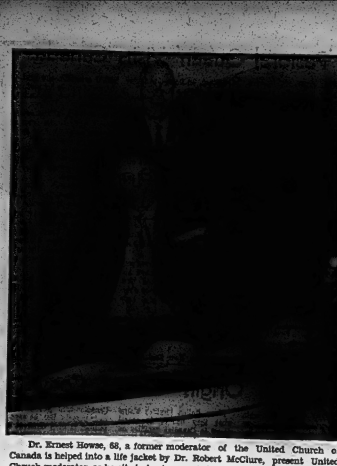
On the same broadcast, on another topic, Mr. Pelletier invited a question by saying, "I don't make myself out to be infallible." The field in question was bilingualism in the public service, a matter on which the secretary of state might naturally be expected to have ideas and make decisions.

He makes himself sound like a carpenter who doesn't want to build things but does enjoy knocking them down.

Ravages of Strip Mining

Regina Leader-Post

Strip mining — the process of extracting coal from the ground by the use of surface machines — has left many parts of the eastern and midwestern areas of the United States with unsightly and useless scars on the landscapes. Efforts in the past to cover the scars with vegetation, particularly trees, were not too successful because of the poor soil and the costs of bringing in good soil from a covering.



In the past few months, experiments conducted by a team of researchers from Pennsylvania State University have produced results that may solve the problem and provide solutions to another vexing one that involves pollution of rivers and lakes in adjacent areas.

In the experiments, beds made from the debris left by strip mining were treated with sprays of the waste water and sludge produced by ordinary sewage treatment plants. Grass was seeded and trees planted with remarkable results. The other beds which were not sprayed, there was little or no growth.

The use of sewage sludge as a fertilizer is not a new departure but the experiment on the scars of strip mining is something that has never been tried before. There is strip mining in the southeast part of this province and it will occur on a large scale when Ontario Hydro starts to supply great quantities of coal to Japan.

Dr. Ernest Howse, 68, a former moderator of the United Church of Canada is helped into a life jacket by Dr. Robert McClure, present United Church moderator, as he sits in boat presented to him upon his retirement. Dr. Howse's 40 years in the ministry were by no means dull, taking him from the outposts of Newfoundland to the mansions of Beverly Hills along with labels such as "maverick" in theology and "commie" during the war.

Canada's Controversial Churchman Is Retiring

TORONTO (CP) — One of Canada's most controversial churchmen will retire from the ministry Aug. 31, but his retirement will not mean the end of his activities in religious circles.

Dr. Ernest Howse's 40 years in the ministry took him from Newfoundland outports to the mansions of Beverly Hills movie stars and to the highest office in Canada's largest Protestant community.

His outspoken views on religious and social issues prompted people to label him a "maverick" in theology and a "Commie" during the war.

Dr. Howse, 68, was born in Twillingate, Nfld. At the age of 17 he was selected to preach in the outports of the island.

Later he began a brilliant scholastic career which took him to post-graduate studies at New York's Union Theological Seminary and the University of Edinburgh where he received his PhD in history.

On his return to Canada, he was posted to an isolated mission on the prairie. Each Sunday he travelled 35 miles on horseback to church.

A year later, while visiting his wife's parents in California, he accepted a position with Beverly Hills Presbyterian Church.

That was during the Depression years, and Dr. Howse recalls the local newspaper advertising gold bathroom fixtures at $125 per faucet.

When their first child was born, the Howses decided Beverly Hills was no place to bring up a family, so they moved to Winnipeg.

Dr. Howse stayed 13 years at Westminster United Church there. Through the war years he also served on the National Committee of Refugees.

He advocated freeing jailed Communists to fight the Nazis after Hitler turned on the Soviet Union in 1941, and for this he was labelled a "Commie."

In 1948 he became minister of Bloor Street United Church in Toronto. Under his influence the church established a day nursery to serve the area's working mothers, provided recreation for elderly, idle men and women and set up a student lunch room in the basement.

In 1956 he was elected moderator of the United Church of Canada.

Shortly after his election Dr. Howse shocked fundamentalists by questioning whether Christ rose physically from the dead. For this he was branded a "maverick" and Rev. Ken Opperman demanded his resignation as moderator, because he is not a Christian.

Dr. Howse has also been in the forefront of social reform for many years. Eleven years ago he lashed out at Canada's legislation on birth control measures, stating that man's only hope of survival was through population control. And six years ago he branded Canada's divorce laws "a scandal to a civilized community."

Now that Dr. Howse is retiring, he will take up another religious cause that has interested him through the years.

He has been a member of the World Council of Churches, and in 1964 he attended the first Moslem-Christian convocation in Lebanon. In 1955 he was elected co-president of the continuing committee on Moslem-Christian co-operation.

This fall he will attend a conference, to be held in Japan, which will include Buddhists, Hindus, Roman Catholics, Moslems and representatives from all the major religions.

Dr. Howse also plans to do more writing. He has written more than 400 syndicated articles on religious matters and literary subjects for Canadian newspapers. His books include an historical background of the Bible, called The Lively Oracles; Spiritual Values in Shakespeare; an English social history, Saints in Society; Prophetic Heritage, and The Law and the Prophets.

Commenting on his future, Dr. Howse said, "the one thing I don't want is another nine-to-five job."

Anglicans Preparing Monastery

DUNCAN, B.C. (CP) — Three men are preparing a monastery near this Vancouver Island community which they hope will be an oasis of "physical rest and spiritual exercise."

The three, members of the Anglican faith and monks of the Community of Christian Brothers, are known religiously as Brother Francis, Brother David and Brother Michael.

So far the small community has just completed the first building which will house their living quarters and the monastery's dining room.

Already in the planning stage is another building which will include living quarters for men who desire a retreat from daily life, and a chapel.

"Men will be able to come here for physical rest and spiritual exercise," Brother Francis said. "Through silence, meditation and thought they may again get in contact with themselves and with God."

Brother Michael, 19, originally from West Vancouver, B.C. and for the last eight years a resident of Duncan, joined the community a year ago after studies at the University of Victoria.

Brother David came from the United States about three years ago to establish communities of brothers across Canada, but later decided to remain in this area.

"Each community is an autonomous unit with its own rules and regulations, and without dogmatic pressures people will be able to spend peaceful hours in congenial companionship," he said.

Brother Francis, 29, joined the community 10 years ago in San Francisco. He now holds degrees in theology and arts.

The three brothers are pledged to celibacy and unity. To keep their independence they make money by working out and pooling their wages.

Furniture of Past Century Was Larger

Although not exactly a Victorian invention, color printing reached a standard of excellence at the beginning of Queen Victoria's reign which hasn't been surpassed.

George Baxter, who was born in 1804 in Lewes, England, was the man who developed prints to this standard. His first color work was printed in 1829.

Almost, all color prints at this time were first done in black and white then colored by hand. After some experimentation, Baxter decided he could develop a process for color printing using metal and wood blocks.

In 1836 he was granted a patent and entered into an agreement with publishers Chapman and Hall to print "The Pictorial Album" containing 11 pictures copied from the works of old masters. Baxter, a perfectionist, kept adding details and delaying publication until Chapman and Hall finally broke with him.

Next, he worked with the London Missionary Society and with them began to issue prints intended specifically to be hung as pictures. Two of these were Queen Victoria's coronation and the opening of her first parliament. These were done with her co-operation and approval.

Baxter's simplest color prints required at least 10 blocks, one for each color. Some required as many as 30 blocks which was very expensive. London Missionary Society came to a break with Baxter, partly because of expense. In 1845 Baxter simplified his methods and began illustrating pocket books.

In 1850 his patent ran out and was extended for him by the Privy Council as "a very useful thing for the public." He began to grant licences for his process and to contest these licences. His prints were stamped with a seal containing his name, Lefilond and Co., Bradshaw and Blacklock, J. M. Kronheim, Dickes, Mansell and Walters were some of the publishers of Baxter prints.

In 1853 he printed more than 300,000 copies of a picture of Jenny Lind, and over a million copies of other pictures.

Continued disagreements with his business partners led to a drop in sales of his prints. By 1860 he was out of business and his assets were taken over by Lefilond and Co. who continued to print his pictures in their name.

Baxter prints became collector's items in the Victorian era. By 1910 large pictures of Queen Victoria's coronation prints were valued at $50 to $100.

Baxter prints do not command high prices in Canada any longer. Small "sewing case" prints, which were meant to be cut and stuck on needle cases, sell for about $20. Larger framed pictures sell for about the same price as $100, although slowly. Queen Victoria's Coronation is not salable at any price.

NEWSPAPER READING

"The personal column is "a parade ground for the dramatic, the provocative, the bizarre, the comic, the romantic, the mysterious . . . Its colorful contents remain unspoiled by time." — Irving Wallace.

* * *

Do you have a favorite part of the newspaper? Some Belleville readers say the comics, the sports before tackling the news of the day. Others say the news first then the ladies' Page before the comics and sports. But nearly all admit they have browsing over the Classified Ads as something saved for the last. After the rush and tear, the rustle and wear, this is the part enjoyed most for pure relaxation.

We are told in England, one section fascinates readers of all the advertisements. That is the personal column, commonly referred to as the "Agony Column". An English institu-

Fashions Have Three Categories

PARIS (AP) — Courreges brought couture prices down from the stars as he presented three different lines at his fall and winter collection today.

"This collection includes three price brackets," Courreges told the audience at the opening. "The first, which I call hyperbole, starts at $20.

"It's for a girl with a limited budget. The second group, couture future, is priced under $200. The third group is haute couture."

He named no price for the haute couture, but a lighted panel registered a long row of zeroes.

Courreges avoided the extremes this year and about 75 per cent of his collection is easy to wear. He had promised that this season's output would be a transition, meant to "reassure women after a harrowing fashion experience of the past year" when hemlines were radically lowered.

Traffic stoppers derived effect from striking fabric or color contrasts.

Pointed hoods and capes were shown for day and evening.

White is all the rage for summer nights, topboots and some gloves. When they were not wearing boots his models wore flat-heeled sandals with open shanks and a round shiny "bone toe" held on with ankle straps.

The girls wore loose soft short hair, side parted, the right side held back with a large white bolton. Courreges has killed off his colored nylon wigs. All girls wore a strip of fabric for a dog collar, red or white for daytime, color or white for evening.

New Oriental Look

This year's Expo at Osaka, Japan, has brought to Canada some new concepts of Oriental fashion. This version of the Hapi coat named "Osaka" interpreted in soft fleece fabric named "Kayonara" is simply and comfortably cut on traditional lines, in ankle length with slit to the knee style. Queen's Dressmaker Takes Matronly Look Out of Midi

LONDON (AP) — Hardy Amies, the Queen's dressmaker, took the matronly look out of the midi in his autumn - winter preview.

The new length is definitely in London's high fashion houses, although the mini is alive and well and living in the streets of London. Like Amies, Matilli surrendered unconditionally to the longer lines.

Hemlines, however, no longer are fashion leaders.

Always one of the first to sense and accept changes in the trade winds, Amies scuttled the mini in 1968 and believes that the trade was "stupid" to ignore the midi for so long.

"You can't do much with a miniskirt," he said.

The Amies midi is indeed a marvellous shape to be in. His luscious collection was strong on boldly-striped coats, midi and ankle-length, worn over gently flared black trousers.

Outstanding is a long, check tweed coat, its fitted top falling into soft gathers behind the waist, again with black trousers.

Amies suits really swing. Short belted jackets belie the softness of skirts cut on the bias, sometimes slit to knee-level.

The slender shape of the collection was contrasted with dramatic color combinations—brown and beige, black, red and white — and complemented by the shadowy hues of brown through beige to chocolate, grey and off-white.

Texture had new importance — printed wools and wool crepes flared as they caressed and clung. Favorite in the couture collection was High Flyer, a dress and jacket in purple wool crepe with a flying front panel. Brown fur fabric and striped velour matched the jaunty outdoor mood.

Women Protest Midi

LONDON (CP) — Women in north of London, said: "Men London, birthplace of the mini-skirt and a launching pad for "swinging" fashions in the 1960s, are reacting unenthusiastically to the long-skirted modes of dress now being propagated and by designers in that rival city across the English Channel, Paris.

But it was left to Sean Day-Lewis, son of poet laureate Cecil Day-Lewis, to get in the first loud word of protest against the variations on a theme of midiskirt, news of which has been pouring out of the French salons all week.

The younger Day-Lewis is television critic for The Daily Telegraph and he let go his piercing blast in the course of a TV review published Friday.

"Grotesque" was his word for the French creations, which have featured styles reminiscent of the female world as it was decades ago and threaten to reverse the generous strides of the feminine leg as pleasing to girl-watchers in Britain and elsewhere these last few years.

Day-Lewis's slant on the French fashions finds some degree of support in a survey of female reactions to the "midi" styles conducted in the London area by The Evening News.

Lynda Gamble, a 16-year-old window dresser of suburban Watford, expressed dislike for the fashion pictures that have been pouring out of Paris.

"I don't think the midi and maxi styles will catch on all that well and I certainly shall not be helping it along," said Miss Gamble.

Another Watford representative, 36-year-old Doreen Gates, termed the midis "ghastly."

"My husband likes the mini so I shall be wearing it, come what may," she added.

Heather Harrison of Crystal Palace said: "I don't like midis and I certainly wouldn't wear any of these Paris ones."

"But I do like the full-length maxi," Mrs. Harrison conceded.

'Pastoral Queen' Visits Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Helena Wren, New Zealand's 32-year-old "pastoral queen" for 1970, has all the physical attributes to stir up any male birdwatcher.

But at the flick of a sweeping eyelash, she's also capable of pouring out facts and figures on her country's agricultural industry or fielding a variety of general questions about New Zealand.

Miss Wren, a teacher, was chosen pastoral queen in a national competition sponsored by the Royal Agricultural Society of New Zealand.

The competition, entered by about 1,000 girls, went through three phases—local, regional and national. Contestants had to deliver a speech to a large crowd, meet people at a gathering and appear before a panel of judges to demonstrate their knowledge of New Zealand history, agricultural policies and problems and economic policies.

While she is not from a farm herself, Miss Wren said in an interview here Thursday she has always been interested in agriculture, an important factor in her country's economy.

She spent two weeks in British Columbia touring Canada on her goodwill visit a week ago. After seeing Montreal and Quebec City, she moved on to Ottawa where one of her first stops was a visit to Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson in his office on Parliament Hill.

There they chatted about the recent prospect of a glut in Canada of hamburger, holding and freezing meat, because when the United States called a halt earlier this month to imports of frozen manufacturing meat from Australia and New Zealand by way of Canada.

The situation was resolved, however, when Canada appealed to Australia and New Zealand to suspend these shipments for a time and they agreed.

A slim, curly-haired brunette, Miss Wren is well able to hold her own in a conversation on agriculture.

Farms in New Zealand are highly scientific, she says. And the trend now is for prospective farmers to study agriculture at university.

Since much of the country's export trade comes from agricultural products, "we do a lot to satisfy our markets."

For instance, to satisfy Canadian customers new wrapping and aging processes for lamb were instituted.

Aging "doesn't make lamb older but tenderizes it," Miss Wren hastens to explain.

Although she grew up in Kirkliath, in the centre of New Zealand's north island, she now teaches in the intermediate grades in "sunny Nelson" on the tip of the southern island near Wellington.

Her other interests are many, and include painting, music, sewing, sports, cooking and drama.

"I feel that anything you get a chance to do, you should do," she says.

"I'd also like to learn to fly and to skindive. I love to live."

Cultural Origin Causes Conflict

TORONTO (CP) — A main source of conflict among Canada's immigrants arises between parents reared in the ways of the past and their children who readily accept the Canadian way of life, says a report issue by the Metropolitan Toronto social planning council.

The report says children welcome Canada's freedom in the school system as social life and the more permissive moral-ity, which parents continue to believe in the ethics of the Old World where they had a family exercises far more power than in Canada.

Rhea Swarbrick, teacher at Earlscourt junior public school, says many immigrant parents believe Canada's school system is responsible for the conflict between parents and children.

About 30 per cent of Earlscourt's student population of 1,000 come from immigrant homes.

Miss Swarbrick says Italian parents particularly believe that schools should have more authority and teach children to work, obey and behave.

Many Italian families blame what they believe is moral decay in Canadian families as being a disrupting influence on the Italian way of life.

Kurt Danziger, a psychology professor at York University who has edited a four-year study of family conflict among Toronto's 250,000 Italian immigrants, says the clash between parents and children is a bitter paradox.

"It was for the sake of their children, primarily, that the parents came to Canada. They wanted to give their children a better future in a new land.

"But they didn't realize that the children would adapt far more quickly to the Canadian way of life than they could themselves. The children become assimilated into Canadian society mainly through the schools, and the parents tend to remain outside and cling to their old ways."

But Prof. Danziger believes the rift between immigrant parents and their children is not any greater than what is known as the generation gap between Canadian-born youngsters and their parents. But, he says, the conflict is of a different type, with the greatest difficulty of adjustment relating to the position of the father in the family.

Nevertheless, he adds, the head of an Italian family is much more likely to allow his son to integrate into Canadian society than his daughter. Girls are sheltered in the family until they marry.

Nada Costa, an Italian-born social worker who came to Canada 11 years ago, says child-rearing in Europe and particularly Italy is based on the assumption that life is difficult and insecure nd a child must be prepared for it.

"Applying these same principles to family life in Toronto in 1970 can lead to difficulties," she says. "Italian parents . . . are dismayed at the extravagant ideas their children have in clothes. Of course, the children are only trying to keep up with Canadian fashions, but this doesn't go down well with the older generation."

Tate Murder Ordered To Start Black War

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With a Beatles' song spinning in his mind, Charles M. Manson ordered the murders of actress Sharon Tate and six others in hopes of igniting a black-white war, the California state prosecution says.

To Manson, Helter Skelter, the title of one of the Beatles' songs, meant the black man rising up against the white establishment and murdering the entire white race, Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi said Friday in an opening statement at the trial of the hippie-type "family" leader and three followers on charges of conspiracy to commit murder.

He said Manson believed the race war would wipe out all whites except Manson and his clan, who "intended to escape from Helter Skelter by going to the desert."

Bugliosi described Manson as "an avid follower of the Beatles" and said the shaggy-haired ex-convict believed the British quartet was "speaking to him across the ocean."

Manson interpreted their songs as supporting his philosophies, and was "a fanatical obsession with Helter Skelter," the prosecutor said. The lyrics of the song do not mention race war.

Helter Skelter was scrawled in blood on a wall at the home of two of the victims along with "Rise" and "Death to Pigs." The word "Pigs" was written in blood at the Tate home.

Bugliosi said the scrawlings and other evidence were aimed at "making it look like the black people had murdered the five Tate victims and Mr. and Mrs. Leno LaBianca, thereby causing the white community to turn against the black man and ultimately lead to a civil war . . . a war Manson foresaw the black man winning."

The prosecutor said Manson believed the black-white war would be started spontaneously by blacks, but "got impatient" and told his clan: "I'm going to show blackie how to do it."

Then, said Bugliosi, he ordered the murders.

Manson's vision of the war's outcome, said the prosecutor, was that blacks "would be unable to handle the reins of power because of inexperience and would have to turn over the reins to those white people who had escaped from Helter Skelter, that is . . . Manson and his followers."

Miss Tate was slain at her home last Aug. 9 along with four visitors. The next night, 10 miles away, Mr. and Mrs. LaBianca, wealthy market owners, were stabbed to death.

Manson, 35, arrived at the trial Friday in jail denims, a cross slashed into his forehead—framed by his long tangled locks. A defence attorney said Manson cut the cross himself with a razor blade.

Seated with him were the other defendants, Susan Atkins, 21; Patricia Krenwinkel, 22; and Leslie Van Houten, 20.

The prosecutor said the state's star witness, Linda Kasabian, 21, will testify Monday that Manson's followers—including the three women defendants —were "slavishly obedient" to Manson and killed the seven victims at his command. He said Manson had total domination over his followers and described him as "a megalomaniac who coupled his insatiable thirst for power with a desire for violent death."

A defence lawyer objected to the state's interjecting motive in its opening statement, and the judge ordered Bugliosi to make no further such references.

Impassive during the prosecutor's statement, Manson issued a printed statement through a lawyer during a recess.

"Look at what you have done," it said in part, "and what you are doing.

"You make fun of God and have murdered the world in the name of Jesus Christ. . . . I am not allowed to speak with words so I have spoken with a mark I will be wearing on my forehead."

Mercury Scare Slows Tourism

TORONTO (CP) — The tourist industry appears to be maintaining the level it reached last summer in Ontario except for the Lake St. Clair, Kenora, Sault Ste. Marie and Niagara regions.

Officials of the department of tourism and information blame publicity about mercury pollution for drastic losses at Kenora fishing camps. Boating rentals are down and one lodge in the area closed, even though the department says only about three of 30,000 lakes in the area are polluted.

Floods in the Sault Ste. Marie area early last month resulted in a large number of reservation cancellations but retail business seems to be picking up, the department said.

Mercury pollution in Lake St. Clair also appears to have scared anglers away.

Bird's Eye View

They call it the crow's nest, the spot high on the mast where the crew of Nonsuch scrambles through the lattice work of shrouds to furl and unfurl the topsail. Crewmen go aloft a dozen times a day with every change of tack when the ship is under sail.

Whoopers Said Safe From Fire

Mr. Kuyt, a biologist with the Canadian Wildlife Service, said in an interview Friday the cranes now appear "not in the slightest danger" from the fire. It is one of five burning out of control in the 17,300-square-mile park.

The biologist was called in from a wildlife study in the central Northwest Territories to make an aerial survey of the crane's 1,300-square-mile breeding area, located in a portion of the park which juts into the N.W.T. most of the park is Alberta.

He said he is optimistic the fire can move no closer to the cranes because of marshland and a river separating their habitat from the fire, 30 miles west.

Thirty-one cranes have been reported nesting in the area out of a wintering population of 86 reported from Arkansas wildlife refuge on the Texas gulf coast. The birds normally make the 2,500-mile migration.

Total population of the four-foot white crane, one of the rarest species of wildlife in the world, is less than 100 including twelve in captivity.

Fraser Takes Twin Titles

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

If anyone doubted Maurice Fraser' a shabby after his upset win over Yvon Dubamel in the Montclair Dystrophy Bennik races earlier this month, the Hamilton rider went a long way towards converting the remaining doubters by scoring a double win in the Ontario dirt track championships in the fairground last night.

In the 750 cc Expert competition, Fraser literally ran the five-time Canadian champion off the track, Dubamel having to enter into an early lead on the first lap, but was overhanded by Fraser who held a slim edge going into the second circuit.

On the first corner, the Montreal racer appeared to catch his foot on the track and went spilling end - over - end across the fairgrounds track. Dubamel's superb physical conditioning probably was the main factor in preventing a serious injury as he bobbed to his feet almost immediately.

"I don't know what happened to Yvon," said Fraser after the race. "I don't think that we bumped, because I didn't feel anything."

With Dubamel eliminated from the competition, Fraser's only problem was remaining upright as he coasted across with a half-lap lead over second place finisher Jean Marc Houde.

The win gave the veteran rider a clean sweep of the expert class as he turned in a 1:07 all-lap performance in the 250 cc class, 13 seconds above his winning time in the 750-category.

"I'd have to say that the win in the 750 class was the most satisfying," said Fraser who is travelling to a meet in Ohio today. He, unlike many of the other competitors in last night's races, will not be entering the National Road Racing Championships at Harewood this weekend.

"Yvon is a fantastic road racer, but I prefer the dirt tracks," said the Hamilton competitor.

Dubamel was plagued by misfortune all night as a flat tire forced him out of the 250 cc finals. Another rider who suffered a disappointment was Bob Swadding, who had won the class at the July 3rd race.

The 20-year old Hamilton rider suffered a pulled tendon in his hand in a warm - up spill when he was blinded by the mud from another bike. He was unable to manipulate his clutch and had to drop out of the 250 and 750 Expert categories in which he was entered.

Don McHugh and Dave McLean staged a tremendous battle for second place in the 250 race, with McHugh just edging his competitor.

Mike Binkley easily defended his title in the Junior 250 section with a 3:11 timing, just two seconds slower than Ron Keis' win in the Junior 500 class.

Because of the large number of entries all final races were cut to six laps. A crowd of over 2,500 people filled the fairgrounds grandstand.

Fraser came up with the lion's share of the $1,150 purse winning over $300.

Lions Club Tykes Slug Way To 19-15 Minor Baseball Win

Lions Club Tykes won a battle of the batters in minor baseball play last night with a 19-15 decision over, Wannamakers Exso.

Gary Hilend and Gord Taylor pitched for the winners with Bruce Hamilton and Gerry Rogers taking the loss.

Taylor and John Armstrong each had three hits for the winners with Hamilton belting a triple, double and two singles in a losing cause.

Barriage Peewees took a somewhat lower scoring contest with a 9-8 victory over Cablevue.

Allan Rutherford and Paul Weeks got the win while Marc LeClair and John Minee took the loss.

Rick Hutcheson banged three hits for Barriages while Kerry Lecky's two singles were tops for Cablevue.

Absent-Minded Professor?

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

One of the complete gentlemen of Canadian football is a tall, scholarly man called Frank Clair, general manager of Ottawa Rough Riders.

As a coach, Clair took Toronto Argonauts to two Grey Cup victories and won three more with the Riders. In 14 years behind the Ottawa bench, he never failed to take his club to the Eastern Conference playoffs.

But behind that preoccupied, stern expression lurks a trace of humor so keen that even his closest colleagues are never certain when they're being had.

The stories about Clair and his concentration are legion—how many of them are true is anybody's guess.

One tale concerns his inability—or the concentration is upon him—to remember faces or names.

"Get going, there, 27," he is alleged to have snapped at a player during a game. No. 27 was Vic Washington, at the time probably the greatest back in Canadian football, but his name had slipped Frank's mind for a moment.

Another story concerns the most elaborate sequence of plays, Clair consulted the board and queried in shock:

"Who got my clipboard all dirty?"

Will things be different now that he's in the front office? Don't bet on it.

Clair sat in on his first college football session this year, his desk covered with thorough background reports on the players he was interested in.

It was Ottawa's turn to pick, along about the seventh round.

"Has anyone picked John Smith," Clair asked.

"Yes, Frank," the chairman said. "You did—last round."

Stitt Wins Bronze

While not a "home-grown" product like Apollo Bac Bell member Price Morris, another athlete with close connections with the Belleville - area has come up with a bronze medal performance at the Commonwealth Games.

David Stitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Stitt of Howard Street, took third place in the Flyweight competition missing a chance for top spot when he lost a decision to the gold medal winner Sodbash Kumar of India.

A former Belleville - resident, David moved to Hamilton to work and wrestles out of the Hamilton Wrestling Club. The older brother of Robert Stitt, who won the Canadian Junior championship this year, he captured the Canadian senior title in the 114½-pound class and competed in the World Championships in Edmonton prior to leaving for the Commonwealth Games.

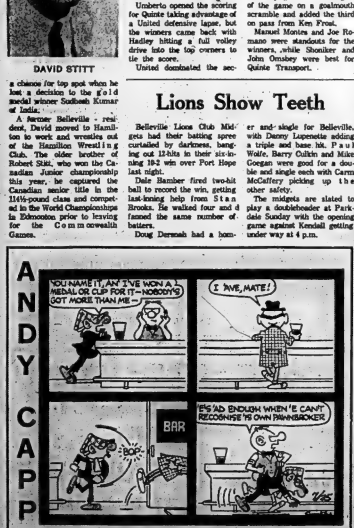
United Stands

Belleville United handed Quinte Transport their second defeat of the Bay of Quinte soccer season by stopping the Trenton team 3-1 last night.

Umberto opened the scoring for Quinte Transport at the urge of a United defensive lapse, but the winners came back with Hadley Hickey at centre to drive into the top corners to tie the score.

United dominated the second half and only some fine goaltending by Quinte's Henry Shoniker kept the score down.

Hadley got his second goal of the game on a goalmouth scramble and added the third on pass from Ken Frost.



Manuel Moniza and Joe Romano were standouts for the winners, while Shoniker and John Ostoiny were best for Quinte Transport.

Lions Show Teeth

Belleville Lions Club Midgets had their batting spree curtailed by darkness, bang-bang at 12-hits in their cooling 10-2 win over Port Hope last night.

Dale Bamber fired two-hit ball to record the win, getting lead-off help from Stan Brooks. He walked four and fanned the same number of batters.

Doug Dermish had a home-

Thirteen proved to be a lucky number for Bud Gill Appliances minor lacrosse team as they racked up a 13-8 win over Towers last night.

Leading scorers for the winners were Rod Mallory, Jim Scott and Rick Belanger.

Queen's Motor Hotel won the other bantam contest stopping Simpsons-Sears 7-1 as Rick Barbeau scored all seven goals for the winners.

In a preview contest played last night, Bob's Sports edged Atlas Van Lines 4-3, Randy Hutchinson scoring three goals for the winners with Kent Manning adding an equal number for Atlas.

Making A Racquet

Tennis instructor Ann Thompson gives some serving pointers to one of her students at the Quinte Tennis Club court. Membership in the club is growing by leaps and bounds, with the juniors monopolizing the courts in the daytime and the older set taking over at night.

Tennis Catching On With Younger Set

By RANDY DERRY
Staff Sportswriter

There is at least one lawn in the city that no one yells at kids to get the "f?!@" off of"; in fact people are encouraged to come and play on it.

The lawn is that of the tennis club and for the more than 150 members it offers a sanctuary from the hot and confusing streets. From right to four every Monday thru Friday any number of members will be using the courts for playing or receiving instructions on the finer points of the game of tennis.

The popularity of tennis and especially the brand taught at the Belleville club is mainly due to the hard work and perseverence of Anne Thompson. The pretty instructress spends a good portion of her busy week at the club involved in teaching her 90 juniors. It takes some hard work and organization to juggle the members into different classes so as to keep them playing others at their own level. I also try to keep the classes as small as possible for more individual help but as more people enroll it becomes increasingly more difficult."

As tennis interest rises so does membership, illustrated by the fact that four years ago only senior members were even thought of at the club. Now the seniors play at nights with the junior members monopolizing the day time activities. "The interest has always been here its just a problem tapping it. We try to encourage kids to come here or take lessons at least, for if on your own one doesn't really have the opportunity to improve. Here the kids get to play against their own ability level until they learn the skills then they can compete against more advanced players," states Anne.

Besides instructing the aspiring new players Anne is involved in planning many varying programs. Included are regular Friday tournaments within the club giving the members a chance to play above their class plus a junior challenge which gives the players something to play for during the week. Anne is also planning an open junior tennis tournament for anyone in the city. "I'm hoping to attract a donation of a trophy or prize because it gives the kids more incentive if they have something to play for."

A player herself for seven years Anne knows the value of having somewhere to play like the Lawn Club. "I really enjoy the situation here, the attendance is great, the kids get along wonderfully, and there is so much to do. If the interest is there you can do anything and the interest is certainly here. The program is so diversified here that everybody is kept active."

No one is more active than Anne as she also is involved in field hockey. This year she attended the Ontario - Quebec team tryouts and has made the team for the year. So besides playing tennis all day, she must practice her hockey skills every night.

But her main occupation for the current summer is developing some local tennis talent. "We have a good foundation of juniors here and playing four or five times a week will develop their skills. I hope to send a few players to the Peterborough Open and the Whig-Standard Open where they will get to play some good tennis. We send a few individual players to the Ontario Junior Closed Tournament last year but actually this is the first year for open tournaments in which we will be participating. I also hope to arrange a local tournament drawing from across Ontario."

Melton Unhappy With New Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It just wasn't Bill Melton's night.

While his Chicago White Sox teammates came close to their best night of the season Friday, he didn't come close to much of anything.

The slugging outfielder, who started the day hitting .227 with 16 homers, tied a major league record by striking out seven times in a twi-night doubleheader against Detroit.

He did walk once. And on his last time at bat, he finally managed to hit the ball—but he hit it with his left arm and wound up in the hospital.

In spite of him, the White Sox rallied for five runs in the ninth inning to beat the Detroit Tigers 6-5 in the first game, and with him gone in the ninth of the night-cap, they almost pulled that one out in the ninth before losing 5-4.

As a result, they missed another chance to win a double-header for the first time this season. They have lost nine twinbills and now have split three.

The Tigers also missed a big chance to pick up ground on the Baltimore Orioles, who were routed by the Minnesota Twins 9-0 in a battle between division leaders in the American League.

Washington Senators outlasted California Angels 9-8 in 10 innings, Oakland Athletics bombed the New York Yankees 11-6, Milwaukee Brewers overcame Boston Red Sox 8-4 and Cleveland Indians mauled Kansas City Royals 9-2 after losing 5-3 in another twi-nighter in other games.

Melton struck out four times and walked once while the Sox fell behind 2-0 after eight innings of the first game against Les Cain. But two singles knocked out Cain and Tom Timmerman, Detroit's bullpen ace, relieved, only to be met by Ron Berry's run-scoring single.

After Bobby Knoop's bid single loaded the bases, pinch-hitter Ed Herrman drilled a single to tie the score and Syd O'Brien followed with a two-run single. Another scored on a ground out.

Then in the nightcap, after Melton struck out three times and Detroit built a 4-3 lead, the White Sox got a break—Melton was hit by a pitch. The White Sox managed to get one run in that inning and Melton left the game shaking his head.

His replacement, Tom McGraw, doubled in the tying run in the ninth inning against Timmerman. But Timmerman and John Hiller each struck out a man with runners on second and third to end the Sox threat and their hops for two victories in one day.

Three singles loaded the bases for Detroit after a force out at the plate, Wilbur Wood walked Don Wert to force in the winning run.

The victory enabled the Tigers to pick up only a half game on Baltimore, which now leads the East by 5½ games.

Minnesota increased its West lead to six games over California as Tony Oliva, Harmon Killebrew and Rick Renick slammed homers behind Jim Kaat's seven-hit pitching. Oliva's came with two on in the 11th inning and drove out Mike Cuellar, 13-6.

Mike Epstein's 11th homer with one aboard in the 10th leveled California. The Senators broke loose for eight runs in the sixth, six of them on Bernie Allen's 20th homer.

Don Mincher, Frank Fernandez and Chuck Dobson each drove in two runs in a seven-run first inning and Dobson, 10-10, breezed in with a four-hitter for Oakland.

Dave May broke a 6-for-25 slump with a two-run homer in the seventh inning for Milwaukee after Roberto Rosario drove in four runs with two singles.

Kansas City won as pitcher Jim Rooker, 7-9, and Bob Oliver hit two-run homers in the opener, but Cleveland came back in the nightcap behind Tony Horton's two homers for four runs and Vada Pinson's two shots for three more.

Sport Briefs

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Football League Players' Association and a club owners committee Friday with federal mediators for five hours but failed to come up with a solution to solve the present contract impasse. The deadlock threatens to cancel the All-Star Game and could possibly wipe out the 1979 pro football season altogether. Federal mediator Gilbert J. Seldin announced following the afternoon session: "We're in recess. The players and owners are checking into hotels and taking an opportunity to study their positions." Seldin refused to comment on progress of the negotiations between the association and 26 NFL clubs. It was believed the association modified its demands of last May 11 on pension payments. There was no indication, however, how far it went. Contributions to the pension plan by the owners is the biggest stumbling block in the negotiation. Owners say they now are paying $2,800,000 annually and their offer of increases would boost this 60 per cent in four years. Owners say the players last plan proposal was unrealistic because it would encompass an average of $6,540,000 yearly over future years.

MONTREAL (CP) — Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League announced Friday that the condition of rookie centreman Michel Brieve, who suffered a brain injury in a car accident May 15 near his hometown of Malartic, Que., had improved slightly. His recovering has been slow but doctors have indicated all during the convalescence that this was normal for the type of injury involved.

OTTAWA (CP) — Four offensive backs, three Americans and a Canadian, were placed on waivers by Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League Friday. Riders dropped Mike Adams from Indiana University; Joe Jackson from Northern Arizona; Rob Young, from University of Idaho and Ernie Tarek from St. Catharines Rams of the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

NEW-YORK (AP) — Johnny Sample, defensive back released almost a year ago by New York Jets, has sued the club for $1,070,000, alleging the team tried to force him to play at the risk of permanent injury. The suit was filed on the cornerback "was able to perform his duties . . . but failed to keep himself in proper physical condition compared to other members of the team."

ORILLIA (CP) — Orillia Terriers of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior league announced Friday that they have agreed to the rental terms for the coming season with the town's recreation committee. A spokesman for the team said the agreement means the Terriers, finalists in last season's Allan Cup play, will remain here. The Terriers threatened last week to move because they could not reach agreement with the recreation committee, which had sought 20 per cent of gate receipts. At a closed meeting Thursday night, the Terriers agreed to give the commission 17 per cent of gate revenue.

Millard Grapples Gold Medal

EDINBURGH (CP) — Good performances in heavyweight wrestling qualifying rounds helped Canada's Ed Millard trick his Indian opponent into a disqualification Friday, adding another Commonwealth Games gold medal to Canada's list.

"I guess he kept thinking about how much better I did than he did in the qualifying rounds and it must have psyched him right out," said Millard, 24, of King City, Ont.

The six-foot, 219-pound wrestler, who moves to Sudbury to become a high school teacher this fall, said in an interview he realized Vishwanath Singh was afraid "when he was only coming halfway" at me.

"He never did shoot all the way at me and both his takedowns were on mistakes of mine," Millard said.

When a wrestler moves in on his opponent it is referred to as shooting, and Millard said that after he knew the Indian was "psyched out, I began to shoot halfway too."

"This was a trick to make the referee think he was stalling and I guess they did."

The gold went to Millard when the Indian was warned the third time for lack of aggressiveness and disqualified.

Millard, who was unable to compete in the world championships last month in Edmonton because of a summer course at Lakehead University in Thunder Bay, said his ultimate goal is a medal at the 1972 Olympics.

Agee 'Steals' Win From Los Angeles

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tommie Agee was sure his daring surprise would work but the New York Mets fleet centre fielder couldn't keep quiet as he stole home in the 10th inning against the Los Angeles Dodgers Friday night, giving the New Yorkers a 2-1 victory.

With reliever Jim Brewer on the mound for the Dodgers, two out and the bases loaded, Cleon Jones was at bat with a 1-1 count. Agee went and when he got near home yelled to Jones, "Look out, look out."

Agee barrelled across the plate, knocking over Los Angeles catcher Bill Haller and the home plate umpire as Jones' faked swinging at the 1-1 pitch.

"I'm sure he (Brewer) was surprised," Agee said afterward. "But I felt I would make it. I wouldn't have gone if I didn't think so."

Jones said: "I saw him coming out of the corner of my eye and when he passed the halfway mark, I knew he was coming. I heard him yell."

Agee called to Jones because in a similar steal attempt in last year's playoff against Atlanta Braves, Jones didn't see him and drilled a line drive which just missed the startled Agee.

In other National League games, Chicago Cubs ripped Atlanta 10-3, Cincinnati Reds blanked St. Louis Cardinals 4-0, Pittsburgh Pirates bombed Houston Astros 11-0, San Francisco Giants split a twi-night doubleheader with Montreal Expos, winning the opener 8-7 before losing 7-5 and Philadelphia Phillies edged San Diego Padres 4-3.

Bill Singer of the Dodgers and Jerry Koosman of the Mets each went nine innings, locked in a 1-1 tie. Singer issued five hits and Koosman six.

Home runs by Randy Hundley, Ron Santo and Billy Williams keyed a 10-hit Cubs' attack behind Ken Holtzman's six-hitter.

Jerry Nolan, with eighth inning relief help notched his 16th victory for the Reds while John Denny and Bernie Carbo cracked homers for the rampaging Cincinnati batters.

Bench's 20th homer of the season gave the Reds a 2-0 edge in the fourth and Carbo connected in the fourth as the Cards lost for the sixth time in succession. St. Louis has won only two of their last 17 starts.

Dock Ellis stroked a double for the final run in a six-run first inning and fired a four-hitter in the Pirates rout over the Astros. Willie Stargell had a homer for Pittsburgh which maintained its 3½-game lead over the Mets in the East.

Willie McGovey drove in four runs with a double and his 24th homer and Willie Mays drove in three runs with two singles as the Giants split the opener from the Expos.

Montreal took the nightcap, gaining the go-ahead run in the seventh without a hit.

Pinch hitter Oscar Gamble stroked a two-out, run-scoring single in the ninth inning in the Phils' comeback victory over the Padres. Nate Colbert had given San Diego a 3-2 edge in the eighth with a two-run homer.

Australia and England Continue Medal Fight

EDINBURGH (CP) — Australia and England continued to battle for the lead in the Commonwealth Games pool, and England, rulers in fencing, lawn bowling and badminton, came down to the wire today with 10 track and field events and the cycling road race to be decided before the final medal count.

As the last day began, Australia had 33 gold medals, 29 of them from swimming and diving, to England's 27 and 17 for third-place Canada. The two leaders had won five events apiece in track and field.

Other countries got into the act Friday as African athletes took eight of 11 boxing championships and India outscored Pakistan 5-4 in wrestling.

Canada picked up its 11th gold medal in by-passing and diving, a comfortable victory in the men's 400-metre medley relay, and upped the established order by winning a cycling event and taking a gold and a flock of lesser medals in wrestling.

Apart from the men's medley relay team of Bill Kennedy of London, Ont., Bill Mahony of New Westminster, B.C., Byron MacDonald of Chicago and Bob Kasting of Lethbridge, Alta., Canada had trouble staying in the pool with the fired-up Aussies Friday.

A team anchored by Mike Wenden shattered them in the 800 freestyle relay, winning by 1.30 seconds in the world record time of seven minutes 50.77 seconds. The old mark of 7:52.1 had been set by the United States entry in the 1968 Olympics.

It was the fourth gold medal of the Games for Wenden and the fourth silver for Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C., who swam the anchor leg against him.

Donna-Marie Gurr of Vancouver got in for a third-place bronze behind Lynne Watson and Debbie Gale of Australia in the 100 backstroke and earned another as a member of the team that chased Australia for England in the women's 400 medley relay.

Canadians were out of the medal picture as Australians swept the medals in the women's 100 metre butterfly as Jan Wagstaff bested two English divers to add the men's tower championship to his earlier success on the springboard.

Jocelyn Lovell of Toronto, already a winner of silver and bronze in previous cycling events, completed his medal collection by streaking to victory in the 10-mile race. It was the first Games title for a Canadian cyclist since 1934.

Heavyweight Ed Millard won what turned out to be the 100th Canadian gold medal since the Games began 48 years ago when his English wrestler was disqualified for lack of aggressiveness in their final bout.

That evened the score for another heavyweight, Jack Meda of Prince George, B.C., who had lost a bronze medal in boxing when the official said him for excessive holding in his semi-final.

The other Canadian wrestlers displayed equal disrespect for their highly-touted Indian and Pakistani opponents, winning five silver and three bronze medals.

With Meda's departure, no Canadians were around as the Africans took over in the boxing ring. Three Ugandans, two Nigerians and two Ghanaians won the first gold medals of the Games for their countries and a Kenyan also won a title. There were also African finalists in the other three divisions but they lost to two Englishmen and a Scot.

Canada's fencers reached the final of the team sabre event before their luck ran out and they finished fourth behind England, Scotland and Australia. The team now heads to a better 13-round competition with England on top in both singles and pairs and the Canadian entries far back.

Argos Edge Alouettes

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Tom Wilkinson fired three touchdown passes Friday night as Toronto Argonauts eked out a 20-19 victory over Montreal Alouettes in an Eastern Football Conference exhibition match before 30,886 fans.

Wilkinson completed only one of two passes in a disastrous first-quarter appearance but came back in the second half to lead the Argos from behind a 17-0 deficit.

He started with a 18-yard pass to Mel Profit in the end zone early in the quarter. Montreal was forced to give up the ball after four plays, and nine plays later Wilkinson dropped another pass into the end zone, this time to Tom Bland from 27 yards out.

Just 24 seconds into the final quarter, the rolly-poly quarterback dumped a 22-yard pass into the end zone to Profit to complete the Argo comeback.

Quarterback Don Jonas, who played most of the second and fourth quarters for the Argos, converted two of the touchdowns.

The Als, under the superb passing of quarterback Sonny Wade, dominated much of the first half, but Wade managed to complete only one touchdown pass, to Peter Dalla Riva, early in the second quarter.

Montreal's other touchdown came when Tom Johansen's punt from the Toronto 39-yard line was blocked by defensive back Merl Fode. The ball bounced into the end zone and Montreal linebacker John L. Smith fell on it for the touchdown.

Pierre Guindon kicked a 38-yard field goal, converted both Montreal touchdowns and exhibited a single. Montreal quarterback Barcley Allen got another single in the dying minutes of the game when he missed on a 52-yard field-goal attempt.

Toronto's Bill Symons was the game's outstanding rusher, with 115 yards on 18 carries. The Argos collected 173 yards rushing compared to Montreal's 91, and 207 passing compared to the Al's 212.

The two Argo quarterbacks completed 18 of 31 passes. Wade and Tony Passander of Montreal completed 17 of 37 pass attempts.

The victory gave the Argos a sweep of their four-game exhibition schedule while the Alouettes wound up with two wins, a tie and a loss.

Tweed

TWEED — The induction service of the Reverend Everett R. Hawkes, B.A., B. Th., into the pastoral charges of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Tweed, will be conducted by the presbytery of Kingston, at a service to be held in St. Peter's Church on Wednesday evening, July 29 at 8 p.m.

The open air church services at Bon Echo Provincial Park, Lake Mazinaw and at Sirk's Turkey Villa, Roslin, are attracting a good attendance, according to the officials organizing the two services. Both services are interdenominational.

Mrs. Garnet Scott, of Arden is a patient in the Kingston General Hospital. She has undergone surgery and is convalescing at the hospital.

Joane Dixon's Horoscope

Sunday, July 26

Your birthday today: This coming year brings repeated readjustments between efforts to hold up to what you have and pressures toward personal changes, mostly constructive but not readily seen that way at first. The results are most likely to be incomplete at year's end. In any case, relinquish at least some of your worst habits. Your naturally sensitive nature makes the semicrisis year a poignant experience. Today's natives are often critical but scrupulously honest, easily aroused to action.

ARIES (March 21—April 19): Allied to your community's Sunday customs, then go off to unaccustomed places. This gives you a different view of yourself. No shop talk now.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Math discussion today goes in circles. The essential factor is not what is said but the competition between the talkers. Take an experimental tack, break the circle.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): Your home life and family ties take up most of your time today. Older people around you are not comfortable. Defer later to their emotional needs a bit.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Skipping your activities may be sensible today. You have many interesting matters alive and working toward a pleasant day.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Expect delays and upsets to befall familiar tales. Try paring talkative people off, leaving yourself out of it to attend to personal chores.

VIRGO (Aug. 23—Sept. 22): Take the simplest course today. There are forces at work really amenable to understanding. Let alone what they with your own set of people.

LIBRA (Sept. 23—Oct. 22): Cherishable work, visiting people in strange places bring much benefit, although at some inconvenience. The results of today are bound to be a bit odd.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Superficiality, this is a showcase Sunday for you. In a deeper sense it is a trying time since so many subtle things are going on.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You thrive on what other people find inconvenient. See what you can do to reconcile the differences. At best, it's a tense day, which you may enjoy all of the more.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22—Jan. 19): Your own version of this day is neat, economical. The problem may be that everybody still has some other, unrealistic plans. Compromise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Meeting strangers is propitious, stimulating. Any directions promise to inspire new ideas. Your mind has much to say, too. Switch back and forth to avoid fatigue.

PISCES (Feb. 19—March 20): Whatever work you can get to is unusually rewarding, particularly if weekday duties have prevented it from being done.

For July 27

Your birthday today: Insight is your strongest personal need in the coming year. Material needs are solved by excellent work. The natural drift of circumstances helps you opportunity to express what is within you. Creative talents, according to your individual endowment, can be brought into meaningful expression soon. Today's natives are searchers for meaning and may make many sacrifices for their study.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your week begins with a burst of energy. Start early. Your intellectual grasp of things speeds you to do something immediate about them. Win care, please!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Ideas and information come at you thick and fast. Take what you can cope with; file what can be handled later. Protect yourself against undue fatigue.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): This active day begins a productive week of considerably and personal success. You can personalize people into shoved anything for the time being. Be selective — it pays.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Investigate the history and reasons for the present state of affairs. You come into possession of very interesting bits of knowhow, incidentally.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Fresh ideas bring you much pleasure some long cherished hope during the next few days or weeks. Begin with the core of the project, its intuitive concept.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): More people are in the act than you realize. Some are helpful. Give it thought, so you do not trump your own or your part ner's ace, so to speak.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Personal projects thrive. You have easier access to resources, and chances are available right in your specialties. But don't go beyond them into the unfamiliar.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): All sorts of things tend to show their flaws suddenly, with little provocation. Let everything that is falling apart finish itself, then plan replacement or repairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Some privately supported your views. Speak out on whatever you really believe in, and eventually you are endorsed by many.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You draw attention, recognition. Gain right up and ready for increased rewards. Put in a full day's effort. Change pace this evening: mingle.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb 18): What you do today is of unusual importance, so do it well. Be selective in seeking colleagues. It is a long day with overtime or further developments this evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your material and spiritual resources are well replenished. Improve your home, your way of life. Habits are susceptible to firm discipline or change.

UK Mail Embargo Announced

OTTAWA (CP) — The post office will not accept any surface mail bound for Great Britain and Northern Ireland due to the British dockworkers' strike, it was announced Friday.

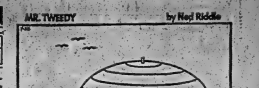
The post office said air mail would continue as normal.

Since the dock strike began July 11 about 4,000 tons of mail have been delayed. About 3,000 of these are aboard vessels in British ports or on their way. The remainder are being held in the post office's Montreal terminal.

It said some of the mail now tied up was to be transmitted through Britain to other points.

Hospitals Need Blood

TORONTO (CP) — City hospitals have had to postpone non-vital operations during the last two weeks because of a blood shortage, spokesmen said Friday.



At Toronto General, the city's largest, eight operations were cancelled in the first week of this week. A spokesman said the hospital's blood supply could handle only emergency cases and not those requiring large amounts of blood.

Doreen Johnson of the Canadian Red Cross blood-donor service blamed the shortage on unemployment, strikes and plant layoffs which have meant cancellation of 15 industrial donor clinics since mid-May.

About 2,000 donors would normally give blood at the cancelled clinics, she said.

Nasser Admits His Agreement Tactical Ploy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Gamal Abdul Nasser of Egypt says his acceptance of the latest United States peace proposals for the Middle East was a tactic to keep Israel from obtaining additional arms.

He told members of Egypt's only political party Friday that Israel had hoped the Arabs would reject the proposals so that it would have justification for demanding more arms from the United States.

Instead, he said, "We have accepted the proposals in order not to give Israel reasons or motives to demand additional arms."

Nasser, replying to questions from the national congress of the Arab Socialist Union, also said the American peace initiative may have been a ploy "to make us bear the responsibility of rejection and thus (they) have more freedom in supplying Israel with more arms. We will wait and see what the Americans will do."

The U.S. peace plan, made public June 19 by State Secretary William P. Rogers, calls for a temporary Israeli-Egyptian-Jordanian ceasefire of at least 90 days and for indirect Arab-Israeli peace talks through a UN mediator.

Nasser said he doubted that the plan would bring a quick peace. Referring to Arab lands occupied by Israel after the June, 1967, war, he said: "I will believe what has been taken by force can only be restored by force."

The Egyptian president said he doubted that the Middle East conflict would evolve into a nuclear showdown, but he stressed his country's close contact with the Soviet Union during recent months. Russia has endorsed the U.S. peace initiative.

Nasser said that during his recent visit to Moscow he "agreed with the Russians on both political and military plans."

He added that his top aide, Aly Sabri, will begin visiting Moscow every two months "to consult and discuss with the Soviets on the situation politically and militarily."

Asked when a three-month ceasefire called for in the U.S. plan would begin, Nasser replied:

"When Israel declares its willingness to implement the resolution in full and without reservations, and when the United Nations mediator, Gunnar Jarring, returns to the area and informs UN Secretary-General U Thant on the commitment of all sides of it."

Nasser was referring to a 1967 UN Security Council resolution calling for Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory occupied in the 1967 war and for Arab recognition of Israeli sovereignty within secure boundaries.

"The ceasefire will be established when Israel abolishes it, and if Jarring's efforts are prolonged fruitlessly by Israeli stalling," he said.

The Israelis have not replied to the Rogers proposal. Some Israeli officials are reluctant to accept a short-term ceasefire, however, saying the Arabs could use the period to fortify their armies.

Fighting continued in the Suez canal area Friday. The Egyptian command reported that 46 Israeli planes raided fortifications and artillery positions for four hours, causing little damage and no casualties.

The Israelis reported that all the planes returned safely.

Psychologist Says:

Take Weapons From Police

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Yale psychology professor has told a White House panel that the way to end killings on United States campuses is to take "enormous weapons out of the hands of civil authorities."

Dr. Kenneth Keniston, psychology professor at Yale Medical School, acknowledged that students themselves initiated the "insane tactic" of violence, "but if we count bloodied heads they are students' heads," he said.

Keniston spoke at length Friday before the last in a series of Washington hearings by the president's commission on campus unrest.

His testimony contrasted with that of Dr. Edward Teller, a nuclear weapons scientist who asserted that unabated student protests could weaken U.S. defence and invite a foreign takeover in 20 years.

Teller complained that "indoctrinated" young people "will not take a defence-related job," and threaten to force defence research out of the universities.

Teller, a physics professor at the University of California, advocated use of armed forces to prevent students from closing down schools or "converting them into political pressure groups."

But Keniston said lethal weapons were not necessary in controlling student disorder, and pointed to the success of soft-spoken ex-Yale Police Chief James Ahern, a commission member.

To end campus unrest, he said, "it is not enough to ask students and faculty to be sane, understanding and patient.

"Unless we can begin now, ours will be not only a divided and sick society, but a society that has lost the best of its youthful conscience on its deathbed."

He said the war in Indochina must end and "American foreign policy must be realigned so as to prevent all future entanglements in the civil wars of other nations."

Keniston also said "the effort to improve the quality of the human environment must be taken seriously, or dealt with by a token public relations program."

Touching on Teller's testimony, Keniston said it was morally wrong for universities to be engaged in defence research, except in times of declared war.

David A. Kenna, a Wisconsin law student who heads the conservative Young Americans for Freedom, pronounced campus violence the result of "administrative failures, faculty timidity or else indifference to responsibility."

Jordan Agrees To U.S. Plan

By The Associated Press

The Jordanian cabinet agreed Sunday night to accept the United States' ceasefire proposal to get Middle East peace negotiations moving again, but with the reservation that it cannot stop the Palestinian guerrillas.

The Israeli cabinet postponed a decision on the U.S. proposal after a six-hour meeting Sunday. The Jerusalem Post, which usually reflects the Israeli government's thinking, says the cabinet, probably will give a "qualified affirmative reply" but will request "firm guarantees that the ceasefire will not be exploited."

The newspaper says Israel will insist on an indefinite ceasefire rather than the 90-day truce period U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers proposed for Egypt, Jordan and Israel. Members of the Israeli government contend that the Egyptians would use a limited ceasefire period to fortify missile sites and other military positions along the Suez Canal.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt approved the proposal last week after the Soviet Union endorsed it. Syria rejected it Sunday as expected, and so did Iraq, which has troops stationed in Jordan.

Jordan's conditional acceptance followed a day-long meeting Sunday of Premier Abdel Moneim Rifai's cabinet and an announcement by the guerrillas Saturday night that they will fight on for "complete liberation of Palestine."

Jordanian sources said the cabinet meeting was torn with disagreement, and some members threatened to resign. The government appointed last month by King Hussein includes at least six Palestinians sympathetic to the guerrillas, and sources said they attempted to block approval of the proposal.

Rifai announced the decision was "unanimous, positive and consistent with the reply of the United Arab Republic."

Guerrillas Denounce Nasser

AMMAN (Reuters) — Armed left-wing Palestinian commandos marched through the streets of this Jordanian capital today shouting slogans against President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt and denouncing the acceptance of a United States Middle East peace proposal by Egypt and Jordan.

The demonstrators dispersed after a member of the Popular Democratic Front made a speech attacking the U.S. plan.

By the time they dispersed the demonstrators numbered about 5,000, having been joined by citizens and individual members of other commando organizations.

Houston Police Battle Negroes

HOUSTON (AP) — Police said the chairman of a black militant organization was shot to death Sunday night and four other men wounded in a half-hour exchange of gunfire between police and Negroes.

The disorder broke out in a Negro district Sunday after a rally protesting the arrest of two Negroes Police Chief H. G. Short said were "walking down the street, one with a pistol and one with a shotgun."

The dead man was Carl Hampton, 21, chairman of a group known as People's Party II. He died of abdominal wounds in hospital several hours after the shooting broke out.

Roy R. Haile Jr., 34, white and said by police to be associated with the Students for a Democratic Society, was in poor condition, also with abdominal wounds.

About 200 policemen swept into the Dowling Street district of Southeast Houston and barricaded a 10-block area against motorists and pedestrians. About 75 persons were arrested.

Many weapons and a quantity of Black Panther party literature were confiscated at the People's Party II headquarters building where the rally took place, police said.

Fisheries Minister Calls for Destroyers

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Province says federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis will ask External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and Defence Minister Leo Cadieux to send "a destroyer or two" into West Coast fishing areas in the wake of the Soviet sideswiping of a Port Alberni, B.C., fishing boat Saturday.

The newspaper said Davis wants Canadian warships on the scene day and night.

"I don't think they'd go crashing through our destroyers," The Province quotes Mr. Davis as saying in a telephone interview from Ottawa on his return from a vacation in Britain.

"If this keeps up, we'll have a major diplomatic incident on our hands because we'll have loss of life.

"The Soviet ships are not observing the proper precautions of navigation. They are ignoring reasonable practice on the high seas.

"This looks like a deliberate attempt to bully our people out of an area where they have fished for years."

The 40-foot trailer Dena Island was sideswiped twice Saturday while she was anchored in 25 fathoms, about 20 miles southwest of Cape Beale on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

"There is no doubt it was a Russian ship," said Barry Robinson, 21, of Port Alberni, who was sleeping along with his son Barry, 12, and daughter Shelly, 11, when his boat was hit.

"The boat listed over so far, I thought we were sinking."

The 297-foot Soviet ship ripped down one side of the smaller boat, caught the anchor chain, swung the trailer around and skinned the gear off the other side.

Three weeks ago, a Victoria trailer was dragged some distance when a Russian trawler snagged its anchor chain.

Michael Guns, secretary of the 1,000-member Pacific Trollers Association, said he had planned to ask Mr. Davis for warship protection, but added that the association's long-term goal is to rid coastal waters of Soviet vessels.

Fishermen say the Soviets take bottom fish such as hake and cod by day, then move into shallow areas at night to fish for herring.

Under a conservation treaty with the United States and Japan, Canadians are prohibited from taking herring.

Thunderstorms are likely to develop this afternoon and tonight in the hot muggy air over southern and central Ontario.

Trudeau's Letter 'Leaked'

Heath Is Still Hopeful Of Arms Sale Support

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath will continue his attempts to persuade Commonwealth leaders that Britain must sell arms to South Africa to protect sea lanes essential to the Western world, an informant close to Heath said today.

"We are old diplomatic hands at this game," the informant said when asked what Heath's reaction was to Prime Minister Trudeau's confidential letter expressing "serious misgivings" about Britain's intended resumption of arms exports to South Africa.

Excerpts of the letter received wide publicity in the British press during the weekend. Heath's associates maintain the letter was "leaked" by Trudeau's team either in London or Ottawa in breach of recognized diplomatic understanding that such exchanges between national leaders must remain confidential.

It was reported last Thursday that Trudeau had written the letter but the Canadian government did not disclose its contents.

Its appearance in Sunday papers here was the first time detailed contents of the letter were published.

"We will keep a stiff upper lip and continue to attempt to persuade the Commonwealth with the reality of our case," the informant said.

"We do not accept the view that unity of the Commonwealth and British arms supplies to South Africa are incompatible," he added.

Since Heath had undertaken to maintain a British military presence in the Far East and since the Soviet military presence in the Indian Ocean had increased, it was more vital than ever that the sea lanes around the Cape of Good Hope receive greater protection, he contiqued.

Trudeau's letter to Heath is described by London commentators today as a crucial new development in Commonwealth opposition to any resumption of weapons deals with South Africa.

It is suggested in some quarters that the letter will be used by members of Prime Minister Heath's cabinet who are cool towards any arms transaction, as a further argument for their case.

Resentment about Trudeau's letter continues to find an outlet in the Beaverbrook newspapers.

One of these papers, The Sunday Express, has said that before the Canadian prime minister begins giving advice to such countries as Britain on matters such as the South African question, he should attend to alleged restrictions on black immigration into Canada.

The Communist Morning Star says The Sunday Express was "livid with rage because of the tremendous and growing opposition to the Tory gun-running plan."

"The opposition is worldwide and nationwide," The Star says in an editorial.

"If it is kept up and intensified, it will be strong enough to compel Mr. Heath to drop his shameful scheme."

Meanwhile, The Guardian says Ottawa has become the focus for Commonwealth opposition to the projected shipment of British arms to South Africa.

The Guardian considers Ottawa's views have been shocked by what it calls the apparent lenience of Douglas-Home and other British cabinet members towards the Commonwealth.

"Canadian ministers consider that if the Commonwealth were to break up, Canada would lose a valuable counterweight in her relations with the United States," says The Guardian.

The Trudeau letter as it appeared in front pages here took Heath to task roughly for the British government's decision—after its election victory of June 18—to switch the Labor government's policy against selling arms to South Africa.

Giant Jets Stage Raids Along Border

SAIGON (AP) — United States B-52 bombers attacked North Vietnamese positions at eight points along South Vietnam's border with Cambodia and Laos today amid reports of new Communist buildups.

The raids were the heaviest by the giant eight-jet bombers in two weeks, stretching from the southern Mekong Delta to the demilitarized zone at the northern end of the country.

Eight waves of the B-52s dropped 1,200 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese bunkers, base camps, weapons positions, staging areas and supply depots. Fighter-bomber and smaller fighter-bombers pounded supply routes from Laos and Cambodia.

The U.S. command ordered the strikes after intelligence reports said North Vietnamese troops were moving back into border areas from which they withdrew when U.S. and South Vietnamese forces struck at their Cambodian sanctuaries in May and June.

A force of 2,500 South Vietnamese troops launched a new operation in southeastern Cambodia Sunday. Reports indicated that North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers were massing with large munitions stockpiles southeast of the town of Kompong Trabek.

German-Russian Talks Started

MOSCOW (AP) — The West German and Soviet foreign ministers began talks in Moscow today to complete a non-aggression pact the Bonn government hopes will pave the way to better relations with Eastern Europe.

Foreign Minister Walter Scheel of West Germany and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko of the Soviet Union are trying to conclude an agreement in which West Germany and the Soviet Union renounce the use of force against each other and West Germany accepts the post-war loss of German territory to Poland and the Soviet Union.

But in an attempt to appease political opposition at home, Scheel brought along amendments he wants to attach to the treaty emphasizing Bonn's aims of German reunification and improved access to West Berlin.

The meeting lasted just over an hour. Scheel told reporters the meeting had been "good" and its atmosphere "co-operative, very co-operative."

Chief Compliments Helpful Citizens

Citizen involvement which was responsible for two separate arrests last week, has sparked favorable comments from Belleville City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie.

"I think people are beginning to see they have to get involved, that they can't sit on the fence," Chief Crosbie said.

Two separate breaking and entering arrests were made last week while Chief Crosbie was on vacation because citizens had reported bearing strange noises in their neighborhood.

He said that it helped the police to do their job when citizens reported strange or suspicious behavior or incidents.

"It's their city and it's their country and they have to help look after it," he said.

Hees Says Guideline Is Dead

TORONTO (CP) — George Hees, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Prince Edward-Hastings, said Sunday the federal government's six-per-cent guideline for annual wage increases is "as dead as the dodo."

Mr. Hees issued a statement saying the government must bargain realistically with postal unions to conclude a fair settlement "before the economy of the country is put in a straitjacket by a total strike or lockout."

Mr. Hees said the treasury board's refusal to budge from the six-per-cent guideline is a refusal to bargain.

Trailer Flips

A house trailer being hauled by a truck driven by Kent Mullin, 33, of Shelterville, Quebec, overturned on Highway 401 at 11:35 a.m. Saturday.

Damage to the trailer, owned by Vancouver Mobile Ltd. of Sept-Iles, Quebec, was estimated at $1,000.

A spokesman for the OPP surmised that the trailer's wheels came in contact with the median in the westbound lane, causing the vehicle to go out of control.

Constable Shane Halversen of the OPP investigated.

Children Blamed For Garage Fire

A weekend garage fire at 90 Purdy Street here in Belleville has been blamed on children playing with matches. Fire Chief Leo Culhane said this morning.

The fire, which broke out shortly after 8:30 Saturday morning, damaged the inside of a garage owned by David Lawrence of Deseronto. The house nearby was occupied by H. Richardson.

Chief Culhane said the fire broke out at the inside rear of the building causing quite a bit of damage. Actual damage estimates have yet to be compiled.

Firemen were at the scene for approximately 40 minutes. No one was injured.

Less Maintenance

EDMONTON (CP) — Touchbutton public telephones stand up to winter weather better than conventional dial telephones, says Doug Barrows, general manager of Edmonton Telephones. When winter temperatures drop to 30 degrees below, dial telephones tend to stick and the touch-button phones require less maintenance.

Mr. Cronin suffered minor facial injuries.

The damage to the vehicle amounted to $1,200.

Those Who Go Down to See in the Ships

Hundreds of weekend sightseers surrounded the Nonsuch II as it rested at the Belleville docks from Friday evening until departure time scheduled for noon today. With a good wind, Captain Adrian Small predicts a travelling speed of seven knots on the lake to arrive in Cobourg on July 31.

Peterborough Paddlers Post Their Second Canoe Race Win

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON (Staff) — A pair of veteran paddlers from the Peterborough area topped a field of 28 teams this weekend to become the first double winners in the four - year history of the Trent - On - Waterways canoe race.

Les Crowe and Dr. Peter Clark showed the way in both 30-mile legs of the two - day 60 - mile race, posting a time of 11 hours and 17 minutes, to capture the Clive Jaffray Memorial trophy.

The trophy was put up for competition this year by the Trenton Chamber of Commerce in memory of Clive Jaffray who placed third last year but was killed in an automobile accident while returning home to Peterborough following the race.

Crowe, a 49-year-old general contract rofrom RR1 Lakefield, and Clark a 36-year-old physician from Peterborough, bettered their 1968 winning time by 14 minutes but fell 16 minutes short of the 11 hour 1 minute record time set last year by two members of the London Canoe Club.

The race was a more - or - less routine affair for the pair of top - flight paddlers who were never seriously challenged. Their times of five hours and 25 minutes from Serpent Mounds to Campbellford and five hours and 52 minutes from Campbellford to Trenton were laps for each leg.

Brian and Bryce Bull of Campbellford placed second on both legs, recording a time of 11 hours and 39 minutes — 45 minutes better than their second place performance of 1969.

A London pair, John Black and Ronald Walkling, jumped from fifth place in 1969 to third this year with a time of 12 hours and 30 minutes.

The top local entry was Tom Wills of Belleville and Tim Howard of Bayside who took fourth place in their second try at the race. Last year they came home 13th.

Henry Kinsella and Paul McCue of Trenton won the Trent - On - Waterways canoe club trophy for the best showing by members of the local canoe club.

Their sixth place finish was also a great improvement over last year when they finished near the back of the pack.

Mother Nature assisted the Trenton Chamber of Commerce sponsored event this year by providing clear skies and warm temperatures both Saturday and Sunday.

In fact, the weather may have been too summer-like because some competitors suffered from sunburn while everyone battled stiff southerly winds which hurt the times turned in by most competitors Sunday.

Overnight accommodation was provided in a huge Boy Scout tent pitched Friday night at Serpent Mounds Provincial Park on Rice Lake and Saturday night at Campbellford on the shores of the Trent River.

Each of the top three entries received kooper trophies while the best ten teams received merchandise gifts donated by local merchants.

We Made It!

Donna Bird (front) and Shirley Reid joyously paddle up to the Trenton dock at 4.26 Sunday afternoon to complete 60-mile, two-day Trent-On-Waterways canoe race. The lone female entry braved the elements and the strain of canoeing to turn in the creditable time of 18 hours and 11 minutes while placing 18th in the field of 20 competitors in the annual race.

Intelligencer Entry Tops News Paddlers

TRENTON (Staff) — An Intelligencer entry took top honors this weekend in a "race-within-a-race" during the fourth annual Trent-On - Waterways canoe race.

At stake was the News Media Trophy up for this year by Don Bell's Sport Shop for competition between the Trenton-area, CJBQ radio station and The Intelligencer.

Each team was composed of a member of the news media and a partner of his choice.

Representing The Intelligencer were Malcolm Johnston, the paper's Trenton bureau reporter, and Constable David Camp of the Trenton Police Department.

After a slow start on the choppy waters of Rice Lake, the Camp-Johnston duo took command and were never headed en route to a time of 16 hours and 30 minutes — good enough for 15th place in the field of 20 teams.

In Saturday's initial 30 mile leg the Camp-Johnston duo posted a time of eight hours and five minutes to build up a one hour and 47 minute advantage over the CJBQ entry of newsman Bob Rowbotham and Trenton police Constable Fred Noakes who finished in nine hours and 52 minutes, and placed 19th.

Bringing up the rear was the Trentonian entry of sports editor Bill Huffman and Ellis Watson, a corporal from CFB Trenton.

The Trentonian entry posted a time of 10 hours and 31 minutes to troll The Intelligencer by two hours and 26 minutes and CJBQ by 39 mi

Weakened by the e of Saturday's effort, the Trentonian entry dropped out of the race while The Intelligencer turned in an eight hour 25 minute time Sunday to increase their lead over CJBQ to five hours and 47 minutes.

All three members of the news media learned one lesson — it's a lot less physical strain to cover an event, especially a 60-mile canoe race, than it is to compete.

They also have a few souvenirs — mainly blisters, sunburn and a general stiffness of the body — to remind them of their foolhardiness.

Distaff Paddlers Do Well

TRENTON (Staff) — The fourth annual Trent - On - Waterways Canoe Race was distinguished by the presence of two Trenton women.

"We just wanted to show that it could be done," said Donna Bird and Shirley Reid after completing the 60 - mile two - day voyage down the Trent waterway.

"We had a ball," the girls added. And in doing so they turned in a creditable performance by registering a time of 18 hours and 11 minutes — good for 18th place in the field of 20 teams.

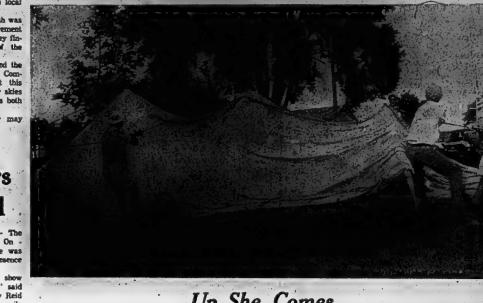
Shirley, who at 34 is the mother of four children, admitted, "We entered for the fun of it."

Donna, 26 and the mother of two children, added "We didn't care what position we had as long as we finished."

Sunday evening Donna admitted "It was tough today and the only thing that kept us going at the finish was determination."

Surprisingly the girls claimed that the portages in which they had to carry their canoe around the locks were not the most difficult portion of the race.

They felt that the portages offered relief from the boredom and discomfort of canoeing.



"The wind was hardest on us," Shirley said Sunday evening after the pair had battled stiff winds on Rice Lake during the second 30 - mile leg of the race.

For their efforts, the lone female entry received special prizes by the race's sponsor, the Trenton Chamber of Commerce.

The girls did encounter one hitch in the race — their canoe was waterlogged Saturday evening after the initial 30 - mile leg and had to be replaced by a lighter, more waterproof model.

Accompanying the girls down the river were husbands Wayne Bird, who placed seventh, and Paul Reid, who took ninth place.

At present the girls are undecided about next year but they did say, "We m... go again."

Up She Comes

Canoeists and volunteers strain to hoist up this huge Boy Scout tent Friday evening at Serpent Mounds Provincial Park on Rice Lake. The large canvas tent served as sleeping quarters and meeting place Friday and Saturday nights for the 40 competitors in the two-day Trent-On-Waterways canoe race.

OWRC Meeting to Discuss Area Water, Sewage Services

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Elected representatives from 12 Quinte district municipalities will meet Tuesday with officials of the Ontario Water Resources Commission to discuss possible area water and sewage services.

The meeting is called for 1 p.m. at Centennial Secondary School.

Invited to the meeting are the townships of Sidney, Thurlow, Ameliasburg, Hillier, Murray and Brighton, along with the villages of Brighton, Wellington, Frankford and Stirling the town of Trenton and, the city of Belleville.

Possible setting up of an area board for sewer and water services will be one of the main items on the agenda, while it is also expected that specific projects may also be discussed.

Last fall, when the extension of sewers from Belleville to Thurlow and Sidney township was being discussed, OWRC chairman D. J. Collins said that provision of area water and sewer services could be best managed by an area board.

One of the topics for discussion at Tuesday's meeting could be a proposal to supply water to the area from Lake Ontario, rather than from individual sources.

Three years ago the OWRC came up with a plan to pipe in water from Lake Ontario to serve Belleville and Trenton and areas townships, but on the basis of cost, the proposal was turned down by a majority of the municipalities.

At that time the project, estimated to cost in the area of $15 million, would have boosted the cost of water in Belleville users to 70 or 75 cents per 1,000 gallons, depending upon whether filtered water was delivered to a new reservoir or to the present filtration plant.

If raw lake water was delivered to the city filtration plant, the cost would have been an estimated 62 cents per 1,000 gallons, or about $31 annually for the average user.

The Public Utilities Commission at the time opted in favor of extending the present filtration plant at an estimated cost of $1,600,000, resulting in a cost for water of 43 cents per 1,000 gallons to city users.

Under the OWRC proposal of 1967, the cost of water to Sidney township would have been $1.54 per 1,000 gallons exclusive of the cost of the necessary distribution system.

In rejecting the proposal, the Belleville PUC suggested the OWRC review its proposal to consider possible increased provincial assistance to the scheme and thus reduce the cost to local users.

Early in 1968 the OWRC informed council that it was unable to make any further reduction in the cost of lake water for city users.

Since then the public utilities commission has gone ahead with plans for extension of the present filtration plant and tenders have been called for the project.

These tenders are now being held up awaiting the outcome of Tuesday's discussions regarding an area board.

"We are waiting to see what happens," said E. L. Burnham, PUC manager.

"There is no use spending a couple of million dollars (on a filtration plant extension) if we are not going to need the facility in another five years."

As far as the city is concerned, either pipeing water in from Lake Ontario or extending the present filtration plant to use lake water is going to cost money.

If lake water is piped in the PUC would have to provide pumping equipment and watermains and possibly a new reservoir.

Last fall the city and Thurlow township agreed to an OWRC proposal for the extension of sewer service from Belleville into Thurlow township.

The proposal was that the OWRC would construct the trunk sewer up the bed of the Moira River and into Thurlow township, and charge back the cost to the two municipalities on a use basis.

The OWRC is currently constructing a sewage plant addition in Belleville, to provide additional primary treatment capacity and also provide secondary treatment facilities.

Sand Tunnel Collapses, Holidayer in Shock

WEST LAKE (Staff) — A Toronto man vactioning in Prince Edward County was rushed to hospital yesterday afternoon after being rescued from near suffocation in a sand tunnel which he had been digging in the dunes at West Lake.

A spokesman for the Ontario Provincial Police said Reni Waldvogel, 25, 245 Pacific Ave., Toronto, was buried completely for about eight minutes when the tunnel he had scooped out suddenly collapsed. Holidayers nearby worked swiftly to dig Mr. Waldvogel out of the sand and he was revived at the accident scene.

An ambulance summoned from Belleville took him to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital where he was reported to be in shock last evening.

Although the accident occurred in sand dunes in the area of the Sandbanks, it did not take place in Sandbanks Provincial Park.

The Middle-Aged

Much is made today of the two extremes of society — the teenage generation on the one hand and the elderly or senior citizens on the other. But what about the middle-aged, and does life really begin at 40?

Blue Cross gives some answers in an interesting little booklet is has published entitled "Generation in the Middle". In a foreward it has this to say: "Middle age is as distinct an age in human development as childhood or youth. For life has been stretched out by medicine, thanks to advances and improvements in medicine, nutrition and living and working conditions. Yet lengthened middle age is so recent a phenomenon that we do not understand all it implies for individuals or society.

"The need for understanding of the years from 40 to 65 — and how to get the most out of them — is accentuated by the fact that these are the prime years of our lives; this is a time when you are old enough to know, young enough to do, and capable enough to assume the duties inherent in authority."

Although distributed by Ontario Blue Cross the book was published in the United States. It is attractively illustrated with color pictures showing the representatives of the different generations. There is one shot of a crowd of people attired for a rainy day. They may be watching a liftoff a Cape Kennedy, for in the centre foreground, and unidentified, is President Nixon — looking very much a man of the people — like those around him — and yet somehow distinctive too. And that extra "something" we suppose is how presidents are born.

Voice from the Past

The young people hip on today's eccentric beat may not have heard of him. After all he is a relic from the 78 days — in record parlance —and you know how stand is the offerings on Syracuse's daily 78's presentation sound. But anyway, Stan Kenton is alive and well and has been performing in Toronto; and the 58-year-old jazz band leader from Wichita, Kansas, now on the road again after years of playing the west coast scene, takes a pretty jaundiced view of his medium today.

"The music business is in a depressing mess," he to.l The Globe and Mail's Jack Batten. His comments got gloomier as he went on: "The wh.le thing is upside down. The record companies don't like record stores take over and call the shots about the music that gets made, and those guys are just rack jobbers who don't give a damn about music. It could be any piece of merchandise to them.

"So what has happened is that the music scene is debased. The only products that reach the public are geared for the 8-year-old mind. But you cannot tell me that the public really wants the junk that comes and reaches the push at them. The only reason people buy it is because nobody gives them a chance to hear anything else."

Kenton complains that although he has a great band he cannot sell a record "because nobody gets a chance to hear what I'm doing." However, he has launched his own private mail-order business and it is a case of a fellow being his own best friend.

Just the same, we would have to take issue with the veteran band leader's contention that the record stores in effect do not care what they sell. In our experience, and this goes for the local scene too, there is a wide variety of music available, from rock to the classics.

As for the radio stations, both Canadian and American, they are of course orientated heavily on the side of the modern stuff. In our experience, this goes in one ear and out the other and is about as inspiring and memorable as a rainy day in November. We would like to hear more variety, a wider range of performers — yes, we would like to hear Stan Kenton and something of the choral delights of artists like Norman Luboff We would like to hear the world's great symphony orchestras. We could go on, but essentially the idea is that we need greater dimension in what is being put out over the air.

The Bay Scene

Remember the days of the paddle wheelers . . . trips to Massasaga and all that? Well it was before our time, but seeing the cruisers and the yachts out there in the bay it occurs to us that pleasure trips could be popular today too, particularly for those who are not boat owners themselves. They have them in the Thousand Islands — from Brockville, Rockport and Gananoque — so why not here?

Police Film Brings It Home

The Horror Behind Those Accident Statistics

Ken Scott in the Cornwall Standard Freeholder

A woman's cry of agony ripped through a city hotel recently while 30 horrified businessmen looked on helplessly.

The woman's face had been crushed twice across the mouth. She cried out frantically as two Ohio State patrolmen gently laid her on a stretcher.

Other cries could be heard in the background, from people still trapped inside the wreck.

This was all happening on film, but had happened nevertheless.

The film, shown at the Cornwall Kiwanis Club luncheon, was "shot on location".

It was a police film, photographed in living color at the scenes of accidents, moments after police arrived.

Police photographers often record the grisly details of a wreck for investigation purposes later on. Some censors have been combined into a brief, American-made documentary entitled Mechanical Death.

The documentary is shown to all Royal Canadian Mounted Police recruits and to service clubs. In some cases, it is also shown to senior high school students.

It was shown here by Constable Ray Jodoin, safety officer with the Cornwall Police traffic division.

"I am not trying to make you sick, gentlemen, but if anyone here has a weak constitution, . . . be warned.

Why was he showing it, then? "I want to relay this message," he told the meeting. "We need help.

"Parents, please help by dressing your children in bright colors at night and teaching them to walk facing traffic.

"Drivers, please obey speed limits. And never drive with a small child standing on the seat beside you. A sudden stop, and the child can die," said Const Jodoin.

Lock your car, he emphasized. "You could be contributing to a serious accident by enabling someone to steal your car for a joy-ride."

He then asked the men to group their chairs around the screen.

Const. Jodoin flipped on the projector and the movie started at once. Cries of excruciating agony filled the room for several seconds as the camera probed inside the wreck. Everyone in the room froze. The movie was obviously going to have impact.

The cries faded out. The agony on the screen became silent — a little easier to endure.

"Take time to think," droned a slow distinct voice.

"Before you drive, remember that you are responsible for all your actions and reactions while operating a car."

One by one, a dozen fatal and near-fatal wrecks were shown in close-up. The film had been shot at the moment police arrived to haul out the victims, most of whom, the voice emphasized, hadn't taken time to think.

One shot showed the corpse of a truck driver who "had been driving too fast for conditions." Another showed a red sports car which had gone into a skid at 110 miles per hour.

The scene switched to a wreck in which a body was sandwiched between what looked like two halves of an engine.

"Speed is relative. It's what comes with it that kills," said the voice.

The three variables in any accident are the driver, the car, and the car, said Const. Jodoin.

Mainly through enforcement of laws, traffic engineering and driver education can accidents be prevented, he said. "And common sense," he added.

"It's common sense to use a mechanic if you question any part of your car," he said.

"If you're becoming groggy at the wheel, find out why. It may be your muffler system leaking carbon monoxide."

For every two hours of expressway driving, a person should take 10 minutes to rest, goes the rule.

"Time to think," as the voice in the movie said.

Mechanized Death is one of those movies which is carefully shielded from the general public. Only police recruits and men's service clubs get to see it, and even then the demand is heavy.

What it shows, basically, are the bloody corpses of a score of total strangers, surrounded by the routine motions of patrolmen and ambulance attendants covering them up and hauling them away.

The initial effect of watching such a film is horrible and one shock, of course, but does it actually produce a more careful driver?

I saw it on the same day my car was having three new tires installed at a garage two blocks away. Somehow, paying for them didn't hurt a bit. I felt almost smug about it.

One of the accidents in the film had involved a weak front tire. It had blown, killing the driver in the aftermath.

I had put off replacing a front tire on my own car for a month. Now I'm wondering why.

Later that night, the commentary of the movie was well forgotten but the images were not. One by one my mind recalled them like a slide projector.

It was only then, several hours later, I started using a seat belt.

After that, what else can you do? Lock your door, drive under the speed limit — and pray.

On the highway, cars hurl themselves past each other separated by only a few feet.

If the other guy's right front tire blows, well . . . that's too bad, isn't it? (The accident in the movie involved an innocent car and ended in death at a whole family.)

With safety simply, just how wrong it is for anyone to shrug off attending to a mechanical defect until next payday.

It's not just risky, but wrong.

"Hello, room clerk – I understood this was the bridal suite!"

Heading for the Ultimate Tie-Up

Bruce West in Globe and Mail

Well, it doesn't look as though Leave Your Car at Home Week is turning out to be a huge success. Which is a pity, because it would have been interesting to find out see whether we could have managed to move around without the aid of our Firesplitter Eights with synchromatic fail - der-alls and triple - suspension rilli waws. It might also have been enlightening to discover how much the pollution count could be lowered by such an experiment. One thing seems certain. Some day we're going to have to find out who's boss. — people or the thundering herd of metal monsters which seem to have set us so firmly in their power that we spend vast sums of money on their purchase and upkeep, allow them to poison our atmosphere with their nasty, smelly breaths and knick down beautiful trees and charming old houses to widen the way for them. The ridiculous part of it is that, the way things are heading, we're all going to end up in one final, immovable traffic jam one of these days anyway, no matter how many new expressways and multiple - lane highways we may build. The confrontation between people and cars is going to have to come some time, so perhaps it would be better to have it sooner than later. I'm all for having it while we still have enough breath left to give a good account of ourselves. . . .

There seems no doubt that on this continent the automobile has become a kind of sacred thing, a status symbol, a sweetheart and, to some extent, a petulant master. People who object to having trees and interesting old houses torn down to make room for highway widening are looked on as some kind of nuts. King had the treatment not long ago and it looks as though Unionville is to be the next victim of the bulldozers and paving machines.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

July 27, 1950

The Sunday School auditorium of Bridge Street United Church created a delightful and inviting background f...ing for an enjoyable evening on Tuesday, when the members and adherents of Bridge Street Church, as well as many friends from Tabernacle United Church and the community, gathered to say farewell and extend good wishes to Rev. The first successful transatlantic cable was completed 104 years ago today — in 1866—with the landing of the 2,134-mile cable at Heart's Content, Nfld. The first cable, laid in 1858, failed three weeks later, but a second success was achieved that year when the cable that had parted while being laid the previous year was spliced and completed.

Culture and Sport in Search for New Image

U.S. Cities Fight Odds to Create 'Downtown Renaissance'

NEW YORK (AP)—After two decades of decline, neglect and disrepair, the downtown areas of many middle-sized American cities are trying to fight their way back to usefulness and respectability. A change in image and a change in function are the main weapons being used.

Like one-industry communities trying to diversify, the downtowns of these cities—500,000 or less in population—have been valiantly trying to change their role from primarily a regional shopping centre to a manifold attraction.

They have sought to become centres of physically striking office towers and homes for culture, government and special events, such as sports, exhibitions and conventions. And they have tried a myriad of ways to adapt their physical structure to the automobile.

But after a decade of rebuilding, which is still continuing, the complete results are not in. Many factors still operate against a downtown renaissance.

The high cost of owning urban land still drives home owners and businesses to the suburbs; intricate government procedures delay translating plans into reality; and fears of rising crime and possible racial conflicts deter suburbanites from coming into downtown even to go the theatre or restaurants at night.

When the flight to the suburbs caught them unprepared, and the suburban shopping centres stole their trade, many of the country's cities found they had little left to attract people.

To provide new lures, some have built cultural facilities, such as the dramatically designed $3,500,000 Everson Museum which opened last year in Syracuse, N.Y., soon to be joined by a performing art centre.

Nearly all have sought to capture the lure of special events in a civic centre-auditorium for sports, conventions or exhibitions.

Some have tried to renovate historic areas. At Church Street in Mobile, Ala., target of an $8,000,000 renewal plan, or the mid-Victorian houses of the Burns-Jackson area of Dayton, Ohio, to be renewed at a cost of $20 million. In Louisville, Ky., the whole thrust of a comprehensive $212,000,000 redevelopment plan is to bring the city back to its historic riverfront.

There are contradictions in the methods being used. On one hand, coast-to-coast boosts are being floated for more highways, more parking garages. On the other, cities such as Tulsa, Okla., Reading, Pa., Springfield, Ill., Richmond, Va., and Providence, R.I., already have closed off—or seek to—large areas, many former streets, to auto traffic. Here, they hope to duplicate the ability to walk to every type of store, as the suburban shopping centres allow.

And almost all have tried to replace the old with the new and build striking towers with unforgettable images.

Attracting suburbanites to downtown is still a difficult task.

In a copyright poll, the Des Moines Tribune found this year that seven out of 10 of the 150,000 adults in the Des Moines, metropolitan area would rather go to a suburban shopping centre than downtown.

Thus downtown retailers are trying to cater to the "built-in market of 40,000 to 45,000 people a day who work downtown," said James Ward, secretary of the Retail Merchants Bureau.

They are seeking more enclosed walkways to provide weatherproof passage for pedestrians and less conflict with cars.

In Portland, Me., a private study done for the Chamber of Commerce showed that retailing "should no longer be considered a primary function of downtown Portland." In 1958, downtown had accounted for 90 4 per cent of retail sales in the metropolitan area. By 1967, that figure had dropped to 57.1 per cent.

The threat of a shopping mall opening in 1971 outside town with more than 30 stores has overcome opposition to new parking facilities from private parking lot owners and the city is about to build a 600-car municipal garage downtown.

South's Thurmond Seems Bound for Reconciliation with Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Strom Thurmond appears headed for a reconciliation with President Nixon following a feud over proposed administration desegregation programs for the southern United States.

The South Carolina Republican said Sunday the president appears to have "repudiated the bad advice given to him by some aides and executive officers."

"Apparently, the president's good will and common sense won out," Thurmond said in a report to his constituents. But he said he would continue to watch the White House to see if administration attitudes really have changed.

Thurmond recently accused Nixon of breaking faith with the South because of an Internal Revenue Service ruling denying tax-exempt status to private schools and a justice department decision to send lawyers into the region to oversee school desegregation.

The senator warned Nixon in a July 16 Senate speech that the administration's desegregation policies could cost the president the White House in the 1972 election.

He attributed the desegregation plans to liberal White House advisers.

"I pointed out the dangers of keeping the wrong kind of advisers," Thurmond said.

The IRS, Thurmond said, has since granted tax exemptions to six southern private schools, and sent letters declaring an open-admissions policy would be sufficient to secure tax exemption in the future.

Nixon overruled the justice department, he said, and re-emphasized his support for textile import quota legislation.

"These are steps in the right direction, but we will be watching to see whether the administration changes the underlying attitudes being put forward by the crew of liberal advisers," he said.

In an earlier interview with The Associated Press, Thurmond cited Robert H. Finch, former secretary of health, education and welfare, and Senator K. Leonard, assistant attorney-general for civil rights, as two men the administration could do without.

The senator, instrumental in helping Nixon with the 1968 Republican presidential nomination, declined to say whether he will support Nixon again in 1972.

Thurmond maintains there is more racial segregation in many northern cities than there is in the entire state of South Carolina and says the South is treated unfairly in such matters.

Gate-crashers Plague Mariposa Folk Festival

TORONTO (CP) — Crashers who forced the organizers of the 1963 annual Mariposa Folk Festival to admit them free to the festival's final concert on Toronto's Centre Island Sunday night may have jeopardized the festival's future.

Michael Cooney, an entertainer at this year's festival, told crashers during the show that their actions could mean the end of the festival.

Dick Fiehl, Mariposa's public relations chief, said afterwards the organizers "are going to have to think very carefully" about future festivals.

Mr. Fiehl said about 1,000 persons were admitted free after 40 or 50 had disrupted the concert by swimming to the festival grounds across a narrow lagoon.

Both Mr. Fiehl and Mr. Cooney complained that the crashers weren't people who couldn't afford the $4 ticket to the festival, or people who cared about the music.

"It's all a game," said Mr. Fiehl, who added that a nearby yacht club "provided the most distinguished crashers," who came in boats to the festival site.

Mr. Cooney had also spoken to the audience about crashers the previous evening when a small number of swimmers distracted from the performance.

He explained that the festival was operated by the Toronto Guild of Canadian Folk Artists, a non-profit organization, and that none of the performers were super-stars commanding five- and six-figure fees for their appearance at the festival.

"I have a feeling that the people getting in without paying have a lot more money in their pockets than most of the performers here," he said.

Mariposa did not get its, the members of Sunday night's audience all seemed to appreciate the music by such performers as David Ree, James Taylor and Joni Mitchell, all of whom received standing ovations.

Mr. Taylor, a young singer discovered by the Beatles, and Miss Mitchell, the Fort Macleod, Alta., native whose folk-singing has been a regular Mariposa feature since 1965, were called back twice for encores.

Other performers taking part in the closing concert were Angus MacKinnon's Scots Canadians dance band; Alexandre Zelkin, singing in Russian, Yiddish, French and English; Irish singer Owen McBride, who was also the evening's host; Acadian folksinger Sara Grey, and Scottish singer Norman Kennedy, who performed entirely without musical accompaniment.

Hostels Crowded

TORONTO (CP) — Large numbers of transients and high unemployment are filling Toronto's hostels for men and packing their food lines.

Columban McGinty, director of the Good Shepherd Refuge on Queen Street east, said recently 450 to 500 men a day are being fed, compared to 200 a month ago.

The daily average of men helped by the Scott Mission on Spadina Avenue this month is 732—an increase of 150 from the daily average for the last six months, said David Zeldman, assistant director.

Charles Lane, weekend supervisor at the Fred Victor Mission on Queen Street east, said the mission's 125 beds are filled every night and some men have to be sent to the U.S. emergency shelter on George Street.

UN Issues Report

Experts Cannot Learn Cause of Crime

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A new United Nations report says that despite long investigation, the experts still do not know what causes crime.

"Despite the years of extensive and intensive study and research in many countries, the vital area causing crime still escape unequivocal, positive identification," says a paper prepared by the UN Secretariat.

"For nearly every factor known to be associated with delinquency, from 'broken homes' and mental deficiency to overcrowding, delinquent subcultures, child neglect and poverty, it is still possible to show at least as many young people subjected to such conditions who do not commit crime as those who do."

The paper is titled Social Defence Policies in Relation to Development Planning. It lists as "the main aspects of development which have been thought" potentially crime-inducing: Urbanization, industrialization," population growth, migration from farm to city and technological change.

Urbanization, it explains, means a more "uncontrolled children on the streets of a town" and "implies more opportunities for crime, with the risk of detection and a disturbing juxtaposition of affluence and poverty. . . ."

"The effect of industrialization on crime is said to be through other factors: . . . offering work to women who then may not be able to give proper care to their children . . . , young people being attracted to town when there is still not sufficient work to go around.

"Excessive population growth leads to crime by adding weight to the burden on the wage earner, overcrowding small houses, outgrowing school facilities. . . .

"However . . . most of these influences have provoked endeavor and greatness as well as delinquency. It depends on the person."

"Though crime in general grows as a country develops," the paper states, "the proportionate difference between male and female delinquency usually remains unchanged until the later phase of development and urban complexity, when female delinquency increases."

In those phases, too, come "the tremendous increase in drug trafficking and drug taking and the effect of this on the rise of other crimes because of the addicts' need to obtain funds for drugs."

"Mass communications and the development of a 'youth culture' in the world make it likely that this is a fashion which could cross frontiers easily. . . ."

The paper will be discussed at the fourth UN Conference on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, to be held in Kyoto, Japan, Aug. 17-26.

New York Congressman Says Lake Ontario Fish Not Safe

WASHINGTON (CP) — Urging that Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River be closed to commercial fishing, Congressman Richard L. Ottinger of New York released a laboratory report today which he said shows mercury contamination of fish exceeds by as much as 175 per cent the maximum safe limit.

Ottinger, a Democrat, said regular consumption of such fish could cause serious and permanent physical and neurological damage.

He called on New York's Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller, a Republican, to act immediately to protect public health by banning sale of fish from the waters, warning sports fishermen and the general public of the danger and halting further discharge of mercury waste into New York waterways.

The report prepared by the Environmental Health Laboratory of Farmington, Mich., showed an average concentration of 1.2 parts per 1,000,000 of mercury in bass taken from the northeastern edge of the lake at the headwaters of the St. Lawrence. Other sample fish showed lesser contamination, ranging down to .41 parts per 1,000,000.

U.S. food and drug administration has set the maximum safe level for mercury at .5 parts per 1,000,000, Ottinger said, while the World Health Organization has pegged the limit at .05 parts per 1,000,000.

Ottinger, a candidate for the U.S. Senate in November's elections, said he commissioned the private laboratory to analyze the fish tissue June 30 because of the "failure of the state to make public the results of its own studies."

Mercury is used by various industries, particularly those manufacturing paper and chemicals. When the mercury is discharged into waterways along with other chemicals it tends to concentrate in the flesh of fish and thus is passed on to humans who eat the fish. The element stays in the body for lengthy periods and can build up to poisonous levels if enough is consumed.

Cultural Storm To Grow Stronger

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP) — Society has seen the first waves of a cultural storm that will lead to a cultural hurricane, sociologist John Seeley told the Confederation conference this weekend.

"The assault ranges in form from violent insurrection through forays into radical politics to attempts to create islands like Berkeley or Yorkville."

Women's liberation, black power, student power, anti-war, legalization of drugs and similar movements do not represent what is truly in motion, Prof. Seeley said.

He described the over-all movement as a brotherhood of the oppressed.

He predicted that a counter revolution would reject calculative reason and the managerial set and embrace a love for the planet and later the universe.

Prof. Seeley, a former professor at York University, now teaches at the University of California.

He was the first speaker at the opening of the six-day annual conference. This year's topic is Love and the Establishment. About 100 persons are attending the conference, sponsored by the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs.

Policemen in Detroit Lead Hazardous Life

DETROIT (CP) — Policemen in Detroit are being shot at about once every two weeks, Detroit police reported Sunday. So far in 1970, two men are dead and 14 wounded.

Police said of 180 shots fired by police at persons so far this year, 22 distinct hits have been made, with one hit made for every 25 shots fired while giving chase. Police are currently confiscating 200 guns per week compared to about 100 per week in 1969.

The police department has increased firearms training and practice. A new position called firearms officer has been created.

Patrolman Carl Parsell, elected last week in Montreal to the presidency of the International Conference of Police Associations, said: "I don't want anyone to be shot unnecessarily, but it's becoming more important that the police officer be ready to defend himself and-or his partner."

On the other hand Patrolman Parsell, who also heads the Detroit Police Officers Association, said officers are getting apprehensive about ever taking their guns out of their holsters "because of citizen complaints" against police practices in the city.

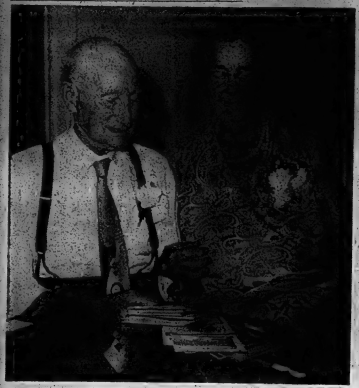
Oriental Theme

ROME (AP) — Based on a wedding of Japanese and Chinese costumes, Mila Schon's fall and winter collection is in the spirit of the Orient.

At the showing, many coats were wrapped like kimonos and had immense wide sleeves. And both dresses and tunics often had a diagonal side-closed bodice detail or the semi-circular yokes of Chinese robes. But if you took away the platter-sized coolie hats that dramatized the Oriental theme, you had polished Western chic.

The silhouette was slim, gliding easily over the figure. The length was approximately mid-calf. Almost half the collection was devoted to pants ensembles in some form — straight and narrow for long knickers, all coupled with overblouses that covered the hips.



Nearly every group drew applause, and there were shouts of "bravo" at the end of the showing as Miss Schon appeared on the runway.

Part of Mila Schon's success may have been due to the impact of her colors after all the muted plums, browns and greys of other collections. She combined black and white with a vivid Bristol blue, Ming turquoise with black or brown, a lacquer red cape over a black suit. And there were pants costumes in bright magenta.

Sinuous evening dresses appeared in space prints of bright blue or magenta on black silk.

A number of floor - length coats came close to classic kimonos. The show-stopper was a sparkling white kimono printed in vague big pink butterflies over a fluid slim pink sleeveless gown with a giant pink satin butterfly appliqued on one hip.

Successful Living

Hopeless Alcoholic Is Restored to Health

By DORIS CLARK

In many respects the history of "Al A." is the history of "the man, Bill W., As a young architect office he found himself and his wife caught up in the social life of a garrison town in wartime.

"There we were, projected among the society folk, of the town. For the first time in my life I was a leader." Again came that terrible feeling of inadequacy; that shy hatred of the spotlight more than two or three words in a row.

"Then one night someone handed me a cocktail. What magic! Down went that strange barrier that had always stood between me and the people around me. I could talk easily, I could command egos. Here was the missing link!"

Bill began using alcohol heavily and by 1934 it had completely dominated his life. He was declared hopeless. But then he talked with a friend who had been an alcoholic and had achieved sobriety through affiliation with the Oxford Group.

This was the start — and Bill got the idea of the therapeutic value of one drunk talking to another. He rebelled against "the God bit" but later in hospital again, he cried out: "If there is a God, let Him show Himself! I am ready to do anything — anything!" Bill describes what happened after that as a blinding flash of light, an exposure to the spiritual world, and no one the ways in which people try to explain a sudden and dramatic spiritual experience.

The rest is history. Alcoholics Anonymous now claims over 400,000 members. It has been the means of rescuing so-called powerless alcoholics from their plight. Dear Doris: Having lived through the same situation as "Hating Interference" myself, I can only offer my sympathy to that poor woman. You said, "the love they gave him makes him a loving person."

To whom! I feel that when he took on a wife he should be the one put first in all his love.

I believe in respect and consideration for all parents, but if a man isn't willing to cut the apron strings he has no business taking on a wife. I had 30 years of my husband petting his parents first in everything.

Some men want all the privileges of marriage and still cling to their mother's knee. Only someone who has lived through this situation can truly understand. I hope she reads this letter and stands firm. — A True Sympathizer.

Dear Sympathizer: I sympathize too. Time and again my effort has been to give a new wife spunk to stand her ground with possessive parents-in-law.

This time, it seemed to me nothing could be gained by decrying a husband the right to some contacts with his parents. They needs to be some give and take all round, and every situation differs.

* * *

Dear Doris: I wear slacks 365 days of the year. Now my son is being married and I need to know what kind of a dress to buy.

The bride's mother is going to wear something lacy. Would I have to wear a lacy dress too? I am not the frilly type and I am sure it won't suit me. Also, could I wear black accessories? I don't have much money to be able to wear a dress once for a wedding and a corner. — Not The Frilly Type

Dear Not Frily: No reason for lace. As the bride's mother have her spot in the sun. Choose an outfit which is both comfortable and becoming. A pretty cost-and-dress outfit would be ideal and could be worn later on.

Black accessories won't do — not for a wedding. Try to match your outfit or wear white.

Your Choice

You can use white or brown sugar when you are making a soft custard sauce. The brown sugar is a good choice when you are planning to serve the sauce with baked apples or pears.

Ann Landers

Woman's Hairy Arms Offend Her Friend

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband's business brings us in contact with many people from foreign countries. An attractive couple moved here from Italy recently. The woman is friendly, interesting, well groomed and beautifully dressed. I have seen her on four occasions. The first three times she was stunning. Last night I was appalled when she removed her jacket and exposed two very hairy arms. This bothered me so much I could scarcely keep my mind on the conversation. I mentioned it to my husband later and he said he had noticed it, too, but it didn't bother him.

ANN LANDERS

Should I tell the lovely lady that she can easily remove the hair with a depilatory or a wax treatment? It ruins her appearance and I'm sure she is unaware of it since hair is part of the culture in Italy. I believe it would be an act of friendship to tell her it's different in the U.S. Shall I say something? Yes or no? — CONCERN FOR ARTFUL SISTER

DEAR CON: Nto. As you pointed out, cultural patterns vary from country to country. In many parts of the world, American women's dependence on depilatories is considered something between laughable and neurotic. My advice is to keep quiet or you might set off an international incident.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 24-year-old teacher who thinks you were too hard on "Stymied." She was the 16-year-old girl who couldn't stand the rowdy, obnoxious boy her mother was pushing on her. You said she was probably, one of those dumb dames who is unable to appreciate a decent fellow and that she undoubtedly enjoyed getting pushed around.

Many young girls are bothered by this problem, Ann. Why do you assume these girls want to be mistreated? Isn't it possible that the fellow referred to doesn't happen to be the kind of gal who wrote? It's natural to feel uncomfortable when a guy cares more for you than you care for him. And the nicer the guy is, the guiltier the girl feels. Add to this the problem of a mother who is pushing the creep, at every opportunity and the situation becomes intolerable.

My mother used to give me a hard time because I refused to date fellows I didn't like. Her pet phrase was, "You don't have to marry him, you fool!" Her idea was that a girl should be seen dating so she can meet other boys who might ask her out. In other words, use the bore to lead you to somebody more groovy. I felt it was downright dishonest to exploit guys that way and I refused to do it.

I admire the girl who wrote to you, Ann. She is playing it straight. She said the guy was a dumdum and she didn't want to go out with him. Your answer was a disappointment — certainly not up to your usual standards. Was that answer written by an assistant when you were on vacation? — BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN: I agree with you. I blew it. Your advice is better than mine. Thank you for teaching me something today. Vacation or no, I write every word that goes under my byline. When I leave town the work is done in advance.

Smasmorkager Danish Pastries Treat

By MARY MOORE

This request drew a blank: "Would you have a recipe for 'Smorkager'? I believe this is a Danish pastry."

The letter was from Mrs. Mary McW. and I certainly had to put all of my sleuths to work on it because as it turned out the correct spelling is S-m-s-m-o-r-k-a-g-e-r. We discovered this because Mrs. Thompson, a Danish librarian in our east end branch, told us so and gave me the recipe.

I made them and took them to our annual curling club summer get-together and am proud of them. I am grateful, too, to Mrs. Mary McW. for her request.

So here is how to make your own "Danish".

SMASMORKAGER
(Danish Pastries)

1 pkge. granular yeast
1 tbsp. lukewarm water
½ tsp. sugar (first amount)
1 cup scalded milk
1 cup butter
½ cup sugar (2nd amount)
1 tsp. salt
4½ cups sifted all - purpose flour — divided
Grated yellow rind 1 lemon
4 egg yolks
Soaked and dried prune halves
Marmalade or red jam
Sugar for sprinkling top

In large beater bowl soak yeast and sugar (first amount) in lukewarm water 5 min. To scalded milk add butter, sugar (second amount), salt and cool to lukewarm. Add to risen yeast liquid along with 3 cups of the flour, grated lemon rind and egg yolks and beat for 5 min. Scrape down sides of bowl, cover and let rise three hours.

Punch down dough and flour board generously with 1 cup remaining flour, turn dough out on it and knead it in. The dough is, and should be, soft but you probably will need the last ¼ cup flour to prevent stickiness. Cut into 2½" rounds and place in buttered muffin tins. Make depression in centre and fill each with a soaked dried prune half or 1 tsp. thick marmalade or red jam. Brush with slightly beaten egg white and carefully sprinkle each with ¼ tsp. sugar. Let rise until doubled and well puffed. Bake at 400 deg. 6 min. Be sure to watch these carefully as they bake quickly.

Roll out remaining scraps of dough into a 12 x 14" square. Spread sparingly with apricot or pineapple jam or marmalade, roll up, and cut into 1" slices. Place cut side down on buttered cookie sheet, 2" apart and let rise and bake same as above. I had 30 medium - sized beautiful Danish pastries and I yearn for every baker in this Emeen sudiment to try them for they are a chef's triumph.

Points for Parents

Mother: "You know I don't like to nose upstairs and find your room in such a mess."

Son: "I had to clean up the yard today. I don't have time to do housework, too."

Start when a child is tiny to train him to pick up after himself automatically. When he is a teenager, expect him to do so, just as you expect him to brush his teeth or eat his meals. Other tasks should not absolve him from this responsibility.

Hollywood Busy Churning Out TV Shows

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This film capital is busily churning out the television programs that will constitute the bulk of the living-room entertainment during the fall and winter.

As of the end of last week there were 7 movies in production, 14 more than at this time last year.

While there are 65 theatrical films in the works, less than half are being turned out in this film capital. Thus, television dominates Hollywood, providing most of the work for actors and the behind-the-camera crews.

But Hollywood is feeling the economic pinch.

The visitor who arrives on a weekend—when the studios are shut down and the workers at home—can feel the nervous uneasy gripping the film community.

The squeeze on the television networks is especially painful. Not only are profits down and sales of time tougher to make, but they are facing the loss of cigarette sponsors—and as much as $220,000,000 a year in advertising revenues—at mid-season.

Besides that, the Federal Communications Commission wants to chop off one hour of evening time in which stations may broadcast network-owned programs; politicians want free or reduced rates for campaign-style time at peak hours of the day; and even attack for the content of their programs, particularly the use of violence.

In the future, there is the competitive threat of cable and subscription television as well as the use of tape cassettes which, enthusiasts believe, will ultimately turn individual TV sets into sophisticated record-players with pictures.

On the surface, however, it seems like business as usual in Hollywood. Most of the 107 shows in production are network programs—series and specials. There are fewer new series to be launched in September than usual: 21 instead of the usual 30 or more.

On the economy side, there is talk of fewer specials, of budget cuts which reduce the size of mob scenes, reduce if not eliminate expensive location shooting away from the studio, and of encouraging the use of less expensive guest stars.

Among the new series are eight situation comedies, four variety shows, including Red Skelton's half-hour on NBC, and 18 dramas.

The major networks are still wooing the young. (18-to-35) viewers, so the emphasis is on series about young people. In the drama category, it appears that the success of ABC's Mod Squad has been so impressive that we will soon be watching shows about young lawyers (two different series), young doctors and young rebels—of the 1776 vintage.

There's even a name for them —Now dramas.

Starving for Major Golf Win Homenuik Takes Alberta Open

EDMONTON (CP) — Stan Homenuik, a 30-year-old professional golfer with a hunger for a major tournament win, captured the $5,000 Alberta Open golf championship Saturday.

Homenuik, of Dauphin, Man., fired a three-under-par 68 on three strokes better than Bill Wright Jr., Ontario Open champion. Wright, of Edmonton, had a one-stroke lead heading into the final round of the 54-hole tournament.

Bob Bradburn Jr., an Edmonton amateur, finished a 212 and was followed by professionals Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver and Neil Green of Calgary, each with 213.

Defending champion Bob Cox Jr. of Vancouver and a 20-year-old professional, Tom Moryson, also of Vancouver, tied at 214.

Homenuik, a professional for nine years, hadn't had a big win since he took the Saskatchewan Open several years ago. He received $1,200 for his Alberta Open victory.

"I came close lots of times," he said, "but I always blew it." He had a 72 and a par 70 on the opening round Thursday and was the only contender for the tournament. Suddenly, he appeared as a serious challenger with a second-round three-under 67.

Homenuik took the lead from Wright early in the final round, scoring birds the first three holes.

Wright, who carded a second round 65, was the leader on the course record, was never more than three strokes down but couldn't pick up enough birdies on the final nine holes.

"I think it was the good start," said Homenuik. "The first two days I was afraid of those first holes. I have not had a good start in a long time."

Wright said he missed a couple of shots on the front nine but "I was in the hunt when I got later: "I just wasn't getting the putts."

Bradburn and Vollmer both came from behind to overtake Cox and Moryson. Neither could record 65, the best day's score in the course in the first two rounds, but the amateur shot a 67 and Vollmer a 68 on the last day.

Moryson was in a good spot for a win with rounds of 68 and 70 but took a 74 in the final round. Cox finished four over.

He and Moryson pocketed $350 each in prize money. Vollmer and Green received $550 each and Wright $800.

The tournament also decided the three remaining spots on Alberta's interprovincial Willingdon Cup team. Doug Silverberg and Keith Alexander, both of Calgary, and Bradbury were the berths. Harold Pasechnik of Calgary won a place on the team during earlier rounds played before the Open.

Trainmen Roll Pair of Sevens

The Belleville Trainmen Peewees won a pair of unlucky sevens over the weekend as they dropped a 7-1 game to Oshawa on Saturday and a 7-3 decision to Peterborough on Sunday.

Dave Fluery fired the Oshawa win fanning one and walking eight. Dan Tureski with a double and a single and Gary Lewis with two singles led the Motor City crew at the plate.

Billy Whalen toed the Belleville mound giving up five walks while striking out six. Paul Weeks and Mike Burke with two singles apiece were the best for Belleville.

The Peterborough victory was picked up by Dan Eastman who fanned four and walked two. John Gourley had two singles and a double and Kevin Tyndall had three singles to pace the home team at bat.

Brian Turner was touched with the loss for Belleville while fanning six and walking only one. Tony Meagher with two singles and a double and Roger Lapp with three singles led the Trainmen hitters.

British Marksman Bucks Wind In Queen's Prize

BISLEY, England (CP) — A British rifle manager-coach has secured a gusting wind at the Commonwealth rifle shoot Saturday to win the Queen's Prize.

George Arnold, 54, of Shrewsbury, England, finished with a 288 of a possible 300 points as the Queen's Hundred bucked a sidewinder blow that drifted bullets as much as five feet off of the targets at Bisley's Stickledown range.

Earlier Saturday eight Canadians had fired their way into the Queen's Hundred. Arnold Parks, 40, of Saint John, N.B., was the top Canadian with a fifth-place finish—six points behind Arnold.

Parks, who won the Queen's two years ago, is an auditor in the tax division of the national revenue department. He was born in Moncton, N.B., but was educated at Saint John.

The next Canadian behind Parks was Gunnar Westling, 63, of Coquitlam, B.C. Westling, located in Sweden, finished with a 286 to 13th place. He won the Queen's in 1960.

"It was real rough shooting," said Parks after he met and other Bisley veterans agreed this was one of the toughest Queen's Prize days in years.

"I guess I lost it at the 600 yards," Parks said. He had a 41 out of a possible 50 there. He shot more strongly at the 900- and 1,000-yard distances but was unable to pick up more than 45 points.

Col. Tom Hall of Port Moody, B.C., commandant of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association team, put it simply as he watched the shooters' troubles with the shifting wind.

"It's a day to be with 256: Don Morris, Sittsville, Ont., 255 for 278th; Jake Butterfield of Alliston, Ont., 251 for 92nd; Bill Lightburn of Mission City, B.C., 249th for 97th; and Barry Baker, Moose Jaw, Sask., who brought up the rear by finishing up in 100th place with 241.

One of the Canadian cadets almost made the classy 100. He was Brian Hall, son of the DCRA commandant. He shot his way into the Queen's Three Hundred last week but narrowly missed out in a shoot-off Saturday for the select group.

Ship Cuts Pipeline

LONDON (Reuters) — A huge burning oil slick drifted down the Thames River today after a Spanish freight and passenger ship sliced an oil pipeline while it was putting into dock.

More than 100 firemen fought the blaze from the river bank as it flowed out to sea on the outgoing tide, setting ablaze floating cranes, barges and smaller craft moored in its path.

The 10,123-ton Bilbao-registered Monte Ulia, with 159 passengers aboard, was manoeuvring into position at a Thameside wharf near Canvey Island, east of London, early today when it crashed into a refinery jetty. There were no injuries.

The crash ripped away the main oil pipeline. Five broke out and tons of crude oil which poured into the Thames were set ablaze within seconds.

Mosquitoes Meet Match

The Belleville Golden Mile Mosquitoes finally met their match Sunday as they dropped an 8-run decision to a 12-run round game to Toronto City 3-0.

The Mile held the bigger and stronger Toronto team to one good until within 10 minutes of the final whistle, then a defensive lapse allowed the host team to score two quick goals.

Tony Sisco turned in a standing game in the Belleville net, deflecting numerous Toronto scoring attempts.

Peewees Finish with Two Wins

Foster's Thurlow Peewees picked up two impressive victories in their final games of the regular season over the weekend. Both trained - out games were important to the final positioning of the club in the standings.

On Saturday they travelled to Orono where they bounced the home team 5-2. The winning game was the winning pitcher blasting third strikes past 11 batters. Dave Lloyd with three singles and Holgate and Ted Foster had two doubles each for the surfers' attack.

Sunday afternoon saw Foster's bomb Cobourg, 10-4. Ted Foster chalked up the final game win. Farley Vader, Brian Masterson, Terry Holgate and Bruce McDonnell all had doubles for the winners.

RIGHT KNEE FLEX

A stiff right knee will upset your balance, cause a fast of clubhead speed (and distance) and probably forces your right shoulder (apogrophy out on the downswing.

At address, soak your right knee slightly toward the target. See that it is nearly flexed. Now, as you swing back don't let your right knee stiffen. Keep it flexible and ready for action. The body will coil around your flexed right knee on the backswing. Then on the downswing it should move toward the target. This helps you release your right side and will increase your clubhead speed at impact.

Von Rudder Unhappy With Win

TORONTO (CP) —Tom Von Rudden of South Lake Tahoe, Nev., won the feature midget race at the annual police games Saturday but was not satisfied.

"I'm sure I had two seconds better in me than that," he said after finishing in 2:37.4 and a comfortable lead over Peter Kaal of South Africa, who had 4:07.8. Mike McCann of Hamilton, was third in 4:07.5.

Von Rudden, who set a world record for the 1,000 yards two weeks ago and United States records in the 1,000 metres a week later, said he was disappointed with his 3:55 to break the Canadian record of 3:55.3 set in Vancouver by American Jim Grelle.

Paul Drysdale of Orillia set a Canadian record in the midget 1,500 metres when he finished second in an open event in 4:01.2. Ralph Ford of Toronto won the race for four minutes.

Ron Wallingford of Sudbury won the marathon over a field of 150 competitors. Paul Mowatt and Bruce Kidd, both of Toronto, finished second and third respectively.

'Silent' Knight Speaks Out

North Bendale second-sacker Phil "Silent" Knight fouls this bunt attempt off against Cobourg in the A Championship game. Phil was instrumental in his team's winning of the tournament, the third year in a row for Bendale, and was justly rewarded the Most Valuable Player trophy.

North Bendale Bantams Take Fourth Tourney

North Bendale continued the monopoly of local softball tournaments Saturday as the Toronto team swept aside all opposition to take the annual bantam tournament.

Bendale took the tournament with a 10-3 victory over Cobourg in the 'A' Championship game. The victory kept the red and white cuad teams streak intact as this was the third year in a row they have captured the trophy.

This was the fourth tournament we've entered this year and the fourth 'A' Championship we've won," states B e n d a l e coach Dave Scott. "This was a well run tournament and we always seem to have good luck here. This is the third year in a row we've taken it. We hope to be back next year."

The Bendale - Cobourg final saw the Toronto team take an early 3-0 lead but Cobourg came back to tie it in the fourth. Then the Bendale squad showed their hitting form as they roared back for seven unanswered runs.

Another winner for North Bendale was Phil Knight; the lanky second baseman won the most valuable player award for his outstanding performance. This is the second tournament Phil has won the MVP award. He took it in Oshawa last week. I'm really happy for him and he deserved very bit of it," remarks coach Scott.

In the 'B' Championship Richmond Hill outslugged Tweed 12-7 to take the title.

Belleville bantams bowled out with losses to Oshawa and Tweed.

Full game details are not available as further information was not reported to The Intelligencer by the organizers of the tournament.

Dolphins Take to Water

Regina Sulit and Bonnie Page took the top two spots in the Senior Girls section, while Bruce Lowry and Mike Pearson did likewise in the Junior Boys competition.

Next weekend, Peterborough and Trenton took part in the meet. The Belleville mini competition will be this coming weekend when they take part if the Lake Ontchicling three-mile swim.

Riverview Drivers Race Past Half-Way Point

The half - way mark was attained at last weekends Riverview Speedway and with it the races for the different trophies are tighter than ever.

George Petillgril leads in the Silver Piston category with 562 points followed closely by Sam Dingman and Bill Cooney with 500 points. The Silver Piston goes to the best driver of the year.

John Sinclair has the lead in the checkered flag grouping having crossed the finish line first 11 times. Dan Reid and Larry Stacey follow with ten victories apiece.

On the racing card the six cylinder qualifying heats went to Cliff Herrington and Don Dafoe both winners for the first time. The eight cylinder qualifying races were won by Bob Prudhomme and Jim Edgar.

In the six cylinder feature John Sinclair survived two yellow caution lights and the subsequent shakeout from first to second to come back and take the race.

Bob Prudhomme took the eight cylinder feature taking the lead with five laps to go and not relinquishing the spot.

Larry Stacey and Prudhomme battled through the Super Feature with Stacey emerging victorious.

June Simpson, new to the Riverview track, won the Powder Puff defeating eight other-entries.

Juniors Win 4-3

No-Hitters Lost

A pair of almost no - hitters highlighted the Kinsmen Juniors - Little Britain game at Carnilton Sunday afternoon but Belleville jumped on the visitors miscues to take the game 4-3.

Junior hurler, Terry McTaggart lined a - hit ball until the top of the ninth until a threee run outburst by Little Britain forced him out of the game. Meanwhile Osbourne on the visitors mound had a no - hitter until the bottom of the eighth but seven errors by his teammates sealed his defeat.

McTaggart picked up five strikeouts while issuing six free passes before being relieved by John Noakes in the ninth. Noakes gave up one hit and one walk in picking up the save for the Juniors.

Little Britain's, Osbourne finished with a one - hitter while fanning six and walking an equal number.

Lion's Roar Back to Gain Tie

The Belleville Lions Midgets came from behind Sunday to earn a 5-4 tie with their Kendal Juvenile opponents.

Kendal jumped off to an early lead courtesy of back runs by West and Robinson in the first inning. Dave Smith's homer for Belleville in the bottom of the opening frame narrowed the Kendal lead. Everett in the field gave the visiting club runs in the second, eighth and ninth. The Lions kept pace though scoring on back-to-back singles by Dale Bamber and Dan Lupenette in the seventh; Brian Cousin's run scoring triple in the eighth and Paul Wade's clutch triple in the bottom of the ninth to tie the score.

Carm McCaffrey and Dale Bamber worked the Belleville mound duties giving up ten hits. Four errors by their teammates allowed three unearned runs for Kendal.

Ledrerqor and Mercer gave up only three hits for Kendal.

Games Witness Share Of Offbeat Moments

EDINBURGH (CP) — Jocelyn Lovell of Toronto was awarded a lap of honor go a tricycle during the clowning that marked the close of the Commonwealth Games Saturday.

It was his most uneventful ride of the week. He didn't win a medal, he didn't get disqualified and he didn't fall off.

All of those things happened to Lovell before he won a gold medal in the 10-mile race Friday, topping off his collection of three medals in cycling competition. Other athletes also had their offbeat moments.

Weightlifter Russ Prior of Hamilton, Ont., couldn't remember he had a birthday—his first—in June when someone asked his age after he hoisted a total of more than 1,000 pounds to win the heavyweight gold medal.

Two heavyweight wrestlers fought twice, gained 16-ice and still won bronze medals. And a 16-year-old Indian schoolboy won the light flyweight gold medal, defeating 19-y e a r - o l d Ken Shand of Toronto in their final bout. Officials tried earlier to toss Ved Prakash out of the tournament because of his age.

Ron Clarke of Australia was in the doghouse for a spell for leaving the training camp a few days before he was beaten in both the 5,000 and 10,000 metres by Scotsman Ian Stewart.

There were hassles over lane assignments for the swimming events, Canadians and others complained over the starting horn, and a British swimming official retorted their gripes were "tripe."

A dog bite didn't keep Bill Mahoney of New Westminster B.C., from winning three swimming gold medals. The Queen presented him with his first gold and in return he gave her a team badge.

George Smith of Edmonton said he prefers to swim at night but he won the first of two first gold medals in daylight.

Wives and husbands had their differences. University lecturer Howard Payne won the hammer throw for England. His wife Rosemary competed for Scotland and won the discus.

Sue Whetnall of England helped beat husband Paul for the bronze medal in the badminton mixed doubles and said: "We certainly never feel sorry for each other."

Kipchoge Keino's death threat bothered everybody but Keino. Nothing happened except that Kip won the 1,500 metres and was soundly beaten in the 5,000 by Stewart, a longtime fan of the Kenyan police inspector.

Then there was the case of the British Columbia heavyweight lifter who went to bed thinking he had won a bronze medal.

Jack Meda of Prince George, B.C., was disqualified for excessive holding in his semi-final. Among the things the officials wouldn't let him hold was the bronze that usually goes to a losing semi-finalist.

Canada Claims Share Of Commonwealth Glory

EDINBURGH (CP) — An old man of 30 and a 21-year-old rookie shared the limelight at the ninth Commonwealth Games.

Mike Wenden, the world's fastest swimmer, packed four gold medals and headed home to Australia today to decide whether to compete in another Olympic Games in 1972 at the ripe old age of 22.

And Ian Stewart, who had travelled north from Birmingham to represent his native Scotland, defeated two of the most famous runners in the world in the 5,000 and 10,000 metres at an age when most distance men are still well short of their prime.

On the female side there was a pair of 17-year-olds. Karen Moras of Australia won all three of her swimming events and was furious with herself because she broke only one world record doing it. Marilyn Neufville was in tears with British track officials for skipping a European meet in order to set a world mark for Jamaica at the Games.

The Canadian team had its share of the glory.

It won 65 medals, more than ever before, including some in unexpected places like the cycling track and the badminton court.

Beverly Boys of Pickering, Ont., established herself as the diving queen of the Commonwealth, leading 1-2-4 Canadian finishes in both springboard and lower competition and topping off her male team-mates to silver and bronze medals in the men's springboard event.

Bill Mahoney of New Westminster, B.C., was bitten by a dog a few days before the Games opened. But nobody nipped him in the pool as he won both his breaststroke events and swam a leg in Canada's victorious 400-metre medley relay.

The wrestling team, moving down to less than the world championships in Edmonton earlier this month, got a gold medal from Ed Millard of Delta, City, Ont., and eight more medals in other divisions. As usual, most of the gold went to India and Pakistan.

Australia, beating off a determined challenge by the Canadian swimmers and divers, took 20 of the 35 prizes in the pool to Canada's 11 and won the most gold medals over-all. 36 to England's 27 and Canada's 18.

In the unofficial point standings, compiled on a 10-5-4-3-2-1 basis for the first six final placings, Australia led with 644 points to 631 for England and 506 for Canada.

Although it was basically a three-country show, o t h e r s made inroads in some competitions.

The Africans clobbered their opponents in all but three weight classes in boxing. Jamaica swept the men's sprints and Kenya took over at the middle distances. Tiny Hong Kong won its first gold medal in lawn bowling.

Canada picked up three gold medals in track and field, the same number as in 1966, from Dave Steen and George Puce of Toronto in the shot put and discus and Debbie Brill of Nanoy, B.C., in the women's high jump.

But the high drama on the track was reserved for Saturday's 5,000 metres—a clash between Stewart and veteran Kipchoge Keino of Kenya.

Each sought his second gold medal after Stewart's victory in 13:00 minutes and Keino's triumph in the 1,500. A semi-mental favorite was 33-year-old Ron Clarke, the Australian who had held 19 world records and never won an Olympic or Commonwealth Games gold medal and had lost to Stewart in the 10,000.

Nine men were still in the race until Stewart and Keino put on a burst at the start of the final lap. A second Scot, Ian MacCafferty, stayed a short distance behind.

Keino, a double winner in 1966, stayed on Stewart's heels until the final turn, when he dropped back as MacCafferty nearly caught his team-mate with his closing drive. Keino took the third-place bronze medal and Clarke was fifth.

The winning time of 13 minutes 22.8 seconds has only been exceeded once, when Clarke set the world record of 12:16.6 four years ago.

The Australians won 10 events in track and field to England's seven.

But England was nowhere in the pool, where its 1966 bag of nine got4 medals shrank to one.

Canada's medal winners, most of them trained at United States Universities, won eight medals in Australia's seven.

In addition to Mahoney's breaststroke victories and the medley relay, George Smith of Edmonton won the 200 and 400 individual medleys; Byron MacDonald of Chicago and Tom Arusoo of Montreal took the 100 and 200 butterfly and Bill Kennedy of London, Ont., the 100 backstroke.

The women's team, which got five golds in 1966, four of them from the retired Elaine Tanner of Vancouver, settled for one this time, from Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., in the 100 freestyle.

Australia's Don Wagstaff helped Miss Boys defeat England of its four 1966 diving titles by taking the two men's events.

England picked up gold elsewhere, winning six of the seven events in fencing, three out of five in badminton and two out of three in lawn bowling.

Jamie Paulson of Calgary was an upset winner of the badminton men's singles and joined with Yvon Pare of Montreal to take a bronze in men's doubles. Canada had only a silver medal when the competition was introduced at the 1966 Games.

Jocelyn Lovell of Toronto won the 10-mile race for Canada's first cycling gold medal since 1934, as well as a bronze in the 10,000-metre time trial and a silver, with Barry Harvey of Montreal, in the 7,000 metre tandem.

Heavyweight Russ Prior of Hamilton, Ont., was the only outsider to born in as England and Australia split the other eight championships in weightlifting. Middle heavyweight Bob Santavy of Sarnia, Ont., got a silver medal and heavyweight Price Morris of Frankford, Ont., and middleweight Pierre St. Jean of Lachine, Que., won bronzes.

Canada's Team Makes Biggest Haul Ever

The largest Canadian team to compete in a British Commonwealth Games brings home the biggest haul of medals—for the country since the competition started 40 years ago.

Australia won the unofficial team championship, barely nosing out England, but the third-place Canadian squad, scored more points than any of its predecessors.

The 182-strong Canadian team totalled 506 points after eight days of competition in 121 events at the 1966 Commonwealth Games.

The points are awarded on the traditional but unofficial scoring system of 10 points for a gold-winner and five for a silver, with fewer points for lower placings down to sixth.

The Canadian team's 18 gold, 24 silver and 21 bronze medals at the Games accounted for 362 points.

Canadians finished fourth in 18 events, and more often than not missed a third-place bronze by a fraction of a second. But their p l a c i n g s, worth three points each, brought another 54 points into the kitty.

Nineteen finished fifth—a two-point placing—and another 22 each picked up singletons for sixth.

As in all past Games, the Aussies and English waged their usual battle for domination of the competition. This time the Aussies, piling up 27 gold, won the team title with 644 points. England was only a gold and silver away with 631.

Dash Record Undetermined

Commonwealth Games record holders for the 100-metre dash won't be known for at least another four years.

The sprinters ran a bit faster at the ninth Games in Edinburgh that ended last week. But they were speeded on their way by a stiff tail-wind that blew their times right out of the record book.

Since no one ever ran the distance at the Games until they switched to the metric system this year, the winner of the first heat of the preliminaries at Christchurch, N.Z., is guaranteed at least temporary possession of the record if the wind is right.

The track athletes had Games records to shoot at in the 3,000-metre steeplechase, marathon and 20-mile walk and broke them all. Field men were unaffected since the distance or height of their throws and jumps is unchanged by the markings on the japs used to measure them.

McLaren Team Wins 17th Straight in Can-Am Series

EDMONTON (CP) — Team McLaren, thanks to the driving genius of New Zealander Denis Hulme, scored its 17th consecutive victory Sunday in the Canadian-American Challenge Cup road racing series.

The 36-year-old driver turned in a flawless performance to win the Klondike 200 at International Speedway—the fourth of 11 races in the 1970 series.

He led Team-mate Peter Gethin of England by 22.8 seconds to take the checkered flag and his bright orange McLaren 8E lapped the 12 of the 22 starters who were still running at the end of the 80-lap race.

Hulme, who finished the 202.16 miles over the 2.527-mile circuit in one hour 54 minutes 5.5 seconds, picked up $12,000 for the win, his second of the season.

The 28 points gave him a series total of 52 for the lead, 10 more than Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif., who resigned from team McLaren last week because of sponsorship problems. Gurney won the first two races.

Hulme now has won three races here. He turned a time of one minute 23.9 seconds for an average speed of 108.429 miles an hour, a second slower than the record he set at the 1969 Klondike 200.

Gethin's second-place finish assured him of the team McLaren rank for the rest of the 1970 season. It was his first competition ride in a Group 7 Can-Am car and Hulme said "he did a very good job . . . pulling out of my slipstream when we were going down the straight."

Lothar Motschenbacher of Beverly Hills, Calif., was third in a McLaren 8B; Bob Brown of New York City fourth in a McLaren; and Dave Causey of Carmel, Ind., fifth in a Lola T163.

Roger Mccaig of Calgary was the only one of six Canadians to finish. He brought his McLaren 8C home in eighth place.

George Eaton of Toronto, driving a BRM retired on the 25th lap when a wheel bearing caught fire.

Motschenbacher now is in third place in the standings with 27 points, Brown fourth with 22 and Gethin is tied with Jackie Oliver of England for fifth. Both have 15 points but Oliver wrecked his car at St. Jovite, Que., in the second race this year. Eaton and Richard Attwood of England, who did not race here, are tied in sixth place with 12 points each.

Hulme's victory was made even more satisfying by the fact he did it despite hands that had not fully recovered from burns suffered while practising for the Indianapolis 500.

"For once I could go hard all the way," he said.

He was surprised Motschenbacher did not challenge the team McLaren lead.

"I thought he would give us a much harder run than he did; that Lothar might catch us."

Hulme's car ran a 426-cubic-inch Chevrolet aluminum engine and Gethin 485-inch. Hulme elected to go with the smaller engine for reliability.

"As the lead came off, the car got quicker. The 426-inch engine will do 200 miles easily. It was absolutely perfect all the way. I didn't take any risks."

He was asked whether he had discussed any strategy with Gethin and was planning any for the next race, the Buckeye Can-Am in Ohio Aug. 23.

"No," he laughed, "but I'll talk to him."

Team McLaren loaned a fresh engine to Peter Revson of New York City when he blew a second engine in his Lola T220.

"We had to do some quick negotiating with Teddy Meyer," said Dick Stickler, a spokesman for Revson's sponsors. "A lot of the parts weren't compatible . . . so we ran back and forth between here and town machining parts. I guess you could call it a McLola."

Team McLaren luck didn't pass to Revson, however, because he withdrew the car because of an oil loss after 31 laps.

Minnesota Makes 'Big Boog' Beam

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It upset Boog Powell to strike out with the bases loaded, So Minnesota Twins pitchers Jim Perry and Dick Woodson, much to their chagrin, helped make the big Baltimore Orioles first baseman happy in a big way.

"I probably ought to come through more than I do, but the only thing I really hate to do with the bases loaded is strike out," Powell said Sunday after leading the Orioles' 11-1 trouncing of the Twins.

The game was scoreless when Powell came to bat against Hall with the bases loaded in the fourth. He singled in two runs.

Baltimore led 5-1 when Powell came up against Woodson in the eighth. He crashed his 20th homer to boost his RBI total to 66.

Dave McNally upped his record to 13-7 while Perry suffered his eighth loss in a bid for his 16th victory.

California Angels edged Washington Senators 11-10 in 11 innings, Boston Red Sox blasted Milwaukee Brewers 12-5, Cleveland Indians swept Kansas City Royals 6-5 and 3-0, Oakland Athletics nipped New York Yankees 3-2 in 10 innings, Detroit Tigers 4-3, Chicago White Sox blanked Detroit Tigers 4-0, Houston Astros defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4 in 10 innings, San Diego Padres mauled Philadelphia Phillies 10-5, Los Angeles Dodgers stopped New York Mets 5-3 and San Francisco Giants topped Montreal Expos 6-2.

In games Saturday, Atlanta blanked Chicago 2-0, New York downed Los Angeles 6-4, Houston doubled Pittsburgh 8-4, Cincinnati took St. Louis 5-3, Philadelphia trounced San Diego 9-2 and Montreal outslugged San Francisco 10-5.

Bench's outburst made things easy for rookie Wayne Simpson, 14-2, who didn't allow a hit until one out in the sixth inning. He needed help when St. Louis scored five times with the aid of several errors in the eighth.

The Cubs took the homer play in the nightcap with Atlanta as Billy Williams and Jim Hickman, who had one in the opener, each connected, while Hal King hit Atlanta's only homer.

Jimmy Wynn's two-run homer off Dave Giusti, 8-2, in the 10th inning put Houston over Pittsburgh and kept the Pirates' Eastern Division lead at 1½ games over the Mets.

Al Ferrara hit two homers and Nate Colbert and Steve Huntz had one each in San Diego's 16-hit attack that ended Philadelphia's four-game winning streak.

Wayne Garrett hit two homers for all of the Mets' runs, Tom Haller hit a solo shot for the Dodgers and Ted Sizemore hit a sacrifice fly that tripled and scored on Bill Russell's sacrifice fly.

Juan Marichal scattered nine hits for San Francisco and won only his fourth game of the season against nine losses. Willie Mays and Willie McCovey gave him plenty of batting help, each driving in two runs, Mays with two of his three singles and McCovey with a double and a triple.

Catfish Hunter, 13-6, was forced to exile California a 10-10 tie in the ninth.

Ken McMullen, Roger Repoz and Sandy Alomar homered for California. Frank Howard hit his 28th for Washington in the sixth.

Boston rode over Milwaukee as Tony Conigliaro belted a pair of two-run homers, Carl Yastrzemski hit a two-run shot—his 27th—and George Thomas belted a solo homer. Tommy Harper and Jerry McNertney homered for the Brewers.

Rookie Roy Foster's three-run homer marked Cleveland's 6-5 first-game victory over Kansas City while Steve Hargan pitched a five-hitter and Craig Nettles, Eddie Leon and Tony Horton homered in the nightcap.

The Athletics beat the Yankees for their sixth-straight victory when Dick Green drove in the winning run with an infield hit in the sixth. Dave Duncan homered for Oakland while Jerry Kenney and Ron Hansen connected for the Yankees.

The White Sox victory over Detroit was the fourth-straight for Tommy John, 9-12, who pitched a seven-hitter. Carlos May singled home a run in the sixth after a two-base error by Dick McAuliffe and a bunt for the only run John needed.

Perez' Lead Gets 'Benched' Cepada Breather Costly

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tony Perez learned that only one day on the bench can cost him his lead in homers and runs batted in—if Johnny Bench is playing.

The Atlanta Braves, on the other hand, found out that Orlando Cepeda on the bench for just one at bat can cost them a ball game—even if Hank Aaron is hitting.

With Perez resting for the day with his 30 homers and 94 RBIs, Bench slammed three homers and a single and drove in seven runs as Cincinnati Reds routed over St. Louis Cardinals Sunday, giving Bench the National League lead in both categories with 33 and 95.

Cepeda, given an extra game, did still more for Atlanta Braves. He ripped three homers and a single and drove in six runs in an 8-3 victory over Chicago Cubs in the opener of their doubleheader.

He had two singles and a double in the nightcap, but was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the eighth inning.

He watched on the sidelines in the ninth inning when Tommie Aaron, his replacement, came to bat with two on and two out, and Hank Aaron came in, to pinch hit and hit into a force out. The Braves lost 7-6.

Bench and Cepeda led a day of home-run hitting and run-scoring as Houston Astros edged Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4 in 10 innings, San Diego Padres mauled Philadelphia Phillies 10-5, Los Angeles Dodgers stopped New York Mets 5-3 and San Francisco Giants topped Montreal Expos 6-2.

In games Saturday, Atlanta blanked Chicago 2-0, New York downed Los Angeles 6-4, Houston doubled Pittsburgh 8-4, Cincinnati took St. Louis 5-3, Philadelphia trounced San Diego 9-2 and Montreal outslugged San Francisco 10-5.

Bench's outburst made things easy for rookie Wayne Simpson, 14-2, who didn't allow a hit until one out in the sixth inning. He needed help when St. Louis scored five times with the aid of several errors in the eighth.

The Cubs took the homer play in the nightcap with Atlanta as Billy Williams and Jim Hickman, who had one in the opener, each connected, while Hal King hit Atlanta's only homer.

Jimmy Wynn's two-run homer off Dave Giusti, 8-2, in the 10th inning put Houston over Pittsburgh and kept the Pirates' Eastern Division lead at 1½ games over the Mets.

Al Ferrara hit two homers and Nate Colbert and Steve Huntz had one each in San Diego's 16-hit attack that ended Philadelphia's four-game winning streak.

Wayne Garrett hit two homers for all of the Mets' runs, Tom Haller hit a solo shot for the Dodgers and Ted Sizemore hit a sacrifice fly that tripled and scored on Bill Russell's sacrifice fly.

Juan Marichal scattered nine hits for San Francisco and won only his fourth game of the season against nine losses. Willie Mays and Willie McCovey gave him plenty of batting help, each driving in two runs, Mays with two of his three singles and McCovey with a double and a triple.

BOOG POWELL

43 and Chicago White Sox blanked Detroit Tigers 4-0.

Saturday, the Brewers defeated New York 1-0, Kansas City dropped Detroit 8-4, Detroit downed Chicago 9-4, Baltimore edged Minnesota 6-5 and Washington clubbed California 5-0.

Fifteen pitchers, eight by California, paraded to the mound in the Angels' victory over Washington, which came when Bill Cowan singled and scored on a foreout to give California a 10-10 tie in the ninth.

Ken McMullen, Roger Repoz and Sandy Alomar homered for California. Frank Howard hit his 28th for Washington in the sixth.

Boston rode over Milwaukee as Tony Conigliaro belted a pair of two-run homers, Carl Yastrzemski hit a two-run shot—his 27th—and George Thomas belted a solo homer. Tommy Harper and Jerry McNertney homered for the Brewers.

Rookie Roy Foster's three-run homer marked Cleveland's 6-5 first-game victory over Kansas City while Steve Hargan pitched a five-hitter and Craig Nettles, Eddie Leon and Tony Horton homered in the nightcap.

Four More Enter Hall

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Four new members move into baseball's Hall of Fame today as 10,000 fans jam this historic village to honor Lou Boudreau, Earle Combs, Jesse Haines and Ford Frick, and to watch a ball game.

After watching the formal induction ceremonies and the unveiling of the new plaques, boosting the total membership to 118, the fans stroll down Main Street to Doubleday Field to see the annual Hall of Fame exhibition game.

Because Montreal Expos, one of last year's expansion clubs, is playing here for the first time, a plane-load of 98 persons from Montreal will be on hand for the game between the Expos and Chicago White Sox.

Although both teams are bumping around in the lower reaches of their respective divisions, the annual game attracts a sellout throng. The American League, which long ago lost its domination of the all-star series, still holds a 15-11-1 edge in this series that means no more than possession of the Hall of Fame Cup.

The induction ceremonies are set for 11 a.m. (EST).

Another plane-load of 70 friends of Boudreau from his hometown of Harvey, Ill., will watch the former Cleveland shortstop and player-manager take his place with the baseball greats of the past.

Boudreau, 52, was voted into the Hall by the veteran baseball writers in January with 222 of a possible 300 votes, or more than the required 75 per cent. He played 15 big league seasons with Cleveland and Boston and had a career batting average of .295, leading the American League in 1944 with .327.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Routine Removal Of Tonsils Wrong

Is there a parent of small children who isn't sitting on the sharp, painful horns of this dilemma: Shall I have Tommy's tonsils and adenoids out or leave them in? Is it any wonder mothers and fathers aren't sure? Even doctors disagree.

I read recently of eight children in one family who were bundled off to the hospital to have their tonsils and adenoids out. This used to be a common occurrence years ago. I thought wholesale removal was a thing of the past. It seems it isn't.

According to one physician, Sidney Q. Cohlan, MD, Professor of Clinical Pediatrics at New York University School of Medicine (as quoted in a magazine published for physicians): Most children's tonsils are removed "to satisfy the nagging complaints of a parent."

He lists such reasons as loss of appetite, too many colds, lack of growth, persistent coughs, enlarged tonsils and sore throats.

Enlarged tonsils and adenoids are not the cause of all these complaints, if pediatrics realized this "the estimated incidence of 1.3 million adenotonsillectomies performed in the United States annually should sharply fall to a less shameful number."

Dr. Cohlan believes that it should be the family physician or pediatrician's responsibility to: 1. Ignore the pleas of a mother looking for "dramatic action to relieve unrelated symptoms." 2. Decide whether surgery is indicated. 3. Consult a skilled, conservative nose and throat specialist. 4. If the operation is decided upon, provide pre- and post-operative care, adequate medicare, excellent facilities, trained, skillful anesthetist and surgeon and rooming-in facilities for the mother.

However, in the same article another physician, Ferdinand LaVenzia, MD, and instructor in otolaryngology at Cornell University says: "It is just as poor a practice to deny a patient the procedure when indicated as it is to urge it for the wrong reasons."

Nevertheless, Dr. LaVenzia agrees with Dr. Cohlan that the operation should not be performed indiscriminately. It is not indicated for relief of frequent colds, influenza, chronic cough, allergic symptoms, or in children with less than three bouts of tonsillitis in the year preceding examination.

On many occasions I have warned against indiscriminate removal of tonsils and adenoids. I get the shakes when I read of eight children in one family having their tonsils and adenoids removed in one morning.

What other reason would the parents (or doctor) have than "it's good to have them out!" It isn't "good" unless there's a specific reason for it.

As I've said in previous columns, I would be in favor of the operation if the child had a history of abscessed tonsils, if he had repeated sore throats which threatened rheumatic fever, if he had chronic ear infections, or definite obstruction to breathing by enlarged adenoids.

Otherwise (with few other exceptions) I believe that tonsils and adenoids should not be disturbed. No innocent child should be lead to surgery unless there is sufficient reason — after consultation with an expert — to perform the operation.

* * *

For Mrs. U.: Your doctor uses good judgment in refusing to give you penicillin "shots" for colds. They do not cure a cold or shorten and alleviate its symptoms. At this time we have no specific medicine guaranteed to knock out the cold viruses. Hippocrates could treat a cold as well as the modern physician. Unfortunate, but true.

Portugal's Ex-dictator, Antonio Salazar, Dies

LISBON (AP) — Antonio Salazar, 81, former dictator of Portugal, died today, the office of the secretary of information said.

Salazar died 23 months after suffering a disabling stroke that left him an invalid and caused his replacement by Marcello Caetano as premier.

Until the stroke in September, 1968, ended his authoritarian rule of that country of 10,000,000, Salazar was Europe's longest-serving head of government. He had been premier since 1932 but had held effective control of the country since the military revolution of 1926 when he was appointed minister of finance.

The successor premier died at his home in Lisbon.

Among those at his bedside were Dona Maria de Jesus Caetano Freire, his housekeeper for the last 30 years.

Salazar's former premier suffered a stroke in September, 1968, which left him partially paralysed and forced his resignation. He developed a kidney infection 13 days ago, and since then his condition has steadily worsened.

A bashful dictator, Salazar loved power but shunned its trappings. Ruler of the world's last great Victorian-style overseas empire, he lived like an obscure clerk. Simplicity, frugality and austerity marked his personal life.

A shy, scholarly economist, he was rarely seen by his own people. In a nation of poverty, he paid himself $136 a week and spent his vacations in a one-story cottage in the village where he was born.

But from the day he took over as premier in 1932, he held Portugal and its African fiefs in an iron grip. Rebellions developed but did not prevail in the African territories of Angola, Mozambique and Portuguese Guinea.

Efforts to stir his people to uprising came to naught.

Salazar's technique was paternal, sometimes even benevolent. But he controlled police and press and permitted token opposition for only 40 days before elections every four years.

With a reputation for financial wizardry, Salazar kept Portugal's budget balanced when other European countries were deep in debt. But he did so at the expense of the workers, who are among the lowest paid, worst fed and most illiterate in Europe.

Yet Portugal's voters showed political unconcern and made no serious move to replace him. In 1968 Salazar said the public revenue had increased 12-fold to $600,000,000. Illiteracy in the school population had dropped to almost zero from 76 per cent and that production was up.

If the people of Portugal seemed satisfied, it was due also with the blacks of Angola, Mozambique and Guinea. Coping with mounting struggles for independence ate deeply into the carefully nurtured Portuguese treasury.

The country was forced to maintain an army of more than 100,000 men overseas. About 40 per cent of the national budget, of record years has been spent on defence.

Reports of bloody uprisings and military reprisals in the strife-torn African territories brought denunciation from the United Nations and sharp criticism from the United States, an ally of Portugal in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Salazar denounced the uprisings, which culminated in a full-scale Angolan rebellion in March, 1961, as an insidious grope inspired and financed by foreign powers. He insisted he was not opposed to Angolan independence, only to independence granted too hastily.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For July 28

Your birthday today: Diversity of interests characterizes this year. You let well enough alone except your need to know more. Therefore you will have several lines of study going at once. Your regular vocation will seem dull and routine alongside these other interests. You will need to discipline yourself to take care of your work. Today's natives often show great stubborn, or military bearing.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Go it alone today; wait for nobody for your brief pause. Impatience is not justified, nor any comment later. Do the best you can, and forget.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Confine your buying to essentials. If anything you wanted yesterday is not satisfactory, get the matter adjusted promptly. Intuition should be trusted.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): There is not much voltage in the day for you — it's as though you make the wheels turn for everybody else. Avoid putting in too much. Pray for replenishment of strength.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Expect considerable indifferent behavior without feeling that it is personal. Use your time on matters that do not require collaboration.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): There are endless discussions with nothing done if you start explaining. Have a clear plan and put it into effect. Let the work speak for itself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Keeping your personal life separate from business is quite a chore today, but well worth the trouble. Both can gain immensely from today's activity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Take active interest, if subtle, now in opening to secure future projects in your path. Get your routine far enough ahead so you can spot special information or a shortcut.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): With everybody wearing his feelings on his sleeve today, give them all gentler than usual treatment, and help yourself to the Sen's share of everything.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Take notice of the pressing needs with which other types are having fun; some will difficulty. Remain uninvolved, separate, and on the move.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your best work now has to be done quietly, with many hours of thinking. One clearly spelled issue, one plan in usable form is enough for the day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): On this routine day there is an extra chance to do creative jobs for your own enterprises. Work alone, but delegate freely where no decisions are involved.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): In today's curious patterning, let everything be what it is, ever. Your feelings may now be a more valid guide than logic through the puzzling conditions.

Castro Warns Cubans More Hardships Ahead

CARACAS, Venezuela (Reuters) — Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba warned Cubans Sunday night that more hardships and hard work are waiting for them and published a picture of an inefficient economy heading toward serious deterioration.

Admitting that leaders of the revolution had proved "an extraordinary failure" in the first 10 years of his administration, Castro said the Cuban people could look for another leader if they feel it is necessary.

The Cuban premier said in a speech monitored by Radio Havana and received here that lack of labor resources and many other problems would aggravate the economic situation in the next five years.

The speech, which lasted 3½ hours, turned out to be the most penetrating self-criticism ever spelled out by Castro. It came as Cuba celebrated the 17th anniversary of the Cuban revolution and the biggest sugar harvest in Cuban history.

"If there is something to be said, it is that we (Cubans) have proved inefficient," Castro said. "Not even only Cubans themselves could be held "unconditionally responsible for our inefficiency in the revolutionary process."

"Our enemies are correct in saying that we have problems, that there is unhappiness and that there are fruitless," he added.

"I can be substituted whenever the people want," Castro said amid boos and shouts of "No." He added that it would be hypocrisy to replace him.

Though praising the work carried out by the country in achieving the biggest sugar harvest of its history, Castro said his long-preached "simultaneous battle" has failed.

While... concentrating on the sugar harvest, the country failed to keep up production in other fields increasing the pressure on the economy, he said.

Problems cited by Castro to include the increasing shortage of teachers and medical doctors, the financing of a 1,000,000-man military force and the need of technicians.

Here Is Way to Determine Where Coolant Disappearing

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"Shortly after buying an old high-mileage six-cylinder car, a heater hose broke during a highway run and the engine boiled over. After letting the engine cool I installed a new hose, filled the radiator with water and continued on my trip.

"However, on my way home (about 200 miles) it was necessary to add two or three pints of water to the radiator. To overcome this problem, I replaced all the heater and radiator hoses, the by-pass hose and the thermostat, but this did not help.

"I then replaced the water pump, cleaned the cooling system with a flushing compound and installed a new radiator pressure cap — but the water continues to disappear. I have checked carefully with the engine hot and idling and after the car has been parked all night and there is no trace of a leak.

"After wasting $35 (plus my time) and uncomplaining nothing, I hopefully look to you for a remedy. Since I cannot afford professional repairs, I must either find the trouble or scrap it." — Mr. J. J., Peterborough, Ont.

It appears that your coolant is sleeping inside the engine and the most likely culprit would be one or more of the following; defective head gasket, warped or cracked cylinder head, or cracked engine block.

To diagnose this problem, start by checking the engine oil level. If it is over the full mark, you can be reasonably sure that coolant is seeping inside the engine. To avoid further damage, change the oil immediately.

If the oil level is close to the full mark, start the engine and after operating temperature is reached turn off the key. Next remove the spark plugs and let the car sit for a few hours or, even better, overnight. After placing a piece of cardboard between the ignition points to prevent them from firing, turn the engine over with the starter and usually coolant will gush out of the spark plug hole of the defective cylinder or cylinders.

This pinpoints the area of the defect. The next step is to remove the cylinder head to establish the exact cause of the problem. If a head gasket is blown, don't just install a new one and assume that the problem is licked — there may readily be further hidden defects.

Remove the carbon and thoroughly clean the surfaces of the cylinder head that mates with the block and then check carefully—for minute cracks in the metal. Remove all the valves and after cleaning the valve seats and valve ports, inspect them closely for cracks.

The top surface of the engine block and the walls of each cylinder must be cleaned and examined for defects that might result in mysterious coolant leaks.

After removing all the foreign matter from the cylinder head and block, the mating surfaces of both these components should be tested with a straight edge for possible warpage or low spots that can result from overheating or chemical action.

To avoid the possibility of failure, I cannot overly stress the importance of carefully checking each point I have mentioned before re-assembling the engine.

Two Men Rescued

PORT STANLEY, Ont. (CP)—David J. Carl, 23, of Cleveland, and Wilbert Lee Kirey, 21, of Akron, Ohio, were rescued Saturday night by the Canadian Coast Guard after their 23-foot yacht Care-less Pussycat was adrift on Lake Erie without fuel for 23 hours.

Girl Is Jailed For Chasing Boy

READING, England (AP) — A lovesick girl was jailed Saturday for refusing to stop chasing "the boy she wants to marry."

Irene Avery, 20, was led off to prison shouting: "I have to see him again and I will. Wait and see."

Miss Avery, a maid at the Royal Berkshire Hospital, was jailed for 28 days by local magistrates because she refused to agree to stop "continually pestering" 18-year-old Paul Taylor.

The court was told that Irene repeatedly visited Taylor's home, calling "I want Paul," after he broke off their four-month romance.

"She kept calling at the front gate and stood on the front lawn of the house," a police officer testified. "She refused to leave and finally the police were called and she was taken away by policemen.

Chairman Leonard Vickers asked her to sign an order promising to "be of good behavior." He added: "Unless you agree to this, you will spend 7 days in prison."

"I don't care," said Irene, refusing to sign the order. She was arrested and taken by policemen to London's Holloway Prison for Women.

A court spokesman said the girl could be released whenever she agrees to sign the order.

Taylor, a construction worker, was contacted by reporters after Irene was jailed. He said: "I'm sorry it had to work out like this. But Irene was making my life unbearable. She followed me to work and home again each day, and I nearly got the sack because of her."

Tokyo Folk Are Told To Avoid White Smog

TOKYO (Reuters) — Tokyo's 11,600,000 people will be warned to stay at home whenever the capital is struck by a newly-discovered "white smog" that attacks the eyes and breathing.

The Tokyo metropolitan government decided to start a system of warnings and alerts beginning today after doctors had reported that several thousand school children had been sent to the hospital suffering from the effects of the smog.

The new form of air poisoning is caused by the effect of ultra-violet rays from the sun on hydrocarbon and nitrogen oxide in automobile exhaust gases.

It is the latest environmental problem in an overcrowded country which an economic boom has raised from war-time ruin to a leader of the industrial world.

It is difficult to escape in Japan from stinking air, choking with factory and traffic fumes. The nation's beaches are covered with litter and its seas are full of sewage.

The new type of smog was first noticed July 18 when hospitals in several parts of the capital reported waiting rooms full of patients, mainly school children, suffering from eye irritation.

The smog was reported to have stripped trees of their leaves in areas where it was most intense.

The outbreak caused the daily newspaper Yomiuri to comment in an editorial:

"Public hazards in Japan, especially air pollution, have reached a dangerous stage. If the situation remains as it is . . . citizens will be exposed to the greatest danger of their lives. . . .

"There is no time to indulge in a leisurely discussion, as the government is doing, on how rapid growth of the economy and the prevention of public hazards can be achieved at the same time."

The patient Japanese public is finally getting tired of air and water pollution, industrial sprawl and ugly, unplanned urbanization encroaching everywhere on the lovely old Japan of geisha girls and samurais.

"Destruction of the environment through urbanization, brought on by fast economic growth, is reaching extremes," said a construction ministry report which urged more government spending on environmental control.

All Denominations May Join in Using Dublin Cathedral

DUBLIN (AP) —Church leaders in Ireland are debating a plan they believe might help bring peace to their divided people.

The idea is that St. Patrick's Cathedral in Dublin, now run by the Protestant Church of Ireland, should become a national cathedral to be used by all denominations.

Christian believers, whether Roman Catholic or Protestant, would be able to use the 12th-century cathedral either separately or together.

On occasions of national rejoicing or distress it would become the focal point for Irishmen of whatever creed. Thus the hope is that the cathedral would help instill the sense of national unity which 49 years of partition and recent sectarian battling in the North have combined to destroy.

The search for Christian unity seems sometimes to have passed Ireland by.

The violence, however, has spurred some churchmen. One of these is Very Rev. Victor Griffin, dean of St. Patrick's, who made the proposal for a national cathedral.

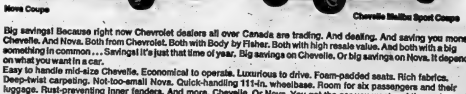
Details of the plan have yet to be worked out. It faces considerable legal and perhaps financial difficulties. Some of Ireland's more conservative Roman Catholics, the scene of the more militant Presbyterians, are expected to be hesitant.

But the current issue of Reality, a Roman Catholic monthly, carries messages of welcome for the plan from prominent churchmen of all the main religious persuasions.

Until 1870, the Church of Ireland was the established church, exactly as the Anglican Church remains the established church in England today. Now, even in Protestant-ruled Northern Ireland it is in a minority position.

Roman Catholics, though outnumbered two to one by northern Protestants as a whole, are still the largest single denomination with 500,000 members. Next come the Presbyterians with 450,000, then the Church of Ireland with 350,000, Methodists, Baptists and smaller Protestant groups make up the rest.

Despite balemongers, a recently published survey of Northern Ireland opinion reported 78 per cent of those questioned wanted the major churches to move more closely together.



Seven Burned As Yacht Fire Follows Blast

IVY LEA, Ont. (CP) — Seven of 11 passengers aboard the yacht Omega were in satisfactory condition in Kingston General Hospital after the craft exploded Sunday.

In hospital suffering burns were William Dwyer, Bexley, 46, owner of the yacht, and his wife, Kathleen, of Toronto; Bert and Gladys Morris of Port Credit, Ont.; and Albert and Merl Jenkins and their son John, 14, all of Toronto.

Provincial police said the yacht had been refuelled at the marina in this community, about 30 miles east of Kingston. When the engine was started the craft exploded, burned to the water line and sank.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Why Alter Winning Style?

One of my favorite snack places for lunch has been taken over by new management, and I'm afraid that it's never going to be the same again. Which sets me to wondering about business takeovers.

The new people bought the place, presumably, because it was flourishing, with a large and satisfied clientele. Then they immediately proceeded to change it for the worse — in help, in food, and in atmosphere. They are going to run it into the ground.

Why would anyone do this? Yet it happens time and again, in many business ventures. It's like marrying a woman because you like the way she looks — then taking her to a plastic surgeon to change the whole bone structure.

I have seen the same thing happen, inexplicably, in my own business of newspapering. Certain papers will buy my column, and then proceed to chop it to death, leaving out important paragraphs, or slicing it from the bottom up, until what is left is hardly worth reading.

Others will use it only a couple of days a week, instead of the five days it is written, and then wonder why it gets so little reader identification and loyalty. While the papers who run it five days have found that it holds a steady and steadfast audience.

I mention this not out of pique or even greed (my remuneration is the same, no matter how infrequently they run it), but out of genuine puzzlement. What is the point of buying something because you admire its quality, and then disfiguring or doing it out in minute portions.

There seems to be something inherently self-defeating about such operations. The restaurant wants to attract a wider clientele, but it is actually losing most of its old customers by fiddling around with a menu everyone liked and depended upon. In trying to please more kinds of people, it is simply trading off the loyalty of its "regulars" for a nebulous future popularity it cannot possibly gain.

One human tendency explains this in part. We are never as satisfied with something after we have changed it as we thought we would be while striving for it; we tend to over-value what we don't have, and to divalue what belongs to us. This also is as true in the market place as in the marriage-bed, and explains the flow of bankruptcies as much as the high rate of divorce.

I have to look for a new snack place for lunch, and the owners, will never know why the line has dwindled in the doorway. No doubt they will blame it on "changing neighborhood"—when all that has changed is our loyalty to a lost cheeseburger.

NYLON

For Absolute Dependability

strong enough to keep a world of wheels turning!

Nylon occupies a very special niche in the tire world. Wherever brute strength, safety and economy count most, you find Nylon to the exclusion of all other tire cords. The racing car driver puts his life on a thin wall of Nylon. So do passengers every time an aircraft lands. Buses and trucks not only meet their schedules safely, but do it economically — due to Nylon's unique talents. Granted it isn't the great mileage-getter that Polyester Glass-Belt is, and it's guilty occasionally of morning 'flat- spot'– but the odds still favor Nylon (especially the new Dupont variety that 'flat-spots' less than the others).

Designed to perform as a super Nylon, our Turnpike Wide Track may be a stronger tire than you really need. But then the price is very little more than big manufacturers are asking for their bottom-of-the-line tire. For a bit extra, why not have the best?

Fish in Bath Area Likely Not Edible

Gaspe Guns Warn Ships

MADELEINE CENTRE, Que. (CP) — There were renewed reports Monday night of gunshots fired at trawlers from outside Quebec province fishing in this area, but Mayor Omer Boucher, mayor of Madeleine Centre, denied knowledge of them.

The mayor said Monday that three or four shots were fired at the trawlers Sunday, but said today that he "heard no shots last night."

"For all I know the shots heard Sunday could have been someone shooting at birds," he added.

Doug Moore, a vacationing Montrealer, said Monday night about 30 rounds were fired from among 300 Madeleine Centre residents gathered on the shore at Grande Vallee, 11 miles farther east along the Gaspe shore line.

The trawlers fired upon were anchored 500 to 1,000 feet from shore, Mr. Moore said.

"At that range there was little damage that we could see," he said.

Cause of the dispute has been the off-shore fishing in the Gulf of St. Lawrence by the trawlers which residents claim have been depleting normal cod catches and fouling the beaches.

Earlier Monday night, more than 1,000 residents of the area, about 300 miles northeast of Quebec City, held a mass meeting at a church hall.

They decided to map out a plan of action to drive off the 18 trawlers that have been operating in the area.

"A small segment of the crowd decided to take matters into their own hands and took off for Grande Vallee," Mr Moore said.

His said that at Grande Vallee

Kenora Threat Kept Secret

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

The threat of mercury-contaminated fish has suddenly been projected to the verges of the Quinte district.

And district-based researchers are awaiting the results of tests to determine any consequences.

Fish taken from the upper St. Lawrence and the eastern tip of Lake Ontario in the Bath area may be declared inedible as a result of tests for mercury contamination being carried out by the lands and forests department, a provincial government official revealed yesterday.

Meantime, a report by a Winnipeg scientist, kept secret by the Ontario Water Resources Commission since April, warns that mercury fish in Clay Lake in Northern Ontario's Kenora district, is more than three times as high as contamination that killed five people in Japan.

The report was released by an OWRC scientist who said the leak might cost him his job if it were traced to him.

Department spokesman Charles D. Clarke said the St. Lawrence-Lake Ontario tests are expected to confirm mercury levels of up to 1.3 parts per million found recently by United States researchers.

A level of more than .55 parts per million is considered unsafe for human consumption.

Meantime W. J. Christie, director of the department's Glenora fisheries research station near Picton, today said testing of fish samples gathered by his unit could be speeded up as a result of American findings.

"It won't be very long before we have a clearer picture of what the situation is on our side of the lake," said Mr. Christie.

The official couldn't say what effect any adverse results could have on fish in the Bay of Quinte.

"It would depend on what species might be contaminated," he said.

In Lake Erie, for example, mercury levels in some are

THE WEATHER

The latest weather charts indicate that the chance of cooler, less humid weather reaching southern Ontario into today has lessened. It seems likely that the cold front which was to have brought about this change in weather is likely to stall north of Lake Ontario possibly across the Muskoka and Haliburton vacation areas. Regions further south near the lower lakes will likely have to put up with another day or two of warm muggy weather and periods of scattered thunderstorms activity.

High Jumper

Anne Dodson of Bleecker Ave., Belleville, competes in the high jump at last night's first session of the Belleville-Trenton-Picton tri-track and field meet, held at Quinte Secondary School. The meet, sponsored by the recreation departments of the three communities, brings together participants from the playground programs of each municipality. Track events will be held this evening on the campus of Trenton High School. On Thursday the final round of field competition will be held at the Picton fairgrounds.

Those Pesky Russians

1. They Can't See Fishermen

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian government ships should patrol overnight anchoring areas of British Columbia's west-coast fishing fleets to prevent interference from Soviet trawlers, Tom Barnett, the New Democratic Party fisheries spokesman, said today.

"The real danger to the security of Canadian trawlers arises when they anchor at sea during the night to rest," the member of Parliament for Comox-Alberni said in a statement.

"Soviet boats continue working and have occasionally, although inadvertently, interfered with Canadian vessels.

He called for the mobilization of coast guard vessels to patrol the anchoring regions to give the fishermen overnight rest with reasonable security.

2. But Keep Eye on Submarines

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The United States navy's first try at a submerged launching of the Poseidon missile was foiled by an inquisitive Soviet trawler Monday and the test was rescheduled for next week.

The milestone shot of the multi-warhead Poseidon had been scheduled Monday from the nuclear submarine James Madison.

But it was postponed because a Soviet fishing vessel with electronic gear moved to within 200 yards of the sub during a trial run last Friday, a reliable informant said.

The informant, who was aboard a nearby surface support ship, said:

"It came close, to within 200 yards. Someone in the Pentagon became a little apprehensive."

The Russian ship was well outside territorial limits, and such trawlers are a common sight off Cape Kennedy whenever an important missile or manned space shot is conducted.

The trawlers have shadowed Polaris nuclear subs in the past, but never came as close as last Friday, sources said.

Unions Included

Commons Committee Wants Limit to Foreign Ownership

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons external affairs committee has finally permitted an official peek at an already-published report that suggests a national policy to assure 51-per-cent Canadian ownership of foreign firms operating in Canada.

A committee news release, issued Monday, confirmed these and other published leaks about the contents of the report based on a committee study of Canada-U.S. relations.

The full report will be made public later when the usual French translation can be done.

The committee approved the report Monday, wents government guidelines on Canadian equity participation in foreign firms extended to clearly demonstrate that the 51-per-cent rule should be the eventual result.

In the committee's words, policy should demonstrate "that all companies operating in Canada will, over a reasonable period of time and with due regard to varying circumstances, including the availability of Canadian capital, permit at least 51 per cent of their voting shares to be owned by Canadian citizens."

Where the guideline is not satisfactorily followed, it should be made mandatory, Canadian shareholders of foreign firms should have the right to elect the number of directors proportionate to their total voting shares.

Also recommended was something called an ownership and control bureau to oversee "matters pertaining to the foreign ownership and control of Canadian industry."

Guidelines were also sought to support steps in Canadian branches of international unions to exert control of internal administration, election of officials, expenditures and general social and economic policy.

This not-so-subtle call for more Canadian autonomy of unions with American head offices was accompanied by a suggestion for the establishment of a division in the federal labor department to obtain and publish "relevant information" about international and other unions operating in Canada. The division would be armed with legislative authority to demand relevant information and get it.

The news release included comment from committee chairman Ian Wahn, Liberal MP for Toronto St. Paul's, who said that Canadians want government definition of problem areas between Canada and the U.S. without going to emotional extremes.

He said the committee report reflects a Canadian attitude that rejects anti-Americanism, but wants "Canada to have policies that recognize these problems, protect Canada's national interests and encourage to the fullest possible extent the development of Canada's economic potential."

Signs Point to Israel Accepting U.S. Scheme

JERUSALEM (AP) — Indications are mounting that the Israeli government will agree reluctantly and with conditions to the 90-day ceasefire proposed by the United States to get Middle East peace talks under way again. But press reports here said Defence Minister Moshe Dayan is considering resigning if the cabinet accepts the U.S. proposal.

The reports said Dayan expressed misgivings because the U.S. plan speaks of Israeli withdrawal from the Arab lands captured in the 1967 war. Dayan believes that Israel's security depends on its retaining the Gaza Strip, the Golan Heights taken from Syria, and a coastal strip along the Sinai desert in the Strait of Tiran, the key to Israel's southern water route to East Africa and Asia.

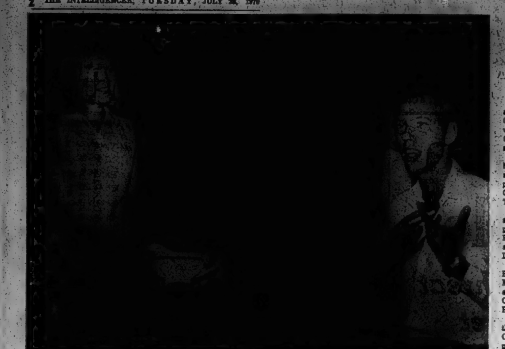
Premier Golda Meir and her cabinet had scheduled another meeting today to discuss their reply to the proposal, but it was postponed for 24 hours to allow "further political clarifications," a government spokesman said. The first cabinet debate on the plan was Sunday. Mrs. Meir may reply to Washington Wednesday night in a speech to the Knesset, the Israeli parliament.

...Deputy Premier Yigal Allon went on record Monday night in favor of acceptance, Israel's first ranking minister to do so publicly.

"Even if there are differences of opinion between the U.S. and Israel," Allon told a group of high school newspaper editors, "when the government of the United States takes such an initiative, it appears to me that we should accept it, even if we are not completely satisfied with all the details."

Robarts Today Defines Scope of Duke Inquiry

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts is to announce later today the name and terms of reference of the commissioner to head a public inquiry into the relationship of an Ontario businessman with senior provincial police officers and two men alleged to have Mafia connections.



The premier told a news conference Monday the terms of reference would be announced after a cabinet meeting. He assumed the commissioner would be empowered to call witnesses, including representatives of political parties, and to rule whether some evidence should be taken in closed session.

The inquiry will consider allegations made by Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for High Park, before a legislature committee on June 4.

Dr. Shulman said George Clinton Duke, 63, president of Duke Lewis Equipment Ltd. of Oakville, had social and business contacts with provincial police officers. Mr. Duke had served a prison sentence in the United States on a robbery charge laid in 1928.

Spoof on Mother Goose Stories To Entertain the Younger Set

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Things are running amok at the Belleville Theatre Guild's Pinnacle Playhouse where a play sponsored by the Belleville Recreation Commission is in rehearsal.

But the confusion and the bedlam are part of the play as Theatre Guild members perform Muddled Mother Goose's Fractured Fairy Tales.

The dramatics will be presented for the benefit of the playground children at the Pinnacle Playhouse Aug. 4 and 6 and at the Zwick's Island Bandshell Aug. 8.

The play, written by The Belleville Theatre Guild's Mrs. Maxine Albert, concerns a day in the affairs of Mother Goose, portrayed by Rose Robertson.

"I should not have got up this morning," says Mother Goose and that line from the play just about sums up the general situation.

The audience is taken on a journey to the land of Mother Goose where fairy tale characters live. However, the characters are protesting at some of their roles.

Jack and Jill for instance are not getting along well. Jack will not fall down and break his crown. Winnie the Witch is having trouble with her magic spells.

As a result of her problems, Mother Goose suddenly and deciding she is too old for the fairy tale business, leaves but returns to find that all's well that ends well.

Mrs. Albert directs her play with Pearl Ann Vani acting as stage manager. Norman Morrison portrays Smiley Zorgabliati, the heavy who has a change of heart and develops a halo in the play.

Also acting are Elizabeth Edwards, Nancy Riddel, Frank Benedict, Barry Clark, Bob Sexsmith,-Ruby Morton, Weldon Reid and Elizabeth Horforth.

The costumes are designed by Lindsay Hallam.

Shades of Mother Goose

Elizabeth Edwards, Rene Robertson and Norman Morrison rehearse their parts for the Belleville Theatre Guild's children's play, Muddled Mother Goose's Fractured Fairy Tales. The play, written and directed by Mrs. Maxine Albert, will be shown to the belleville children at the Pinnacle Playhouse Aug. 4 and 6 and the Zwick's Island Bandshell Aug. 9.

Must Sacrifice Giant Maples To Make Way for OSD Pool

The Ontario School for the Deaf is losing a touch of timelessness — and gaining the most up - to - date sports facility in the Quinte district.

Majestic old maples, some of them believed to have shaded the east side of the school since its foundation, yesterday were heaved to the ground — first phase in a million - dollar highlight of the school's centennial year.

Their abrupt, symbolic end was inevitably necessary to make way for a sports complex housing a swimming pool and gymnasium.

It's a construction that also has community significance.

The swimming pool — when not required by the school — is expected to be available for city recreation programs.

Rounding off the project will be an all - weather athletic track, flanking the sports building and making the installation an all - round recreation complex.

A spokesman for Ivey-Dregg Construction Company, of Melville — which holds the contract of more than $1,000,000 — estimates the project could be finished within 12 months.

"There shouldn't be any question it'll be available for the next school year in September (1971) if not before," agrees OSD superintendent, Dr. J. G. Demeza.

Dr. Demeza also confirms plans "extending the pool's availability as a community resource."

It's now contemplated that the pool will be available for community use — under proper supervision — when the school isn't using it," he said.

"We don't feel it should be idle. It certainly will be available when the school isn't in session and such additional times when the school schedule doesn't require it."

(Availability of the pool would also give a well-rounded look to present municipal plans being mooted for west Belleville. The OSD is adjacent to the city and schools property now being viewed for development as a total community recreation area. A rink, ball and soccer fields, tied in with school facilities, are among the facilities projected for the area.)

Vital statistics of the OSD project include: the pool, 35 by 72 feet; a 80-by-164-foot gymnasium with a folding partition permitting its separation for simultaneous programs.

The track, to be built north of the indoor facility, will have a rubberized surface.

At its peak the construction project is expected to employ 45-50 workers.

much lower than those in walleyes.

Samples sent for testing to the Ontario Water Resources Commission were taken from the lake by Glenora researchers in the spring, he said. Previous large samplings were taken in October and November and revealed "nothing alarming."

"We had no indication in the past that there was anything to be alarmed about in Lake Ontario," he added.

However, "the situation can change."

In Toronto, Mr. Clarke indicated his department's findings likely would parallel the U.S. results.

"The U.S. is getting levels of one to 1.2 parts per million in some areas, especially in the upper part of Lake Ontario in the Bath area," said Mr. Clarke.

"I don't think we would get any different figures since they are the same waters."

Anglers in New York State have been warned against eating fish taken from the affected areas.

Mr. Clarke said he doubts Ontario would ban fishing in the area, which includes large sports-fishing grounds off the Thousand Islands.

"What might happen is that people may be warned that they shouldn't eat the fish."

He noted that the small commercial fisheries in the area support most of their catch to the U.S. and must meet U.S. food standards.

He could not say when the department's tests would be completed, and added that any decision about action to be taken would be made by the Ontario Legislature, Minister of lands and forests.

Ontario already has banned commercial fishing downstream from Cornwall because of mercury pollution from chemical industrial sources in that city.

Premier Robarts, speaking at a news conference Monday, rejected suggestions made in the U.S. that commercial fishing be banned on Lake Ontario because of mercury pollution.

He said any governmental action would be based "on our own studies" and a total ban was not being contemplated at this time.

Meantime, the OWRC scientist who looked into Clay Lake report, says he did so in the public interest.

"It would probably cost me my job if the leak could be traced back to me," he said. "But I do not think it is in the public interest to withhold this information, particularly in view of the advertising by tourist camp operator on the lake that his guests eat the fish daily."

The report was submitted to the OWRC by Dr. E. G. Bligh, assistant director of the Freshwater Institute in Winnipeg.

Dr. Bligh's report shows that one species, burbot, has mercury concentrations ranging from 10.46 parts per million to 14.65, more than 10 times the highest level Canada considers safe for human consumption.

Burbot, also known as ling or lahyer fish, is sometimes confused with catfish or bullhead.

The report said the deaths and poisonings five years ago in Japan resulted from a daily fish diet containing only five parts per million of mercury. The Canadian safe standard is .5 parts per million.

The High report says walleye from Clay had levels from 7.02 to 8.41, northern pike 8.32 and eleen, a fresh-water herring, 7.26.

Dr. Bligh warned last week in Winnipeg that Clay Lake levels were the world's highest. He said the levels were dangerous to health and could be lethal.

In Unfreville Lake, about 190 miles downstream from Clay on the English River system, walleys tested at 3.89 parts per million.

The Whitedog Indian reserve is nearby on Tetu Lake and Chief Roy MacDonald says his people eat fish from both Unfreville and Tetu.

Commercial fishing was banned May 1 on Clay, Umfreville, Tetu, Ball, Indian, Lount, Separation, Crossan, Pemichangan and Eagle Lakes.

Sports fishermen were warned May 1 that fish taken from the lakes could be health hazards. The lakes were exposed to be posted as fish-for-fun areas where fish could be caught, but not eaten.

Mall is Becoming Shopping Hub

County's First Shopping Centre, Picton's Armory Mall Bustling

PICTON (Staff) — Relocation of several Main Street businesses in the Armory Mall has increased the number of shoppers browsing through its stores.

Purchased from the town of Picton for approximately $15,000 in 1968 by the Standard Trust Company, the former armories building was converted into a modern shopping centre. In its first months of operation at least five Main street businesses moved to the Armory Mall. Two new shops also were opened in the Mall.

Manager of the Standard Trust Company and president of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, Jack Purtelle, noted, however, that to be successful every shopping mall requires a major tenant.

Among the businesses locating in the mall this month was Simpsons Sears mail order office, a new drawing card for customers. A shoe shop, a carpet store and a coffee bar also have opened in the attractive shopping centre.

Several merchants operating in the Armory Mall since its opening said yesterday that the new businesses moving into the plaza have boosted their trade. One businessman who opened a camera shop in the early days of the mall remarked that he has noticed "a big difference" in the number of shoppers visiting his store. "People come in, perhaps to go into the order office, and frequently end up looking in the other stores," he commented.

Carpenters are still at work in the mall expanding its facilities. It is expected that a real estate office, a paint and wallpaper shop, and possibly a major store will locate there in the next few weeks.

Further expansion in the spacious building is a future project welcomed by Mr. Purtelle. He suggested that renovation of the basement will be the next step in broadening the facilities of Prince Edward County's first shopping centre. "We will examine this idea seriously in the future," he said.

Already a photographer's studio and a carpenter's workshop are located on the basement floor.

The second floor of the mall is the headquarters for local young people who enjoy dancing and conversation at The Third Ear, a teen drop - in centre open each weekend all year round and one evening each week during the summer months.

The present activity throughout shops in the mall prompted Mr. Purtelle to remark, "Traffic here has definitely improved and we are quite pleased. Among a rural shopping clientele habits can be difficult to break but a major tenant is helping us to bring changes."

Roblin Lake Camp Toured by Rotary

An innovation at the Salvation Army's Roblin Lake camp this year is family camping. According to divisional commander Brigadier Harold Thorpe this initiative is not going too well and so far, best is able to report nevertheless to the fact that a mother and four children — sent by the Children's Aid — have spent a period at the Amelisburg area camp.

More than 400 young people have attended the camp so far this year, Belleville Rotarians learned when they were guests at lunch yesterday. Subsequently, they toured the facilities which include the century old main building used as staff quarters and ancillary buildings which include cabins, dining hall, canteen, office, laundry and even a hospital.

It was warm and sunny as the Rotarians toured the area and watched the youngsters enjoying the cool waters of the lake.

Brigadier Sharpe pointed to renovations and additions which had been carried out and to the fact that the camp serves campers from Whitby to Gananoque, and Picton to Peterborough. Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, Campbellford and Tweed.

Merchants Can't Agree On Monday Closing

PICTON (Staff) — "The last weekend" continually experienced by the majority of Picton store employees could be eliminated with the co-operation of all merchants, in the opinion of Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce president Jack Purtelle. He feels that disagreement among employers concerning the benefits of a general Monday closing of Picton stores will defeat any proposal for a two-day weekend.

Observed Mr. Purtelle, "We discussed a Monday closing at the Chamber of Commerce about a year ago but nothing just fell by the wayside because there was lack of agreement among the merchants.

He added that a two-day weekend, from his observations, makes the employee eager to work harder when he returns to his job. This tendency, he feels, is somewhat stifled among workers who have only a Wednesday half-holiday followed later by a Sunday holiday. Economy also plays a part in the desirability of the five day work week.

Manager of the Standard Trust Company, Picton, Mr. Purtelle commented, "It doesn't pay to keep your staff for only half a day. It is much more economical to bring them in for an entire day on Wednesday and give them a full day off on Monday. Store employees are entitled to a two - day weekend just like every other person."

Although many Picton store owners favor the Monday closing, they seemingly reject it unless there is a general agreement on it. Said Mr. Purtelle, "Everyone has to be dependent and are worried about someone stealing business."

An advocate of the two-day weekend, the chamber of commerce president feels, however, that the present holiday system is best during the tourist season. He suggested that a Monday closing could be instituted by merchants from January until April, then replaced by the Wednesday half - holiday. "I'd like to see it operate here similar to tourist areas adjacent to us," he added.

Merchants in the Armory Mall have discussed the Monday closing and in time may effect it as their policy. The Standard Trust Company presently offers employees a two-day weekend in support of efficiency and economy.

lee, the residents spotted the trawlers and immediately started shooting in their direction in the dark.

He said he had earlier been aboard the trawler Scotia Bay out of Yarmouth, N.S., and "her captain showed me where the bullets had struck" in Sunday's incident.

"He told me his men did not want to work under these conditions," Mr. Moore said.

Mayor Boucher said in a telephone interview Monday that the viewers came from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, British Columbia and Alberta.

The residents of the area, Mr. Boucher said, depend upon the sea or the tourist trade for their living.

"It's supposed that the trawler fishermen have a five-year permit to fish for herring but they are fishing not only the herring but also for cod," he said.

The villagers suspect the trawlers, most of the village during the last two weeks, were dragging nets for cod and Mayor Boucher said the local cod catch was below normal.

"We would like the governments to consider the matter and prohibit foreigners from fishing within three miles of the coast."

He said his administration complained to the federal and Quebec governments but no action was taken.

A federal spokesman said Monday the problem is a provincial matter.

Villagers also said the trawlers dumped garbage and oil which polluted their beaches, just about drying up the steady trickle of tourists which usually visits the area.

"The business was good before the trawlers came," said Jean Duchesne, owner of the village's only hotel. "Now, the ones who came here regularly to fish are leaving."

Mayor Boucher said shots were also fired Monday but only three or four.

The Nonsuch

Well you cannot say Canadians are unmindful of the past, of what went before in this great land; and of course there is that feeling deep down in all of us about faraway places and the tang of the sea. The visit of the Nonsuch, replica of the Hudson's Bay Company vessel of 300 years ago, proved that.

Some lucky cadets from the navies of Germany, Portugal, Scandinavia and Latin America have exchanged dream for reality with trainees in the sturdy sailing giants maintained by those countries. For most of us, however, our fling before the mast has come from such vicarious experiences as the film Mutiny on the Bounty and more recently Jacknife visit to the Nonsuch right here in Belleville.

All weekend a steady stream of people headed for the waterfront to see the vessel, to ponder the facts of its historical background, its sailing qualities — and of course being the materialistic people we are, to express amazement at its economics. The original Nonsuch cost about £300 (about $500 at today's exchange rates), while the replica cost $175,000 to build!

Women—Again!

Women pumping gas and changing oil . . . women as flagmen for traffic on construction sites . . . women doing underwater research in the Caribbean. These were some of the interesting activities of the distaff side discussed in this space last week.

The Ontario Industrial Review for 1969 takes this theme a little further with information on conferences organized by the Women's Advisory Committee which although it is not stated, we presume to be an arm of the provincial government.

Although unlisted among the committees of the Ontario Economic Council this could be where it belongs, and the Council itself does have a woman member in Mrs. A. F. W. Plumptre, who is president of the Vanier Institute of the Family and past president of the Consumers' Association of Canada.

The review notes that conferences held in Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, Sudbury, Sarnia, Simcoe and Trenton were attended by a total of 4,000 delegates. Premier Robarts, four cabinet ministers and 20 departmental representatives also took part in a panel discussion and answered questions from some of the 1,400 women present.

Then, in more rather stiff language of government, the review continues in part: "Emphasis is placed during discussions on the availability of Canadian products and the advantages of buying them, the importance of women in improving Canadian design and product standards and the promotion of Canadian fashion and styles. All these factors, it is pointed out, help create the 100,000 new jobs each year that are required to keep and encourage manufacturers to improve their goods and services and enhance Ontario's living standards."

"The importance of the clothing industry," the review continued, "is also emphasized through manufacturers' fashions shows. As a large portion of the consumer dollar is spent on clothing, it is important to point up the advances in Canadian styles, and the fact that they vie with those created in other parts of the world."

From this emerges the suggestion that women are still very much tied to the apron strings of budgets, consumer affairs as they affect the home, and the fashion world. There is no hint of the goods from abroad which compete with our own and often find favor over our own. Indeed, the review would have had greater impact had it gone into more detail about Canada's manufactures and how illustrated them attractively and thereby shown the reader good reason for favoring the home product.

Further on fit the booklet there is an effort in this direction . . . but those poor women! One of their number is shown being exploited (as some no doubt would claim) in demonstrating an Ontario product at the International Gifts Fair in Blackpool, England. The young woman's bare back is exposed to a booth the lettering which people here use to identify name and address on the Maple Leaf box and the like. And the caption? "Instant lettering from Ontario will stick to any surface."

The Royal Commission on the Status of Women of course will tell us more of what women are doing, and trying to do if only our male-dominated society will afford them the chance. Meanwhile we may be assured that the conferences sponsored by the Women's Advisory Committee are going strong. During the last decade, 30,000 women have attended 60 such conferences.

Axe for External Affairs...And

Some Farcical Sidelights of 'Diplomatic Immunity'

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The art, trade or profession of diplomacy, says Prime Minister Trudeau, is something out of another world.

The unhurried world of yesterday before the dawn of the era of instant communication.

To the dismay of the diplomats of External Affairs, the PM has gone on to say, with a shrug, that the limousine as and in the Government's own staff, the trade commissioners of the Industry Trade and Commerce Department more often than not provide a better, faster and more reliable communications service.

He was not deliberately putting down the diplomats, but simply stating the fact of their increasing obsolescence.

So, in the Prime Minister's economy operation on the Government, the knife has gone deeper into External Affairs than any other federal Department.

The diplomats, nursing their departmental surgical wounds, wonder why nobody, including the PM, seems to love them.

One of several reasons may be found in that quaint custom, stubbornly preserved by diplomacy from what the PM has called that "rather world," of diplomatic immunity.

Street scene:

A big black limousine swings into Ottawa's pedestrian Mall and parks in front of a bank in the noontime lunchtime rush.

The chauffeur and its occupant, a diplomat's wife, both are fully aware that cars are forbidden on the Mall, and that in using the limousine as a wedge to clear the pedestrians and open a place to park there is a double traffic offence.

They well know this, but do not give a damn because their diplomatic immunity puts them above the law.

This is confirmed by a police officer who, hastily ticket-book in hand, approaches the limousine while the diplomat's wife is in the bank, spots the "CD" — Corps Diplomatique — license plates, and walks by.

No use ticketing the limousine for motor trespass and parking on the Mall, for the police officer is well aware that the chauffeur will take relish tearing up the ticket and then plead diplomatic immunity — by phone — with External Affairs.

Street scene:

A big blue station wagon bearing "CD" plates is parked illegally just scant feet from the Mall, blocking a truck loading area and trapping two delivery vans in a dead-end laneway.

It has been there for two hours, and the owner of the city's leading arts and native crafts shop, hopping mad about delayed deliveries, has been scurrying on the phone to police headquarters.

A police officer is on the scene, a rookie, who has ticketed the station wagon and called a tow - truck.

Pedestrians halt him he is wasting his time, the owners of the station wagon are diplomats, enjoying immunity.

But the police officer will stay. He has an obligation to discharge: give the diplomat the choice of paying the $10 towaway charge and be free to drive home to the embassy and forget the incident, or refuse to pay, see the station wagon hooked to the car pound, and redeem it later with payment of the $25 fee.

At that moment the diplomat approaches and this exchange follows:

"If this is your station wagon, it is illegally parked."

"So?"

"So I have called a tow-truck," explaining the option the diplomat has with the $25 penalty of paying now or later.

"Take the car."

And the haughty diplomat stalks off to the telephone, presumably across the Mall to enter his plea of immunity with External Affairs.

But he has miscalculated. His station wagon has been hooked away by a commercial towing service and he had incurred a commercial debt. No payment of penalty, no car.

He was home-free with his immunity on the parking ticket, though, because it was a legal matter and not a commercial transaction, and sympathetic External Affairs could take care of it.

Street scene:

A diplomat complains to External Affairs that a neighbor's dog, the beloved pet of an aging widow, had frightened his maids and chambermaid.

The police come to call with fairs that the dog must go — to the pound and likely extermination, or into exile.

"The widow places her dog on a farm, and twice-a-week goes to visit it.

External, shortly afterwards, gets a complaint form another neighbour and backyard over and another — not the widow, any of them — that the diplomat's dog has barged their children.

But the dog is safe, above contentment in the pound and probable death, on the farm, because it shares in the protection of the diplomat's immunity.

Strange people, these diplomats, to wonder, as they do, why they are so unloved.

How far does diplomatic immunity go?

The limit. A diplomat's speeding car killed a small girl on an Ottawa street. He was above the law, and could not be touched even by such a mild reprimand as a gentle slap on the wrist.

He was a member of that privileged clan of ambassadors extraordinary and ministers plenipotentiary you read about.

But then, Canada's diplomats on assignment abroad enjoy the same broad privileges of immunity.

Another world, diplomacy, as the Prime Minister says.

Radicalism Rampant

Internal Pressures Harass the U. S.

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The internal disintegration of the United States is viewed with smug complacency by a large percentage of Canadians. Behind a philosophy of "it cannot happens here," the lethargic majority succumb to the persuasion of subtle promptings from all segments of the news media.

Any utterance by profession-al intellectuals is guaranteed maximum exposure, especially if accepted standards and customs are attacked. Unlimited space in newspapers seems available to any group for the pastime of publicly pilloring the Prime Minister and other elected officials. Likewise, there appears no shortage of time on television networks for the propagation of intellectual ideas, usually based on radical theories, which they would have us believe will alleviate our ills overnight and lead to a veritable Utopia.

Usually nurtured through college into the cloistered levels of higher learning in universities, these people pursue a life far removed from practical reality, thus the logic of their rhetoric makes little impact upon the average man or woman.

The National Observer comments "this quest for self-assured, intolerant thinkers has a manufactured and propagandist-ed illusory concept of ideal United Nations Charter 89-2.

Many of Canada's intellectuals seem tainted with the same brush. Firmly convinced of the validity of their ideas and theories, these misguided, and frequently well-meaning men and women, utterly reject contradiction from any source.

Preaching dissension, and advocating revolution, many of them have infiltrated our schools and universities, while others, through the news media, conduct campaigns of denigration against elected officials and our chosen way of life.

As yet, Canada has not experienced the prolonged hysteria these people can evoke, but there is ample evidence we are about to be subjected to similar torment as our neighbors to the south.

Unless Canadians wake up and shake off the national apathy that chains them to this year's new car, or next year's new snowmobile, they may well find themselves living in a country firmly in the hands of professional dreamers, with disorder, permissiveness, drug addiction, and declension the order of the day.

Civil Rights of Union Members

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Ronald Martin, president of the provincial Building and Construction Trades Council, is reportedly upset about the Government's plan to safeguard the unionized workers' civil rights and therefore, defends the Council's decision to call a series of one-day rotating strikes which would culminate in a one-day general walkout through the province, marked by a mass demonstration at Queen's Park. He said the purpose of the action is "to make the Government come to its senses."

Mr. Martin is particularly angry about the amendment which would allow some employees — who because of their religious belief object to supporting a specific union as a condition of their employment— to pay the equivalent of union dues to a registered, Canadian charity. He termed this "a phony provision" and thinks it "the thin edge of the wedge."

The amendment declaring the threatening of an unlawful strike to be tortious and unfair practice also incenses him.

Mr. Martin's remarks are excusable that the Council is opposed to these civil rights measures. After all, its affiliates have consistently resorted to boycotts and wildcat strikes in defiance of the nearly two years' notice for many workers to ply their trades in freedom. These and other weapons have also been ruthlessly exploited to discriminate against the C.N.T.U. and other independent, government-recognized unions.

Apparently, Mr. Martin and his colleagues only endorse legislation that furthers their own unions' monopoly position but discriminates against others. Never mind the civil liberties of fellow Canadians. Establishmentarian unionism must be maintained regardless of the price. Or does the AFL-CIO-CLC affiliates' illegal strike action tactics mean that they believe their NDP MPPs to be incapable of presenting a convincing case against the Government's legislative proposals?

Let's hope that the Government-and-by-general and voting-age to do what is just. If anything, the socalled unions' present one-day general and rotating strikes clearly confirm the urgent need for the very amendments they are protesting.

France Major Source of Arms and Planes for S. Africa

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — The announcement of a possible easing by Britain of its ban on the sale of arms to South Africa has aroused an outcry of protest from Afro-Asian members of the Commonwealth.

But France has long been selling planes, helicopters and other military supplies to the South Africans, with virtually no protests from the normally-sensitive left-wingers of Paris or the French-speaking nations of black Africa.

"Seemingly they are more realistic about these things in France," commented one British newspaper.

The United Nations resolutions calling for an embargo on arms shipments to South Africa were passed in 1963 and 1964.

Nevertheless in the eight years up to 1968, South Africa ranked as a leading customer of the French aircraft industry. It trailed only two other purchasers of French military aircraft, the United States and Israel.

In the period since 1968, South Africa has continued to be a lucrative outlet for French arms makers.

The republic's navy has ordered three 1,000-ton submarines and three helicopters from France, together with other military equipment.

If Britain's Conservative government now decides to allow shipment of what it calls "certain limited categories of arms" to South Africa, the way will be open for arms loans competitive involving millions of dollars between makers of military hardware on both sides of the English Channel.

The French concede that Britain is better placed to supply South Africa with frigates but they predict that France will continue buying helicopters from France.

In Paris as in London the distinction made by officials between weapons suited for use by South Africa and any external fore—trade in which is considered acceptable—and those adaptable to action against domestic rebels is widely treated with great skepticism.

In Britain, however, the skepticism forms part of an intensive campaign against the idea of sending weapons to the homeland of apartheid.

On the other hand, French intellectuals, famed for their militant denunciation of U.S. developments as U.S. actions in Indochina, have remained strangely quiet about weapons going to South Africa from France.

The lack of protest may reflect a traditional feeling among the French that South Africa is part of the British imperial legacy and—in its more unsavory aspects at least—is no burden on France's conscience.

A similar acquiescence in the French arms supplies is evident among leaders of the former French colonies in black Africa.

This contrasts sharply with the stance adopted by ex-British colonies on the African continent to the announcement of a possible resumption of British arms supplies to South Africa.

The difference in reactions may be linked to the fact the French-speaking African countries, despite their achievement of national independence, remain more heavily dependent on Paris for economic and political support than do their English-speaking counterparts on London.

Shutdown of B.C. Pulp Mills Seems Certain

VANCOUVER (CP) — A complete shutdown of British Columbia's pulp and paper industry appeared less than 24 hours away today, with last-minute government intervention the only possibility that might avert a strike.

With eight pulp mills shut down because of a strike that began last Friday, the ban was certified in the remaining 10 mills announced Monday they will strike at 8 a.m. Wednesday because "insufficient progress has been made" in wage negotiations with the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau.

The bureau, which bargains for employers, immediately requested the assistance of a government mediator. Under the labor law appointment of a mediator would block a strike for 30 days, and his findings could be extended.

The Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, however, launched their strike Friday despite the appointment of a mediator Thursday. The union claimed they had a legal right to strike after the initial 14 days and submission of a "no progress" report by the mediator.

Involved in the latest strike threat are the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Papermill Workers and the United Papermakers and Paperworkers. They represent about 6,000 of the 18,000 employees in the industry. The Canadian union already on strike represents the remainder.

The existing base rate throughout the industry is $3.36 an hour.

The PPWC has turned down an offer of a three-year contract with raises of five per cent a year the first two years and six per cent in the third. The offer to the two international unions has not been disclosed, although it has been termed "substantial" by employers.

Meanwhile, some 25,000 construction workers began returning to their jobs Monday after a lockout-caused shutdown that started in mid-April, but industry spokesmen said it would be at least a week before the situation returned to normal.

Fisherman Scoffs at Davis' Plan to Go to Sea

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP) — A plan by Fisheries Minister Jack Davis to "spend a night or two" aboard a fishboat off the west coast of Vancouver Island to "keep an eye on the Soviet fishing fleet in the area was described as "laughable" Monday night by trawler skipper Barry Robinson.

Capt. Robinson was anchored in his 49-foot boat, the Dess Lyle, with his young son and daughter when a 300-foot Soviet trawler sideswiped him while bottom-dragging at 3 a.m. Saturday.

The incident occurred about 30 miles off the west coast of Vancouver Island in international waters but on a shallow bank traditionally trolled for salmon by Canadians.

The massive Soviet ship, moving through the sleeping 49-boat Canadian fleet at 16 knots as it dragged for herring, damaged trolling poles and rigging on both sides of the Dess Lyle, then caught the smaller craft's aerodar line as it forged ahead.

Robinson, his boat being dragged sideways into a heavy sea, had to cut the anchor line to keep from sinking.

The damaged vessel, escorted by other Canadian trollers, reached its home port of Port Alberni 15 hours later. The skipper calculated that the incident will cost him $5,500—not to mention "a lot of aggravation" as his boat and the remainder of his season from the 15 to 18 days of fishing he'll miss while the Dess Lyle is being repaired.

He said he had heard of Mr. Davis' plan, announced Monday in Ottawa, to spend a couple of days aboard a Canadian trailer but said the idea was "laughable" to fishermen.

"It's far too little, far too late," he said.

"He should have been out for a week or two five years ago when we told the government this would happen. What the hell can anyone learn in two days?

"I think it's a ridiculous, political baby-kissing type of move. It might satisfy the general public, but to fishermen it's a laughable idea."

He said any trailer would be "delighted" to take Mr. Davis out and then added: "It's a good idea he's going out because it's damned well time the fisheries minister went fishing."

A spokesman for Mr. Davis' office in Vancouver said plans are not final regarding how and when the fisheries minister will visit the area, other than that it would be "inconspicuous because the minister doesn't want to tip his exact presence to the Russians."

A spokesman for the Canadian armed services said the number of Soviet draggers in the area has decreased from about 18 last weekend to about five or six right now, but he added the Russians follow the fish and could return overnight.

The Canadian trollers, which fish only during daylight hours, were anchored Friday night over a known herring area. They expected salmon to feed on the smaller herring in the morning and planned to troll for them. The Soviet trawler, dragging the bottom with a huge fine-mesh net, was catching herring.

"They fish all night," said Mr. Robinson. "With their whole ship awash with light, they can't see anything in the dark beyond them.

He said the Soviet vessels never stop to offer assistance when they break a trailer. He said it is "only a matter of time" until a Canadian boat will sink after a direct collision.

When this happened, he said, the trailer would simply be listed as another Canadian "loss at sea" and the crew presumed drowned" and the real story never be known.

Citizens Can Sue Michigan Polluters

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A bill was signed into law Monday that gives Michigan citizens the right to sue industries, municipalities, state government or other residents for pollution.

It allows citizens the right to go to court to stop industries from continuing to pollute water or the air, the freedom to challenge state anti-pollution regulations as too low, or to take neighbors to court.

Before the law, such anti-pollution suits could only be filed by persons who could prove actual personal loss.

Lewis Favors Takeover Of Denison Mines Ltd.

SUDBURY (CP) — Both the Ontario and federal governments should consider a public takeover of Denison Mines Ltd., Stephen Lewis, candidate for the provincial New Democratic Party leadership, said Monday.

"We cannot afford to pump public funds down a private artery for ever," Mr. Lewis told a meeting of trade union representatives from the Sudbury locals of United Steelworkers of America.

Mr. Lewis suggested several steps the governments could take to prevent the loss of the mine, or the sale of majority interest to United States financiers. Ottawa recently moved to prevent the foreign takeover of Denison through sale to Hudson Bay Oil and Gas Co., which is U.S. controlled.

Mr. Lewis said Ottawa must first be told that a subsidy or stockpile program must be made to work, and not let Stephen Roman, chairman of Denison, decide the fate of 1,000 families at Elliot Lake, where the mine is located.

He said public investment in Denison has reached $80,000,000 during the last six years, an investment which should be protected with the purchase by a federal Crown corporation of the shares offered to Hudson Bay.

In Toronto, Premier John Robarts said the NDP member was making "a political speech" and that there is no firm indication that the mine will close.

Text of Mr. Lewis' remarks was released in advance.

War Costs Said Cut By Nixon

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (Reuters) — On the heels of a report that has cut Vietnam war spending to half, President Nixon will meet his advisers today to begin planning next year's defence budget.

But despite the savings from the war, Nixon has indicated he holds little hope that defence expenditures can be cut much more.

Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird met with Nixon Monday and said after word of the cost of the war has been cut to half of an annual figure of $20,000,000,000 the Nixon administration took office 18 months ago.

He also told a news conference that over-all defence spending is down about $17,000,000,000 a year compared with three years ago.

Laird said the savings resulted from the administration's policy of turning over a greater share of the fighting to the South Vietnamese as U.S. troops are gradually withdrawn.

Nixon expressed his pessimism about further defence spending cuts last week when he told a news conference: "There is very little left to take out of defence."

Ontario's Midwest Has Woes

LISTOWEL, Ont. (CP) — A provincial government assessment of midwestern Ontario says the area is troubled by population loss and static economic conditions in its western section.

The report, covering the counties of Waterloo, Wellington, Perth and Huron, was released Monday night by Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton.

The report is based on a four-year study of population, industrial figures, university studies and studies of regional economists, and covers mainly the census years 1961 and 1966.

The 150-page report says most growth developments in the area has occurred in an urban corridor consisting of Kitchener, Waterloo, Guelph, Galt, Preston and Hespeler.

This corridor comprises only 14 per cent of midwestern Ontario's total land area, but "between 1961 and 1966, over 50 per cent of total regional population growth occurred in this area," which now contains 61 per-cent of the region's population.

"Considering 85 per cent of the region's land area, accounting for 39 per cent of the total population in 1966 per cent of the population growth during the 1961-66 period."

Rideau Lake Station Plans Demonstration

ELGIN, Ont. (CP) — A demonstration of the utilization of solar energy in waste-pollution control is planned for Wednesday at the Rideau Research Institute field station on Rideau Lake near the community 35 miles northwest of Brockville.

The field day, as it is called, will be attended by representatives from Canadian universities and the federal and provincial governments. Also present will be several members and consultants of the Rideau Research Institute as well as students working yith the institute.

The project is concerned with the advancement of methods for the control of waste pollution by means of screening devices between the waste effluent and the water's edge using solar energy.

B.C. Fire Nearly Checked

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP) — A forest fire that swept to within 26 miles of the nesting grounds for many of the whooping cranes should be checked within the next two days if the weather holds, officials said Monday.

Forecasts called for little change—chance of 10 m.p.h. from the north, cool nights and day-time highs of 65.

The fire near the nesting area is one of nine burning in Wood Buffalo national park, 17,300 square miles of lakes, mud flats, timber and muskeg that straddles the Alberta-Northwest Territories border.

At least 21 cranes have been reported nesting in the park out of a world population of less than 99.

A. D. Adie, park superintendent, said priority was still being given to fire in the area of the whooping cranes.

Peace Crusade Leaves Tokyo Man Penniless

TOKYO (AP) — Four years ago Morihiro Matsuda had a thriving business, a small apartment house, a wife and two young sons.

Today he's broke and alone because of a peace crusade.

Matsuda spent $60,000 for full-page ads in the New York Times, the London Times, the Chicago Daily News and the Chicago Sun-Times to publicize proposals which he said would end the Vietnam war.

To finance his crusade, Matsuda sold his apartment building and his business, a mail order firm which sold musclebuilding equipment.

Forced Integration Of Suburbs Not Aim

WARREN, Mich. (AP) — On a sudden trip to his home state, George Romney, United States secretary of housing and urban development, has assured suburban mayors that his department has no plans to force racial integration on their cities.

The former Michigan governor said Monday: "Nobody should be pressured to go anywhere" although "it is the essence of a free society that every family should have a choice."

Romney called the special meeting of the mayors to answer copyright stories printed in the Detroit News which said his department had singled out the suburb of Warren—with more than 100,000 residents—as a target for integration.

The story said the department planned to "use its vast power to force integration of America's white suburbs."

Romney said the stories were incorrect.

Romney said Monday, his department "will not set numerical quotas for the suburbs."

Romney said the "department does encourage integration through voluntary action, and we have a statutory mandate to prohibit a national policy or fair housing."

"There is not now and will not be any . . . policy mandating forced racial integration in suburbs."

Actors' Fund Aids Needy Performers

TORONTO (CP) — Thirteen years ago five actors got together, contributed $1 each and started the Actors' Fund of Canada.

The idea behind the fund was that actors should be protected against a mishap, an illness or a misfortune making it impossible for them to appear when the final curtain goes up.

Jane Mallett, Donald Davis, Barbara Hamilton, Douglas Rain and Dennis Sweeting have seen their original $5 investment multiply and eventually help hundreds of actors in such predicaments.

"This is not a fund for downand-outers," Miss Mallett says. "It's for pros among all members of the theatrical professions in Canada and their families who are suffering because of age, sickness or destitution."

She cited the example of an old vaudevillian, a singer familiar to many in her heyday, who was helped for years when she was plagued with asthma and loneliness.

Then there was the proud, independent old actor who wouldn't go into a home and was found barely existing in his shabby room. The fund paid his rent until he died at the age of 90.

In another case, an actress was unable to work because she had to care for two small children as her husband was dying of an incurable disease. Funds were provided for a housekeeper so that she could continue to support her family.

Single Costume

MONTREAL (CP) — A new booklet published by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union says no single costume covers as many around-the-clock needs as the dress and matching coat combination. Why bother going home to change when one can start off in the morning ready for practically any occasion, it says. Designers comment that "it's flattering to every one, junior and over 30."

WEDDINGS

CAREW — FAULKNER

St. Paul's United Church, Stirling was the scene of the June 27 wedding of Susan Kay Faulkner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blake Faulkner of Stirling and Lieut. John Grant Carew, son of Sgt. and Mrs. Grant Carew also of Stirling. Rev. J. Bruce Small officiated at the ceremony; organist was Mrs. Andrew Faulkner and soloist Mrs. Douglas Faulkner.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white flocked sheer gown over white peau de soie featuring a high neck, sheer sleeves and a long flared veil fastened with lilies of the valley. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations with deep pink roses.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Helen McMaster, sister of the bride, wearing a deep pink floor-length crepe dress featuring long sleeves and green and pink rosebud trim. She carried a cascade bouquet of white and pink carnations.

Bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Carew, Miss Linda Faulkner and Miss Beth Fraser. Each wore a dress identical to that of the matron of honor and a pearl drop pendant, a gift from the bride.

Best man was Larry McMaster and ushers were Douglas Carew, Ronald McCrory and David Murray.

For the reception held at the church parlor, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a green sculptured silk street-length dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations with pink rosebuds.

The bridegroom's mother wore a mauve figured silk dress with pink flowered hat, white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations and roses.

For the wedding trip to points east the bride chose a white lace pant suit, red accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Upon their return the couple will reside on Henry St., Trenton.

STAPLEY — MARSHALL

St. Mark's Anglican Church, Deseronto was the scene of the recent marriage of Mary Linda Marshall, daughter of George Marshall of Marysville and Helen Marshall of Kingston, and David Roy Stapley of Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stapley of Deseronto. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. John Neal.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a crepe gown with full-length sleeves of Austrian embroidered organza edged with crepe band cuffs and pearl button trim with an insert at the neckline of matching organza. She wore a floor-length tulle veil with banded headpiece of assorted flowers and pearl drops and carried a bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses.

A green velvet ribbon formed a bow in the back. The headpiece of assorted flowers formed a halo and she carried a basket of yellow shasta daisies.

Bridesmaids were Miss Cathy Stapley, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Sylvia Robson, cousin of the bride and Miss Aileen Shaw. Each wore a dress identical to that of the maid of honor in apricot with orange velvet ribbon trim and carried a basket of white shasta daisies.

The Experts Say

Hearing Aids Should Only Be Purchased on Doctor's Advice

OTTAWA (CP) — One in every 40 Canadians has some degree of hearing handicap.

Of Canadians more than 65 years old, one in every five has some hearing loss in both ears, says the federal consumer affairs department in its Consumer Communique.

Hearing aids in many cases can add greatly to a person's enjoyment of life but the prospective buyer should know certain things to watch for.

The Consumer Communique says that before buying a hearing aid, a person should get a doctor's advice on the degree of deafness suffered and on how worthwhile a hearing aid would be.

The buyer should be wary of advertising claims of "instant hearing," "new inventions" and "miracles."

Look for information on the quality of the hearing aid, not on its cosmetic value. Manufacturers' brochures and promotional material usually give more information than advertisements. Ask for them.

"Contests" for hearing aids are often simply a means of acquiring names of prospective customers. It may be a disservice to volunteer a friend's name.

Many provinces require a door-to-door salesman to be licensed and bonded. After a person has signed a contract with such a salesman, most provinces provide a few days during which the purchaser can reconsider his actions and cancel the contract if he wishes.

Be aware of provincial laws and be certain that the salesman is licensed.

At the time of purchase, get in writing any understanding about refunds.

Many dealers offer trial periods of their products. Be certain of the terms under which a trial is offered. If possible, consult a dealer who offers a trial prior to purchase.

Buy only from dealers who offer adequate service or repair policies and be sure you understand the terms of the policy.

Be certain that the hearing aid is an unused one if it is offered as such.

Ask the salesman what technical training he has. There is no required standard of training, but some companies offer better training to their salesmen than others.

Don't be afraid to ask a friend or relative with good hearing to help make the purchase. This may help you avoid misunderstandings.

IN AID OF THE SHY — Tom Crothers dramatizes a story of two children at Flemington Public School in Toronto during a perception session — part of a summer course for 200 children selected because they were more withdrawn than their classmates. Through stimulation of the senses, the school attempts to "draw out" the children so that they will participate in their school activities to a greater degree and become better listeners.

Retiring Students Receive Teachers Specialized Help

TORONTO (CP) — While most other schools throughout Metropolitan Toronto have settled down into the lono summer, silence—the Flemington public school is hopping.

The school is the scene of a volunteer summer course in perception designed to aid some of the withdrawn children in reading.

The approach is a long way from the old-style primer.

Principal James Montgomerie believes that the way to the three Rs is through the five senses and sight, hearing, smelling, tasting and feeling play an important role in the teaching methods.

The 200 children in the course were selected because they were more withdrawn than their classmates in kindergarten, Grade 1 or Grade 2, or have some special language or emotional problem.

"These children just sit in the shadows and they get the crumbs from the teachers all year," says teacher Elinor Stephenson. But now the more assertive children aren't around and the shy ones have their chance.

"The child bridges his world through fantasy," said Mr. Crothers.

Irish Designers Are Becoming Popular in Canada

DUBLIN (CP) — For years such Irish fabrics as donegal tweed have been used in fashion houses around the world — in fact they were a big feature at the recent New York fall showings—but now the Irish designers and manufacturers are coming into their own. And they are becoming increasingly popular in Canada.

It all started a few years ago when Dublin initiated its Fashion Fair, primarily to lure United Kingdom buyers. But it attracted some Canadian and Americans too. Then in March, 1968, a first annual was made on Canada. . . Nine fashion houses, sponsored by the Irish Export Board, brought their collections to Toronto and invited buyers to the selective showings. The results were so good that they have been repeated, with the next Toronto showing scheduled for September.

Now several Irish designers and certainly their designs, are becoming known in Canada. Here are a few personalities met during a recent trip to Dublin.

No one will question that Padraig O Siochain (pronounced Oh-she-ah-cone) is the most colorful. He's pure Irish, voluble, witty and generous with his Shavian beard. His name is Celtic for Patrick Sheehan.

He's a mixed—even raised—on the subject of the Irish Celtic tongue. A lawyer and member of the Inner Bar of Ireland, he has written two legal textbooks and another about the Aran Islands.

His interest in Aran brought him into fashion. After visiting these barren islands he started his Galway Bay company in 1954 to sell the islanders' hand-knit sweaters. He wanted a better way of life for them and to keep them Gaelic-speaking. At first business was a mere trickle. Markets were hard to find. But in the last five years there has been a real boom.

Padraig lives in a charming house in the suburbs. His wife raises greyhounds. They have four sons and a daughter, a model in Paris.

Two of the best-known women designers here, Sheila and Mollally, are also have their salons in the 18th century Georgian houses.

Sheila Mollally, a handsome and charming woman, lives at Boar's Bridge, in the middle of a long row of those flat-face Georgian houses for which Dublin is famous.

The Mollally line, started in 1964 after years of designing and teaching, is limited to dresses and costs sizes 8 to 16. For fall she likes a mid-length but found most buyers wanted a two inches below the knee. She hasn't included many peat costumes.

The other Georgian owner is young, blonde and pretty Clodagh O'Kennedy who, besides producing her own line of custom clothes, serves as the fashion consultant board of the American firm of Monsanto. Ward and now is teaming up with an English firm to design reasonably priced dresses.

Another firm becoming well-known in Canada is Jack Clarke, founded in 1923. The firm now is run by the Clarke sons, Alan and Richard, and was the first Irish fashion house to export. This was in 1947, before the formation of the Irish Export Board. The firm still shows its line in New York, on its own.

Now about 70 per of the total production is sold abroad, mainly to North America. In the fall cost and suit line, one coachman style was almost like an abstract painting in brown, white, orange and taupe tweed. Several coats and suits showed a dominant violet tone.

John Hagarty, who specializes in co-ordinates and afternoon dresses, is another with a good-sized Canadian business. His line is mostly in knitted woven featherweight wools, in from 8 to 20. He also makes lightweight wool.

Successful Living

Setting Example Best Way to Teach Child

By DORIS CLARK

"At a Parents-Without-Partners discussion group the question was raised of how to decide what is right and what is wrong for you and yours.

"How do you deal with the grays, not the easier blacks and whites? How do you show your children right and wrong? Well . . . the group suggested:

(1) Avoid not only evil but the appearance of evil. When you are living singly, you have to be extra careful. You are far more hurt if your children are hurt. Example is the best way to teach children.

(2) If you are hurting anyone, it's almost got to be wrong.

(3) A good definition of maturity is the ability to take action out of thoughtfulness rather than on the basis of emotion.

Other conclusions: Children are curious. They no much want to be part of the crowd. Help them to learn: help them to be friendly.

Television gives poor pretty much children and of the average they get more hours of TV by their fifth birthday than they do of formal schooling by their 18th birthday. (This is a tremendous point!)

Anything children are exposed to in the first five years tends to stick. TV exposes them to aggressive, violence and corner-cutting ethics.

Personally I think these discussions are making it possible for many of these one-parent families to raise better children than the average.

Dear Doris: My mother says that (we were then 11 and 13 year) I will be too young to go out on dates. How can I prove to my mother that I am mature enough?

I never really learned to work as I have three brothers and sisters ahead of me who did it all. Just last year I was left alone to do everything and I found myself inadequate.

My mother thinks I did not really care what she did and I think she feels she should be the opposite with me. — Clueless

Dear Clueless: There is no magic age which turns you out dateable — and being adequate around the house helps you mature in other ways.

Dating carries its own kind of hazards. Calls for habits of socializing, knowledge of boys, self-confidence.

When you get so you can make a mool or even serve a snack, it might open the door for a little hospitality for a friend. Who knows? One of those boys you might find himself appreciating you, if you were to get good at it.

Lemonade Recipe for A Summer Crowd

By MARY MOORE

Here is a woman who knows her own mind: "In the past summers you have given two recipes I have decided to utilize. One was for Lemonade for a Crowd and the other for Fresh Grapefruit Rhubarb Juice. I am sick to death of paying supermarket prices for soft drinks that I do not particularly like my way.—Maggie (Ont.)

We love you Maggie N. and wish more readers would get HER.

LEMONADE RECIPE FOR A CROWD
(Reduced from August 1966)

Syrup:
6 lbs. granulated sugar
1½ Imperial quarts hot water
2 oz. citric acid (see note)
2 oz. tartaric acid (see note)
½ oz. Epsom salts (see note)
1 cup water (second amount)
Lemons, juice of all and grated rind of 2
2 oranges, juice and grated rind

NOTE: Buy the citric and tartaric powders and Epsom salts at the drug store. The druggist will weigh them accurately for you.

Dissolve sugar in the hot water and bring to a boil for a few minutes. Cool. Heat the citric and tartaric acids and Epsom salts in the 1 cup water until dissolved. Cool. Add to cooled sugar syrup. Stir in the lemon and orange juices and rinds. The lemonade syrup is now ready. This amount makes 4 Imperial quarts. Use 1 Imperial quart of syrup to make 2 Imperial gallons of drink, by adding water and ice. Ideal for a Civic Holiday picnic.

Beatles Still United

LONDON (AP) — Ringo Starr has been 28 for 28 days, and he says it isn't so bad after all.

"When I was 19, I thought 30 would be the end of the world," The Beatles drummer told an interviewer from The Daily Express. "But it's nothing."

"It's OK."

Ringo was 30 on July 7.

The Beatles are OK, too, Ringo said, even though the foursome has not performed in public for more than two years. They continue to make hit records.

"We are as united as we ever were," Ringo said. "And nobody wants a split."

"The general public doesn't want us to split, though. I'm obviously don't want a split. And the Beatles don't want one really either.

"What we are doing at the moment is all our own things and getting them out of the way. Then we'll see what we shall do together. I should think around November we should all know where we are."

Ringo has been making films and a solo album, and his wife, Maureen, has cut his hair the shortest he has been since 1962.

"I just got bored with its being long," Ringo explained. "It was driving me nuts.

"One day I found I just hated it."

There have been lots of other changes for the Liverpool lad who made millions as a pop star and now owns three houses worth more than $500,000. For his birthday his wife got him a remote country cottage.

Ringo says he doesn't know how much money he has. He no longer talks about material

Ann Landers

Family Places Child In Mental Home

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Congratulations on the good advice you gave the woman whose husband had introduced his family to nudism. You said, "O.K. in those countries where nudism is legal, but it's a No on the idea here."

Our family had a somewhat similar experience last year with disastrous consequences. In our case we did not visit a nudist camp. It was more subtle than that. My husband began reading some kooky articles. The next thing I knew he and our 17-year-old daughter were parading around the house in the absolute raw. It was apparent that they had an unhealthy interest in viewing each other's unclothed bodies. The more they tried to pretend otherwise, the more obvious it became.

ANN LANDERS

I finally got through to him that he was promoting a very unhealthy thing and that he had to stop before he ruined the girl's life. Then I spoke to our daughter in a calm, non-directive manner. She was surprisingly receptive. With a mighty effort the three of us broke out of that terrible trap. How our marriage survived I'll never know, but it did.

I hope you will repeat that advice from time to time. Ann. It was pure gold. — BEAUMONT.

DEAR BEAUMONT: Not all readers agreed with my advice. Some called me a dirty old lady. Thanks for your supportive comments.

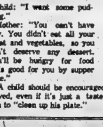
* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter will be signed by four children who love their mother very much. She is 41 years old, has had two heart attacks and several small strokes. We have told her repeatedly she can live with any one of us, but she refuses to "become a burden." We have suggested a retirement home but she says "never". She would prefer that we be engage a companion, or a housekeeper. The answer is "Absolutely NOT!" (She is financially independent and can pay for anything she wants.)

All of us are worried sick about Mom. She doesn't eat properly, she works too hard and forgets to take her medicine. Last week she was seen doing the grocery shopping in a sleeveless dress. It was raining and the poor dear was soaking wet.

Should we declare Mom incompetent for her own good? For seven years she has been our principal concern. — THE CHILDREN.

DEAR CHILDREN: Let Mom be. She prizes her independence and you should not deprive her of it. Telephone daily and drop in often. That please she'll take her over. It would finish her off faster than anything.



* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 51 and my daughter who is 20 says I am living in the Dark Ages. Marianne says today it is considered respectable for two or three girls to go to a lounge (without escorts) and spend the evening listening to [illegible] and get into the swit until the musicians are through playing and join them for a bite to eat. Marianne often [illegible] and gets this about four or five nights a week. She has lost two good jobs because she can't get up in the morning. Your opinion is wanted. — DARK AGES.

DEAR AGES: Girls who stag it and hook up with Lounge Lizards or the boys in the band were called "pick-ups" in my day. The name has changed but the game's the same. Quality girls didn't do it then— and they don't do it now.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Child: "I want some pudding."

Mother: "You can't have any. You didn't eat all your meat and vegetables, so you don't deserve any dessert. You'll be hungry for food that's good for you by supper time."

A child should be encouraged to try some of every food served, even if it's just a taste, but it's not wise to force him to "clean up his plate."

Desserts should not be rewards, but simply nourishing portions of the meal. Serve fruit, custards, ice cream and milk puddings at the end of the meal if you wish, but don't put the emphasis on dessert at that time.

Unique Method of Getting Safety Pointers Across

EDMONTON (CP) — For nearly two decades, children in Alberta's kindergarten and Grades 1 and 2 have been learning traffic safety rules from coloring books provided by the provincial highways department.

"I believe this has been a really good device to get across safety pointers," said Highways Minister Gordon Taylor. "The books are an excellent way to teach traffic safety to young children."

The coloring books are a pet project of Mr. Taylor's. His first came across the idea on a visit to Toronto in the early 1950s. He persuaded his department to buy a number of Ontario's ABCs of Traffic Safety. These were distributed to children in kindergarten classes.

Mr. Taylor especially approves of the way the books are used by the Calgary city police. Special constables visit schools in the city to discuss safety rules. They give out the books to reinforce the teaching.

"The Calgary police force is responsible for our having more than one book," Mr. Taylor said. "They asked us to have one done about the school patrol in Calgary."

Lawrence Simon, a Calgary artist, supplied the drawings and Calgary Safety Council up was launched.

A third book is alternate with the other two was needed and since Calgary had already been provided with one the department approached the Edmonton city hall. Mr. Taylor said.

A book with Edmonton's Eloise Days characters advising on traffic rules was the result.

This year a fourth—"and final one"—was launched featuring animals from Alberta's Al Oeming game farm, the highways minister said.

As well as being given out in the schools, the books are distributed via the motor vehicles branch offices throughout the province.

IRISH FASHION INVASION — Jack Clarke of Dublin, designers of this red and grey tweed coat, was the first Irish fashion house to export, in 1947, and now exports 70 per cent of its Irish production. Irish designers and manufacturers are coming into their own in the North American market since the initiation of collective showings here sponsored by the Irish Export Board.

Hydro Getting Ready For Strike in August

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro has set up a strike headquarters in a downtown hotel in anticipation of a strike by 19,000 employees late in August or early in September.

Local 1,000 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees will canvass a strike vote Aug. 4. Formal notice that no conciliation board will be established is expected to be given by the cabinet and Labor Minister Dalton Bales about Aug. 10. The union will be in a position to call a strike two weeks after it receives such notice.

The two-year agreement ran out April 1.

Hydro weathered a five-week series of rotating strikes last year.

Bill Vincer, president of the Ontario Hydro Employees Union, has said in the union's publication that many members have asked for a total strike because of the shortcomings of retaling strikes.

"To embark on a general strike might give the government the excuse it is waiting for to take legislative action and perhaps restrict our bargaining rights for all time."

Among the major issues are: wages, a Hydro proposal to modify the normal Monday-to-Friday work week to any five consecutive days, the pension plan, and wage differentials between various groups.

Foxboro Intersection Under Fire

The Ontario Department of Highways has planned improvements for this intersection at Highways 62 and 14 west of Foxboro, but area farmer Gordon Gay doubts that serious straight-through accidents will be prevented. Several fatal accidents occurred as result of motorists failing to observe "stop" signs.

Intersection Improvement Plan Called Inadequate by Residents

By ROY PRACOCK
Staff Reporter

The Ontario Department of Highways has been dragging its heels on improving safety at the accident - prone intersection of Highways 62 and 14 west of Foxboro, according to Foxboro farmer Gordon Gay.

In the past eight years he says he has helped to pull many accident victims from wrecked cars at the corner. Current plans by the Department to improve the intersection don't go far enough, he contends.

The Foxboro farmer expressed his feelings Monday in no uncertain terms at a highways department inquiry called in connection with the planned expropriation of a small piece of Mr. Gay's farmland required to improve the intersection.

Technically, Mr. Gay is opposing the expropriation, but only because he feels the planned improvements will do little or nothing to reduce the number of "straight through" accidents that have resulted in fatalities and serious injury.

"I'd give the department the land if I thought it would do any good," said Mr. Gay, but I'm sure it won't."

Belleville solicitor Ben Hurley, acting as inquiry officer, told Mr. Gay that his objections were not legally within the province of the inquiry, which he said was to determine whether the expropriation was "fair, sound and reasonably necessary" for the achievement of department aims.

At the same time, Mr. Gay was given the opportunity to voice his objections although he was told his submissions rightfully should be made through other channels.

Highways department project planning engineer C. E. Pritchard said plans to improve the intersection called for a 275-foot deceleration lane for eastbound traffic on Highway 14 and a 600-foot acceleration lane for traffic making the right turn toward Belleville.

Mr. Pritchard said the results would be that drivers would be eased into the curve and after passing the right turn, would be able to look left to their rear view mirror to check on traffic coming south along Highway 62 before accelerating into the traffic lane.

East-West traffic intending to cross the intersection is required to come to a complete stop before crossing the highway.

To warn of the stop, Mr. Pritchard said there was an advance warning sign 1,000 feet back from the intersection with an oversized stop sign with flashing red light at the intersection.

But Mr. Gay feels that something additional is required to slow motorists down before approaching the intersection.

He felt that 60 mph speed limit signs and overhead red and amber flashing lights might have the desired result.

"Surely a life is worth more than a few lights," he said.

Highway 14 west of the intersection is currently being reconstructed and on completion the speed limit will be increased to 60 miles per hour from the present 50.

This, according to Mr. Gay, will make the intersection even more dangerous.

But regional highways safety superintendent John Trew of Kingston said experience had shown that flashing overhead red and amber lights were not being recognized by motorists and the department had decided to do away with them.

Actually, he said amber flashing lights tended to increase speeds rather than reduce them.

Red flashing lights over the stop sign had a more desirable effect, he said.

The intersection at "High" and Foxboro had been the scene since 1962 when Foxboro was bypassed.

Since that time Mr. Gay said there had been numerous accidents with at least three fatalities.

He said the present flashing red light over the oversized stop sign had been installed by the department only after repeated appeals by residents who signed a 400-name petition.

Mr. Pritchard said that since 1967, according to provincial police records, there had been 13 "reportable" accidents, at the intersection involving 28 persons and resulting in two fatalities.

Of the 13 accidents, six had occurred on the right lane involving cars making the turn to Belleville.

Mr. Pritchard said the intersection had "adequate" visibility.

He said there was no point in posting "unreasonable" speed limits as experience showed they would not be obeyed.

A second Foxboro resident, Clarence Jaynes, said he had appeared on a coroner's jury looking into the death of one of the persons killed at the intersection.

He said the jury had recommended the installation of red and amber flashing lights at the intersection but there had been no response from the highways department.

He asked why the type of intersection now being planned had not been installed originally.

Mr. Pritchard replied that a highway design standards and traffic speeds were constantly changing and the need for acceleration and deceleration lanes was not as evident 10 years ago.

Mr. Trew said that ideally, all highways should be four lane but that costs made it impossible.

Revision of Federal Harbor Policy Will Increase Local Independence

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

Pending revision in national harbor policy will put the Belleville Harbor Commission under the control of a new Canadian port authority.

Ironically, the proposed port authority announced Friday by Transport Minister Don Jamieson will not rigidly control harbor operations in the country — instead, the authority will foster more autonomous individual port operations.

Belleville harbormaster, Don Barrett, terms the Ottawa news "rather confusing." However, he stated that he believed that new legislation would make the Belleville Harbor Commission more independent.

About 500 ports in Canada are directed by individual harbor commissions and administered by the Department of Transport. The port of Belleville is one of these.

Thirteen Canadian ports, however, are controlled by the National Harbors Board. The NHB will be eliminated by the new legislation to be introduced this fall and these 13 major ports will join those under DOT control in the new port authority.

"It is in the interest of many harbors to be directed by people involved with them locally," Mr. Barrett contends.

Mr. Barrett explained that every often Bellevilians themselves have a better idea of what the local harbor needs than do civil servants in Ottawa.

Standardization of harbor policies has always been difficult, he contended, because not all ports are the same.

DOT harbors, like Belleville, are more self-reliant than those of the NHB, according to the harbormaster.

Administrative transitions for the Belleville Harbor Commission will not be as great as those for commissions under stringent NHB control.

"We can already do a considerable amount on our own and we only approach the DOT for major items," Mr. Barrett continued.

Referring to its dealings with the local commission, the harbormaster said "the DOT acts as a kind of watchdog, keeping the harbor's business in line with government policy."

The Belleville Harbor Commission, then, already has considerable freedom for action. Yet leasing of land owned by the commission is always subject to the approval of the minister of transport.

The oil and gas storage tanks in the heart of Belleville's harbor area are on land owned by the harbor commission.

The commission leases the tract of land near the government dock to gas and oil firms to provide them with a substantial storage area.

Other commission property was recently leased to the Four Seasons hotel group to enhance the new harbor hotel's site.

"All the reclaimed land east of Zwick's Island Park belongs to the commission" Mr. Barrett mentioned.

Mayor J. Russell Scott, Jack Goyer and Douglas Burley comprise the three - man Belleville Harbor Commission.

Don Barrett, as harbormaster carries out policies determined by the commissioners at their bi-monthly meetings. Additionally he administers the port's business and collects dues from ships using the harbor.

Because of certain shallow areas of the Bay of Quinte, large lake boats cannot get through to serve Belleville. Telegraph Narrows near Northport is the greatest bottleneck and the cost of dredging it out would be prohibitive, according to Mr. Barrett.

However, smaller commercial vessels sailed for bay use do serve Belleville occasionally. Eight of these have put into Belleville this year; seven of them brought oil and one gas.

Port tariffs are charged for use of the port facilities. An oil boat, for example, pays two fees: one at the rate of five cents per ton of cargo plus 50 cents per 1,000 gallons of fuel, Mr. Barrett said.

Belleville's harbor commission is the only incorporated to administer the inner harbor-government dock area but also a substantial area of the Bay of Quinte.

Jurisdiction of the commission stretches from Point Anne in the east to Sidney Street in west Belleville and across the bay from Prince Edward County from Massassaga Point to a point directly across the bay from Sidney Street.

The commission is responsible for the maintenance of shipping lanes in this area and is also custodian of the shoreline, being empowered to stop any alterations to the waterfront in the entire district.

Dumping of fill into the bay in order to extend a property needs the approval of the commission. Even park developments along the bay need its favor — if not the actual use of harbor commission land — as the commission itself is a principal owner of the frontage within Belleville's city limits.

The new federal legislation to be introduced this fall for a revamping of harbor policy will have its greatest impact on the National Harbor Commission ports that have been perpetually under tight national controls.

Nonetheless, Belleville and the other Department of Transport harbor cities can expect less federal directives and even more freedom to plot their own waterfront destinies.

Bound to Sell

William Denison, proprietor of The Fish and The Dove bookstore at 38 Bridge Street East, places more Christian literature on the shelves of the business which he has operated since July 3.

Christian Bookstore Now Fish and Dove

Symbolism is a word William Denison believes has great meaning today.

The logo or symbol for his newly opened store, The Fish and the Dove, uses figures to symbolize the Holy Trinity. These figures are the circle of God everlasting, with no beginning and no end, the dove for the Holy Spirit and the fish which is taken from the early Greek letters representing Christ.

Mr. Denison and his wife Diane moved the Christian Bookstore from its location at 301½ Front Street to its new location under a new name at 38 Bridge Street East when he purchased it from Rev. Keith Mainprize.

Originally from Nepanee, he resided in Ottawa before coming to Belleville, as a member of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship.

Open only since July 3, Mr. Denison has already stocked his shelves with a wide selection of interdenominational literature, gifts, translations, plaques and greeting cards.

Although specializing in religious themes, he invited the public to enter the shop where he promotes "good literature".

He commented that "until we get to know the people, we won't know exactly what to stock," but he hoped to receive suggestions from clients of the old shop as well as new customers.

A good selection of religious sheet music, records, children's books and coloring books are also available.

"People are turning to spirits and symbols more and more these days," he said.

"Although many head toward witchcraft, and devil cults, many young people are now turning to religion, and it is our hope that we can provide good material to help them.

Mr. Denison will be in touch with churches throughout the area to advise them of the literature that is available and accept any orders for supplies they may need.

Tax Refunds Late

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit taxpayers are receiving their city tax refunds a bit later this year because officials say, women employees are afraid to work overtime at night downtown. Income tax aides and civil service officials say the temporary workers needed to process the returns have been hard to get and to keep because of the second-shift hours — 4 p.m. to midnight — and the fear of crime downtown at night.

Tiptoe Through the Sand Piles

While lifeguard Mike Ryan sweltters under an umbrella, youngsters and adults of all ages and shapes run eagerly into the cooling waters of the Moira River at Riverside Beach in an attempt to escape, momentarily from the humid heat which has been the city's lot for the past week, and will continue for a while.

Lions Looking for Upset In Opener Against Saskatchewan

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Football League opens its 1970 season on the newly-installed artificial turf of Vancouver's Empire Stadium tonight, with the defending western champion Saskatchewan Roughriders six-point favorites over the British Columbia Lions.

But if the official line from the underground wagering fraternity favors the Roughies, coach Jackie Parker's Lions have a couple of things going for them, as well.

One is that artificial turf, an $800,000 all-weather "carpet" that is a bit tricky to handle at first. It wasn't enough to keep the Lions from losing two exhibition games on the new field but B.C. has added many hours of practice since.

Also going for the Lions is the sore arm of Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster.

Lancaster, the 11-year veteran and only non-import starting quarterback in the CFL, had a cast on his arm for four days before it was removed Sunday. He'll start tonight, but coach Eagle Keys will have his fingers crossed and newcomer Don Weiss in reserve.

"If I knew what I know now," Keys said Monday night, "I wouldn't have played Lancaster against Edmonton last week."

Lancaster played only one quarter last Wednesday in Edmonton before giving way to Weiss, obtained in a trade with Winnipeg.

The soreness in Lancaster's arm, similar to the elbow pain that caused Parker to put B.C. quarterback Vidal Carlin on the 30-day injured list Monday, began before training camp. It soon disappeared and Lancaster was in mid-season form in the CFL all-star game, then the nagging ache came back.

"He's got a terrible rest," Keys said. "How can you rest and play?"

The Lions will start holdover Paul Brothers at quarterback, with Montreal Alouette Carroll Williams in reserve.

B.C. was to cut two imports by noon today, to get down to the CFL limit of 14, after paring to the allowable 18 Canadians Monday by letting four men go.

Those dropped were line-backer Dave Wray, defensive end Jim Leighton, lineman Bob Taylor and tight end John MacManus. Wray and Leighton were with the Lions last year, MacManus, from Edmonton, and Taylor, from Vancouver, were rookies.

Fullback Jim Evenson, signed out by Saskatchewan's George Reed for the western rushing crown for two years in a row, is a doubtful starter tonight. He wants another week on the sidelines before playing for the first time since his appendectomy of July 4.

A. D. Whitfield, one of nine newcomers on the B.C. team, impressed everybody with his power running in the exhibition games and is expected to start in the fullback slot tonight.

The Lions dropped all four pre-season games, whereas the Roughriders were two-for-four.

Surprise Cuts Sprinkle CFL

There were a few surprises as all nine Canadian Football League clubs neared the deadline for declaring their 1970 rosters.

The 18 Canadians and 14 imports that will start the season must be made known to CFL headquarters by midnight tonight.

Several names familiar to CFL all-star selectors will be missing—at least as far as last year's clubs are concerned.

Bill Whelan, the giant offensive tackle Winnipeg Blue Bombers traded to Toronto Argonauts last week, was cut by the Argos Monday and reported bound for British Columbia Lions.

Also getting the Argo axe was middle linebacker Allen Ray Aldridge, considered expendable when coach Leo Cahill realigned his personnel.

Ottawa Rough Riders, the defending Grey Cup champions, cut all-star defensive back Don Sutherin who handled the team's place-kicking duties the last two seasons, and centre Gerry Sellinger who joined the Riders in 1956.

Earlier Dave Viti, veteran defensive end for Hamilton Tiger-Cats and a key performer in the Ticat championship years, was released.

Most notable loss in the Montreal Alouette camp is Jake Scott. Scott moved to the Eastern Football Conference Als in an off-season trade for Tom Casseese.

He has been reported unhappy in the CFL and was waived out of the league. The fleet flanker was said to be headed for a tryout with Miami Dolphins of the National Football League.

Out West, Edmonton got rid of two quarterbacks who carried the load last year. Among the casualties were quarterbacks Charlie Fulton, voted the Eskimos' most valuable player two years ago, Gerry Colebaur, and place-kicker Peter Kempf, attempting a comeback after a year of retirement.

Thurmus Butler, a two-year running back at Edmonton, was also among the list of rejects.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers, hoping to rejuvenate their lineup after several lackluster seasons, sent Ted Collins, a five-year veteran at defensive end, to Montreal and Darwin Gonnerman to Edmonton.

The Bombers cut speedster Dave Washington last week although he was their top scorer in four pre-season exhibition games. Earlier, they had thanked 13-year veteran Ernie Pitts to the Lions.

Missing from Calgary's roster will be Howard Schlumm, a 11-year CFL veteran. Earlier veterans Bill Redell, a defensive back, and fullback Ted Woods announced their retirements.

The Lions, meanwhile, short on all-star material, cut defensive halfback Bill Lasseter, one of the last of their 1964 Grey Cup championship club.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Redskins football coach, Vince Lombardi, was said to be resting comfortably at Georgetown University hospital today after undergoing surgery for the second time in a month.

Hospital and team officials would not disclose the nature of the operation Monday, performed only hours after Lombardi was admitted for what was termed a routine checkup.

Lombardi, 57, had been recuperating from a June 27 operation in which a tumor and two-foot section of his colon were removed. The tumor was reported to be non-malignant.

The coach had watched a rookie scrimmage Sunday in Baltimore between Dan Colo and his Redskins, and said he expected to make it to the team's Carlisle, Pa., training camp by the time the veterans reported.

Veterans throughout the National Football League are holding out over a pension dispute.

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts dispatched two players to Western Football Conference clubs Monday for future considerations.

The two, flanker Mike Eben to Edmonton Eskimos and linebacker Peter Palmer to Winnipeg Blue Bombers, were among nine players the Eastern Football Conference club let go.

Included were five imports — middle linebacker Allen Ray Aldridge, defensive end Bill Whisler who arrived in camp only last week in a trade with the Blue Bombers, offensive tackle Bill Rhodes, halfback Mike Schmiesing and defensive tackle Steve Greer.

LONDON (Reuters) — Harvey Smith of Britain Monday won the Horse and Hound Cup in the main event on the opening day of the Royal International Horse Show here.

Canadian riders Jimmy Elder, Aurora, Ont., and Mofat Dunlap, Newmarket, Ont., were 3rd eighth in the event, and third Canadian, Jimmy Day, Oakville, finished 12th. Elder and Dunlap each had eight faults and Day incurred 8¼.

Elder, the Canadian team leader, rode his young horse Shoeman, who tripped poles off the second and sixth obstacles. Dunlap, reserve in the 1968 Canadian Olympic winning team, also faulted at two obstacles on Argyll.

Day had a nerve racking experience on his inexperienced mount Canadian Year, who landed among the poles at the fifth obstacle and nearly unseated his rider. The 23-year-old Canadian circled round to give the young horse time to recover and time penalties took his faults up to 8¼.

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders announced Monday three players have been cut from the team and three others put on the 30-day injury list. The three cut from the Canadian Football League team were quarterbacks Tom DiMinio and Jim Ousley, and end Don Gerhardt. Placed on the injury list were halfback Ron Woodward, guard Roger Perdrix and tackle Gus Ravenberg. The changes brought the Rider roster down to 33.

Baseball Plans Trades for Future

MONTREAL (CP) — Trades for "future considerations" is becoming common terminology in the Canadian Football League this season.

Around pro baseball and basketball in the United States, the cliche "traded for a future draft choice" has been part of the vocabulary for years.

Now major league baseball is expected to make "traded for a future draft choice" official language when major league baseball owners open their annual summer meeting here today.

The two-day meeting—first in Canada since Montreal Expos joined the National League last year—was expected to hear the proposal during closed-door sessions.

The term would grant teams the right to trade future college draft picks, a concession already common practice with basketball and football.

Few of the other items on the agenda can be termed exciting or of great interest to fans, and none of them can compare in importance to the one item relisted but certain to be discussed—the Curt Flood court case.

Although no action is expected to be taken by the owners, they will talk about it, even if only informally.

On the agenda is an updated report by the planning committee on the proposed reorganization of the administrative offices of baseball—a plan to put the office of the commissioner, the American and National leagues and the minor leagues under one roof in New York.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn already has come out in favor of the plan, and the minor leagues passed a resolution back in 1963 favoring it.

The National League office now is in San Francisco, the American in Boston.

Discussion also will be held on appropriation proposals to Canadian amateur baseball and summer leagues in the United States, adjusting the rules involving the replacing of players called to temporary military duty and injured players, promotion of baseball and umpire development.

A proposal also is expected to schedule exhibition games, starting in 1971, with the three major service academies and the National Collegiate Athletic Association champion each year, and, on the lighter side, changing the color of the foul lines and the bases from the traditional white.

Belleville Lawn Bowling Club member and enthusiast Perc Graham demonstrates his bowling technique on the Belleville greens. Belleville will be hosting three separate tournaments over the long weekend including the 27th annual Corbin Cup competition.

Local Lawn Bowlers Among Best in Canada

By RANDY DERRY
Staff Sportswriter

The green, green grass of the home Belleville club will be the gathering place of some of the best lawn bowlers in Ontario and in the country this weekend as the Club hosts the 27th annual Corbin Gold Cup competition.

Over 250 bowlers will travel to Belleville from all over Ontario to compete in the one of the premier tournaments in Canada. "We expect over 30 local, provincial and dominion champs here for the tournament making the competition really rough. This is considered one of the top weekend bowling tournaments in the country so the teams send their best," states general chairman of the event Bill Van Tassel.

The best will be vying for five trophies awarded to the top rinks. The Corbin Cup is the major trophy with the Calverts, Labatts, Bell Cleaners and Gord Watkins Memorial given to the four following rinks. Last years big winners from Brampton will be back to defend their title as will the Labatts winners from Kingston and the Calvert winners from Toronto. Jerry Hydes rink from Belleville was the Bell Cleaners Trophy last year and although Jerry has moved, he will be bowling out of the Belleville Club to defend his title.

"We'll have Wally Lavergne and John Sager here and they were runners - up in the Dominion doubles last year plus some readily good bowlers from Hamilton, Galt, Toronto and — well all over. Last year we had the rink from Montreal that competed in the British #Empire Games but, unfortunately this year they are in Scotland and are staying over for an extra week," says Van Tassel.

The local club's prids Marta Saturday with the mixed pairs competition and continues Monday with the men and ladies doubles. Sunday will be the big day though as the Corbin Trophy goes up for grabs. "We used to hold the meet on the civic holiday but now we have moved it back a day giving us a cushion either way in case of rain. But actually in the 27 - year history of the competition we've only had one tournament rained out."

The day's events will begin at nine-thirty a.m. with opening ceremonies being performed by the mayor or a representative.

"To show the attraction of this tournament the provincial championships are held this Saturday in Agincourt but soon as they are finished a majority of the competitors return there drive here for our tournament," states Van Tassel.

Often associated with the older generation lawn bowling has brought into the fold numerable younger players and the competition has greatly increased. "It's no longer just a game for the oldsters in fact after bowling twenty ends in the hot sun one has to be in pretty good shape."

Juniors Stop Stinsons To Reclaim Top Spot

The Richard Ellis Juniors scored in the first and last innings Monday night and played solid ball in between as they edged Stinsons Construction 3-2 and moved back into sole possession of first place in the Commercial Softball League.

In the second game of the double-header City Hotel used the long ball to demolish Corbys 12-4.

Opening frame singles by Steve Ling, Paul Goodfellow and Dale Duval gave the Juniors an early 2-0 lead off Stinson hurler Bob Swan, and Junior centre-fielder Rod Ridley kept the lead until the fourth. Stinson's first scored in the third when Rick Denard scored on an error and pass ball. Martin Wallis's fourth inning single scored Lyle Thompson, and tied the count. The Juniors loaded the bases in the bottom of the seventh on a walk to Lorne Blatchford, Steve Ling's double and Cliff Scott's fielders choice which set the stage for Stinsons second-catcher Denard's miscue on a Paul Goodfellow grounder and the subsequent winning run.

Ted Watts picked up his 9 ninth victory of the year for the Juniors giving up four hits while fanning seven and walking two. Ling's double and single were the big hits for the Juniors. Cliff Scott, Goodfellow, Duval, and Terry Meagher all had singles for the winners.

Bob Swan was touched for five hits on the Stinson mound. He struck out four and issued three walks. Wayne Woods had a double and Rick Locke, Martin Walsh and Rick Denard each had singles in a losing effort.

City Hotel jumped into third place yr putting on an explosive show of long ball hitting against Corby's.

Rusty Garvin started the ball rolling for City and never shadowed what the rest of the game was going to be like as he punched a long triple in the top of the first but was pegged out at the plate trying to stretch it into a homer, but to be denied, exactly one inning later Clay exploded for two home runs and three runs scored.

Bob Ethier led off the top of the second with a long homer to deep left - centre which was followed by Doug Murray's two run homer to centre field. City just kept rolling after that as they scored five runs in the fifth, two in the sixth and one in the seventh. Ed Lemon led off the fifth with a homer to centre and to cap off the night Ethier punched his second circuit blast of the game in the top of the seventh.

Besides hitting homers Ethier found time to' pitch eight - hit ball against Corby's and fan six batters. The entire line - up for City had hits: Rusty Garvin his triple plus a single, Ethier two homers and a double, Doug Murray a homer, Ed Lemon a homer and single, Gary Gow two singles, Paul Embury a double and singles to Larry Potter, Paul Kellar and Ken Gasserneaux.

Pat Scollard was the unfortunate victim of City's hitting spree, giving up 14 hits while fanning three and walking eight. Gary Goyer and Neil Campbell led the Corby hitters each with a double and single. Chuck Rowbotham with a double, Ken Brooks with two singles and Scollard with a single rounded out the losers hits.

Retarded Children Big Winners

The biggest winners at a recent Saturday night harness racing card weren't those bettors who cashed in on a long shot daily double, but rather a group of disadvantaged children.

DATSUN
1600 PICKUP
the most misunderstood truck in the country

We built the Datsun 1600 pickup to be a tough, rugged, no-nonsense, hard-working tool. Fine. A lot of people bought it for just that. But a lot of other people bought it and they don't use it for work. They use it for play.

We put a sturdy 96 horse engine in it because a working truck needs lots of power. We designed it to haul a ton, because a working truck should be able to handle heavy loads. It gets up to 30 miles to the gallon, because a working truck should be economical to operate. And it handles like a nifty little car because there's no reason why a truck that wears like a tank should handle like a tank. We built North America's number-one selling imported truck to work for its living - and they're out there living a life of pleasure.

Where did we go wrong?

Ranks of Top Auto Drivers Could Be Drastically Reduced

TORONTO (CP) — There could be a major reorganization of the Formula I roster of drivers for the 1971 season, says Stirling Moss.

Two veteran Grand Prix drivers, Jack Brabham of Australia and Graham Hill of Britain are talking of retiring and two newer stars, Jochen Rindt of Austria and Jackie Ickx of Belgium, may join the ranks of the bystanders.

"If Jochen wins the world championship this year, I definitely think he will quit racing," Moss said in an interview.

"As for Graham Hill, it is a pity he didn't stop while people remembered his greatness. He's in a trap now because he's on a downgrade and he must continue racing if he wants to get back up."

Rindt is leading the world championship standings after winning at the Monaco, Dutch and British Grand Prix.

Hill was world champion in 1962 and 1968 but was badly injured at the United States Grand Prix at Watkins Glen, N.Y., last October.

"Jack Brabham has done it so well for so long that he ought to retire now," said Moss. Former competitor who retired several years ago after a severe injury.

Brabham is second in the standings after near wins at Monaco and in the British Grand Prix.

Moss forecast that Ickx will retire unless the Ferrari firm of Italy offer him a fantastic sum of money to drive for them.

"Even if there is a spate of retirements, there will be no shortage of drivers looking to fill the Formula I cockpits, but according to Moss those powerful open-wheel cars require exceptionally good drivers.

"Take Peter Gethin, for instance," said Moss.

"He has only just been able to get a Formula 1 drive and he's not likely to qualify in the first four rows of the grid. As far as Can-Am driving is concerned, he stepped straight into a team McLaren at Edmonton and is a good enough driver in that category to place second behind Denis Hulme."

Most European drivers look on Formula 1 as the ultimate goal of their racing careers, but the route to the Grand Prix cars is not an easy one.

David Hobbs of England, at 30, has been racing for 10 years. Hobbs said:

"Most constructors go for the 20-year-old hot-shot from the Formula III cars. Then if they are any good they have them for 16 or 20 years. All the same I consider that driving a five-litre Formula A car is much closer to Formula 1 than driving a small one-litre Formula III car."

Hobbs hopes that John Surtees of Britain, a former world champion, will have built a second Surtees Formula 1 car by September so that Hobbs can race it in the Canadian and U.S. Grands Prix.

At the Edmonton Can-Am Sunday, Hobbs drove the Aspen Ford which lasted only one lap. He is on his way to La Circuit Mont-Tremblant, Que., for next Saturday's Formula A Continental Championship race.

The only Canadian who has a continuing Formula 1 contact is Toronto's George Eaton; although others have raced Formula 1 cars on occasion.

Bill Brack, Eppie Wietzes, Al Pease, John Cordts and Ludwig Heimrath all of the Toronto area and Peter Brooker of Montreal have all had a turn on the Grand Prix trail.

Seaver Turns Heat on San Francisco

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tom Seaver beat the New York Mets' best pitcher of the day, San Francisco Giants, but Jim Merritt wilted in Cincinnati Reds new bathtowe pitch as St. Louis Cardinals finally turned on the steam.

Seaver, flayed for three early runs in muggy Shea Stadium, held the Giants to one hit over the final seven innings and beat them 8-3 Monday night for his 13th victory of the season.

Merritt, the only other 13-game winner in the majors, surrendered six runs and eight hits in the 9 1-3 innings he lasted at equally-muggy Riverfront Stadium in Cincinnati as the Cardinals broke an eight-game losing streak by roasting the Reds 16-9.

Philadelphia Phillies bombed Los Angeles Dodgers 10-3 in the only other National League game while, in American League play, Minnesota Twins trimmed Baltimore Orioles 5-2 and the New York Yankees downed California Angels 5-3 in 10 innings.

Seaver fell behind 3-0 before Joe Foy's two-run homer in the second inning and a solo blast by Cleon Jones in the fourth pulled the Mets even. Then, he scored the go-ahead run on Ken Singleton's fifth inning single off 14-game winner Gaylord Perry and throttled San Francisco the rest of the way.

"I pitched well with what I had," said the Met ace, who fanned with a six-hitter and struck out six, fanning Willie Mays for the third time to snuff out a seventh-inning threat. "It was a tough night, muggy and hot, and I really had to struggle."

"I was just plain lousy," muttered Merritt after his fourth-inning knockout.

Richie Allen blasted his 28th and 29th homers, driving in three runs; Mike Shannon delivered four more with a bases-loaded double and a single, and Vic Davalillo lashed three doubles, good for two RBI, as the Cardinals erupted for 19 hits—their high for the season.

St. Louis shrugged off a five-run Cincinnati burst—capped by Johnny Bench's 34th homer—in the second inning on the way to its third victory in 30 games. Relieved Chuck Taylor blanked the Reds from the third inning until the ninth, when Bernie Carbo hit a three-run homer to earn the victory.

Tony Taylor, Deron Johnson and Larry Bowa clubbed homers and Byron Browne knocked in three more runs with a double and single, leading the resurgent Phillies past Los Angeles for their 10th victory in 12 starts.

The Twins earned a split of their four-game summit series with Baltimore and increased their AL West division lead over California to six lengths as rookie Bert Blyleven picked up his fifth victory with help from bullpen standby Ron Perranoski.

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Ron Brand hit his first home run since 1965 and Bobby Wine also honored for Montreal Expos in a 10-6 victory over Chicago White Sox in the Hall of Fame exhibition baseball game at Doubleday Field Monday.

Most of the crowd that watched the morning induction of the four new members of the Hall of Fame—Leo Boudreau, Ford Frick, Jesse Haines and Earle Combs—were among the capacity throng of 9,791 at the afternoon game.

The Expos clobbered loser Jim Magnuson, Jerry Janeski and Barry Moore for 14 hits, while winner John O'Donoghue and Bill Stoneman allowed 12 hits.

Both managers, Gene Mauch of the Expos and Don Gutteridge of the White Sox, substituted freely after the first five innings.

'Demographics' Govern Futures of Television Series

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Those devil demographics are threatening a number of long-run television series, and even the stalwart Beverly Hillbillies is considered vulnerable. However, Buddy Ebsen isn't worried.

"I doubt very much that the demographics will shoot us down," says the patriarch of the Clampett clan. "But even if they did, I wouldn't fret over it.

"I've got a couple of other strings on my bow."

Demographics is a trade term for the composition of television audiences. Until a season or two ago, numbers meant everything; the shows with the highest ratings survived.

Now, advertisers appear more concerned with the quality of audiences—particularly whether shows attract the 18-to-35 age group that buy products. Hence the disappearance from CBS of Petticoat Junction, Red Skelton and Jackie Gleason, shows having big audiences but not the right kind.

"Beverly Hillbillies might conceivably be in jeopardy for the same reason. Ebsen doesn't think so. He believes the show's audience is so vast and loyal that it could survive for years to come.

He also takes a philosophical attitude toward critics who classify Beverly Hillbillies as the ultimate in lowbrow television entertainment.

"My answer to that is a comment in the Saturday Review that I have mounted on a plaque in my dressing room," Ebsen said. "It says that Beverly Hillbillies is a show that combines social comment with a Nielsen rating.

"As for myself, I've never tried to analyze the show. I just read the scripts, do them and am happy that they're accepted. I've never looked more than a year ahead."

Ebsen and his fellow Clampetts have seriously considered several shows for their ninth season. Now they have gone their separate ways for the summer layoff.

"We're a very close group during the season, sharing each other's problems, laughs and sorrows," he remarked. "But we only see each other for six months. When the season is over, I like to go my own way.

"I find plenty to do. I spend time with the family, I sail my boat, I read—I store up shelves of books to read while I'm not working. I write songs with John Manners, who was a member of the original Beverly Hillbillies music act. I take my daughters to horse shows, I ride a dune buggy with my son, I body surf."

On Aug. 11, Buddy opens with Apple of Ti Hanton now performed on Broadway. He uncovered the play while doing a dramatic role in the recent drama on educational television, 'The Andersonville Trial.

Among the other strings in Ebsen's bow is a company that builds catamarans, fast, twin-hulled sailing boats.

Triumphant Law to Dominate the Tube

THE PICK OF Punch

"In this film, Red, we want to show the public that violence is a lousy thing. Now beat that man to a pulp as if you really meant it."

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The television wheel continues to turn and, once again the law man—cop, secret agent, private eye, marshal—is the favorite.

Twelve series, four of them new next fall, will be built around crime and, as decreed by the Television Code, punishment. Right will triumph before the final commercial—unless it is a two- or three-part episode and miscreants will be caught or perish in the wake of their evil deeds.

In addition to the returning crime hunters of the three networks, there will be ABC's newcomers, Dan August, The Silent Force and The Most Deadly Game, plus NBC's six-part McCloud.

Doctors, who made a TV comeback last season, continue to be popular heroes. ABC's Marcus Welby, M.D. and the dedicated healers of CBS's Medical Centre will be joined by Dr. Mark Lincoln of ABC, a psychiatrist familiar with white-coat routines because the part is played by Vince Edwards, once Ben Casey, dedicated neurosurgeon.

Then there is CBS's The Interns, which, by its general structure appears to be designed to do for doctoring what Mod Squad did for police work: attract a young audience. The series will centre on a group of young medics in the charge of an older, experienced physician.

In addition to the weekly medicine shows, there will continue to be the doctor segment of NBC's The Bold Ones every third week.

YOUNG STAR

Oliver Conrad, a 15-year-old student at the Dalton School in New York, has been signed for one of the three leading male roles in Summer of '42, a Warner Bros. motion picture.

Oh! Calcutta Panned in London

LONDON (CP) — Oh! Calcutta!, the nudie revue now in its second year on the Off Broadway stage in New York, opened to a lukewarm reception in London Monday night and was roundly panned by the critics today.

"It's nude, it's crude," writes Fergus Cashin in The Sun. "There is no love, no beauty, no happiness. . . . It was perhaps the most dismal evening in the British theatre."

Jean Rook of The Daily Sketch says she felt like going to sleep during "this king-sized dirty postcard." It might appeal to those who "like reading lavatory walls," she says.

Arthur Thirkell of The Daily Mirror notes that the show opened in the Round House, a theatre that used to be a railway engine shed, and comments: "The engines should be returned immediately. At least they'd generate some heat."

John Barber of The Daily Telegraph writes: "As an experiment in popular eroticism, Oh! Calcutta! may be forgiven its lapses as it teeters along the borderline between the indecorous and the obscene."

The opening night performance was a decided letdown after tremendous advance publicity. Only two of the 14 skits drew more than polite applause.

Several critics said they nearly fell asleep during the performance.

The Daily Mail critic reports: "I didn't expect to yawn. I didn't want to yawn. I couldn't help it.

"All the unmentionable words and leachings-up are trotted out in the pathetic schoolboy belief that you have only got to shout 'knickers' and everybody will fall into the aisles. I found it rather heartening that they so obviously didn't."

The serious papers, in reviews hidden away on their arts pages, were slightly less discouraging, but agreed that the humor was more suited to a playground than a sophisticated London theatre audience.

Tate Trial Hears Star Witness

Linda Kasabian Takes Stand To Tell of Life with Manson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pretty, petite Linda Kasabian recalls first hearing of Charles M. Manson and his hippie-type "family" from a girl who told her of "a beautiful man that we'd all been waiting for."

When she approached the shaggy-haired Manson and asked to join his clan, she says, "He felt my legs, and he seemed to think they were okay."

Thus, the prosecution's green-eyed star witness began her testimony Monday in the Sharon Tate murder trial. She was interrupted repeatedly by defence objections.

"This witness is not competent, she's insane," Manson's lawyer, Irving A. Kanarek, said before she was sworn.

Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi called the defence remarks "unbelievable conduct" and added: "I ask the court to find them in contempt."

After a conference at the bench, the judge admonished the jury to disregard Kanarek's remarks and allowed Mrs. Kasabian to take the stand. She is expected to testify for at least three days)

Mrs. Kasabian, 21, arrived in a bright red-and-blue embroidered peasant-style frock. Her long hair was tied in pigtails.

Asked why she wanted to tell her story, she said softly: "I strongly believe in the truth. And I believe the truth should be spoken."

She said she was aware she would be granted immunity from prosecution if she testified for the state.

The mother of two babies, Mrs. Kasabian was charged along with the defendants with murder-conspiracy in the slayings of the beautiful actress and six others. But her trial was severed from that of Manson, 35, and three of his women followers, Susan Atkins, 21, Leslie Van Houten, 20, and Patricia Krenwinkel, 22.

The prosecution says Mrs. Kasabian was an eyewitness to at least three of the Tate murders last August while standing outside Miss Tate's mansion as a lookout. She also is said to be the state's star witness against Manson in the seven murders.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Gall Bladder Out, So Live Normally

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: W 111 you please explain what I need to do to take care of myself after my gall bladder operation?

Now that it's out I feel like a new person. I can eat rocks! But I have had so many people tell me "don't do this, don't do that." I am becoming all mixed up and confused. For instance:

Can I drive a car? Can I go out when I please? Can I eat anything that agrees with me? Can I do housework without lifting anything heavy? Can I wear an undergarment?

Exactly what are the symptoms after this operation? I have had all kinds of advice. Just for once I would like the truth. — Mrs. P.

Comment: The answers to all your questions, from driving a car to wearing an undergarment are yes. (I think your doctor will agree.)

Friends, neighbors and acquaintances try to be helpful, but invariably confuse the issue. They will diagnose or offer treatment at the drop of a hat. They mean well, but as in your case Mrs. P., often confuse the patient. Wherever in doubt, rely on your own doctor for advice.

Better yet go looking for "symptoms" after operation. The fact that you do not have any should tell you of the results of the surgery.

Eat what you want that agrees with you. Live normally, like the next fellow who still has his gall bladder. And be thankful that you are all right. Stop listening to neighborly advice and your confusion will disappear.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a 15-year-old girl with a very embarrassing problem. My stomach growth is the company. The more I swallow, the more it grows and sets up. It's awful in a quiet room — like sitting in school, for instance. If there was a hole, you'd like to fall into it. Can you help me? — Miss A.

Comment: If you see your family doctor (and if you are a habitual air-swallower, as I suspect) he will demonstrate what air-swallowing is: and help you get over the habit, which often pauses stomach-growl and belching.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a compression fracture of my 12th thoracic vertebra — with partial wedging. This is very painful, and causes many sleepless nights. My doctor found it on a routine X-ray examination. Says nothing can be done for it. Don't you think a bone specialist should see it? — Mrs. T.

Comment: Yes. An internist, too. As you don't know the actual cause of the fracture — injury, osteoarthritis, osteoporosis, or any other disease — you'll need to learn the specific cause before specific treatment is indicated.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a breaking out on one side of my back. It started with a lot of little blisters and was itchy. Now it is sore, just feels raw. I haven't gone to a doctor yet. — Mrs. I.

Comment: Guess: Shingles? Better see him.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Masses Reject Reformers

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the supreme ironies of the whole protest movement today is that the liberals and leftists who lead it are repudiated, or actively resented, by the very "people" they presume to speak for.

This is, and has been from the beginning, one of the great dilemmas of the left - wing movement in these advanced industrial countries. The leaders speak out in the name of the masses. Yet the masses identify themselves more with the Establishment than 'with the protesters.

At Kent University, the student body's sympathies is far greater numbers with the National Guard than with the college kids. The man in the street or public opinion is conservative, not liberal. Most Americans, of all classes, oppose the aims, life-styles and value - judgments of the dissidents.

When the construction workers attacked the students in Wall Street, they were expressing the feelings of middle America, in however crude and unruly a fashion. The labor unions (helped to power by the liberals) have adopted some mighty illiberal administration practices. The hysterical ethnic groups are among the most chauvinistic and least aware of their own prejudices fight for equality not so many decades ago.

It is Spiro Agnew, alas, who speaks for much of America, not the dissenters and protesters. It hurts me to say so, for I believe the man to be a real menace, but that's the fact, and he does represent a far larger segment of our country than those who oppose him.

The plain truth of the matter is that, as a nation, we find radicalism of the right far more congenial to our temperament and habits than the idealism of the left. And if this is the way we feel still, this is the way we will act, and the dissenters can do little about it within the democratic framework.

Another vast irony emerges here. While liberal and left-wing movements are presumably egalitarian, and based on the popular good, there is a hidden level of aristocratic superiority in their assumptions. They are implicitly telling the people that they — the leaders of the movement — know better what the people ought to want. They are trying to bring the masses up to their level of perception.

What is the nerve that Agnew has struck so shrewdly. People don't want to be made better or smarter; they want to be made safer and richer. The left threatens them, even when they have little to lose, and are losing it fast. The only "proletariat" in America is the blacks, and they will stop being it as soon as they get their share of the loot. Then the leftists will be talking only to one another.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For July 29

Your birthday today: Your talents now are strongly directed toward achieving material security within which to cultivate spiritual development. You can grow in a comfortable environment — suffering does not always ennoble. Nearly all activities now have the potential of further increasing romantic attractions lead into the tangled skein. Today's natives have a great gift for perspective, intuition, and usually high mental and hand skills.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Don't plunge ahead without adequate agreement among all concerned, particularly with your mate. Unexpected help arrives in matters you may have given up.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your earning potential now rises. Family affairs become easier as you experience a surge of psychic energy. Gather what others need.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Unplanned meetings bring odd results. Sort out unwanted belongings for your favorite charity. Seek free application of special knowledge.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): This is a day of very good, sudden results: some appearing to be luck, others quite clearly the product of hard work. Take advantage of them.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): The strange or farfetched is the normal order of the day. You have a great opportunity to do yourself and others some subtle but important service.

Tenants Fear They Will Pay If Landlords Lose Tax Dodges

VICTORIA (CP) — Federal tax proposals would help put a stop to costly tax dodges by landlords, but tenants likely would have to foot the bill, tenancy members of the Commons finance committee were told Monday.

Therefore, said Vancouver economist Bruce Yorke, president of the British Columbia Tenants Organization, the federal government should impose rent controls to prevent landlords from passing their higher tax bills off on those who pay the rent.

Mr. Yorke ran into a critical cross-examination by MPs who took verbal swipes at his business theories, his politics and his motives.

The MPs, on the first of four days of Victoria hearings about the federal tax white paper, were almost as severe in their questioning of Vancouver business man J. Norman Hyland, who said the proposal to tax stockmarket gains would be all wrong for Canada.

Members of the finance committee also heard recommendations from the Chamber of Commerce of Burnaby, B.C. against taxing such capital gains at the full rate of the gainer's personal income.

Burnaby businessmen also reiterated the protests of other chambers against abolition of a low rate of tax on a corporation's first $35,000 of annual profits.

The arguments of the B.C. Tenants Organization, present in the name of 23,000 apartment-dwellers, marked a change of pace from scores of submissions in which businessmen have criticized key features of federal proposals to impose a tighter tax system on corporations, shareholders and other investors—including apartment owners.

Mr. Yorke said tenants support introduction of income tax on capital gains.

He also applauded a federal proposal to plug a legal loophole whereby some owners of apartment buildings manage to calculate paper losses and deduct them from other income for tax-saving purposes.

Mr. Yorke argued that the present system tends to inflate rents, but so would the proposed changes. Provincial and municipal governments resist rent controls, so Ottawa should take action.

Several MPs, including Vancouver building contractor Tom Goode (L—Burnaby-Richmond-Delta), tackled Mr. Yorke's argument.

Mr. Goode suggested that current rents reflect tax advantages to apartment owners. Removal of the advantages therefore would harm both owners and tenants.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) observed that government tax proposals are "a two-edged sword," cutting both owners and tenants.

Robert Kaplan (L—Toronto-Don Valley) suggested that Mr. Yorke was "using a tenants organization to advance a political idea that does not help the tenants" in supporting tax proposals that would raise rents.

When Mr. Yorke said the organization was asking for some federal action to hold down rents, including the idea of making housing a public utility, Mr. Kaplan said:

"We are not going to have a public utility and we are not going to have rent control."

Earlier, committee members tangled with Mr. Hyland about his arguments that a capital gains tax would discourage Canadians from investing on stock markets and financing industrial growth.

Ray Perrault (L—Burnaby Seymour) asked whether introduction of a capital gains tax in the United States had been a notable deterrent to growth there. Mr. Hyland said the United States had been older, with more people and had a wider tax base when a capital gains tax was introduced in 1913.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants) said that even some witnesses "fortunate enough to make capital gains" had not opposed the proposal. Mr. Hyland said he had been surprised more individuals had not protested formally.

Bread Is Buttered Little Thinner at Hostels

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bread is buttered a little thinner this summer at men's hostels across Canada as growing numbers of Job-hunting transient men seek shelter.

"These aren't the skid road types that you often see, they are men caught in the Job-squeeze," says Rev. Marty Karl of Harbor Rescue Mission in Hamilton.

"When you get men saying they have been from Vancouver to Halifax looking for work and finding nothing, you have to know that things are awfully frustrating."

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press found an unseasonably high number of men seeking shelter, but although most hostels said they are overcrowded and straining their budgets, none reported looking for financial help elsewhere.

Vancouver traditionally attracts many transients lured by the favorable climate and reports that Job are easy to find in British Columbia.

This summer, with high unemployment and thousands of youngsters hitchhiking across the country, city welfare facilities are full and the Salvation Army is handling the overflow.

Hostels in Edmonton and other parts of Alberta report substantial increases in the numbers of transients seeking food and a place to sleep. Officials said many men are coming from Saskatchewan because of its depressed agricultural economy.

In Regina, Sigvard Haglund of the Salvation Army's social service centre said the number of transients is up from last year although it seems to have dropped from June.

Winnipeg's Salvation Army hostel has handled a tremendous increase in transient men.

"I guess they think there are more jobs out here," said Brig. Bernard Bernat. "I think they're wrong."

The upsurge seems to be symbolic of "hard times across the country," he said.

Arthur Leach, superintendent of the Union Mission for Men in Ottawa, said that until two years ago you could predict a summer decline in men coming in. But this year "there are more people travelling the road and looking for jobs."

Major Fred Smith of Ottawa's Salvation Army hostel said the numbers are straining the mission's finances.

Unemployment in Canada reached $29,000 in June, 146,000 more than for the same month last year and the highest level since 1961 on seasonally-adjusted comparison.

In Hamilton an official at the Good Samaritan hostel said some nights about 150 men show up compared to 80 to 100 normally at this time of year. So far no one has been turned away.

Brig. D. E. Strachan of the Salvation Army hostel in Hamilton said it is full every night at present.

"They are a different type of person alright. It's not unusual for us to be full but many of these men are travelling from all over."

In Toronto, the Scott Mission has served an average of 753 people a day in July, 159 more than the average for the last six months, said Assistant Director David Zeldman.

"We have a consistent number of men who are unemployable because of age or disability, but many of these new ones are employable and having difficulty finding work."

This week at the United Church's Fred Victor Mission in Toronto 30 beds were added to the 75 already there and some men were sleeping on the floor.

Concert Sparks Wild Riot

CHICAGO (AP) — More than 2,000 young persons battled police with rocks, bottles and baseball bats Monday in anger at the interruption of a free rock music concert sponsored by the city to "bridge the generation gap."

Mobs overturned automobiles, set them blaze and later streamed out of Grant Park into the downtown district, smashing windows and looting.

Three youths were shot and 53 other persons were injured, including 34 policemen. One policeman was stabbed and another beaten seriously.

There were 148 arrests.

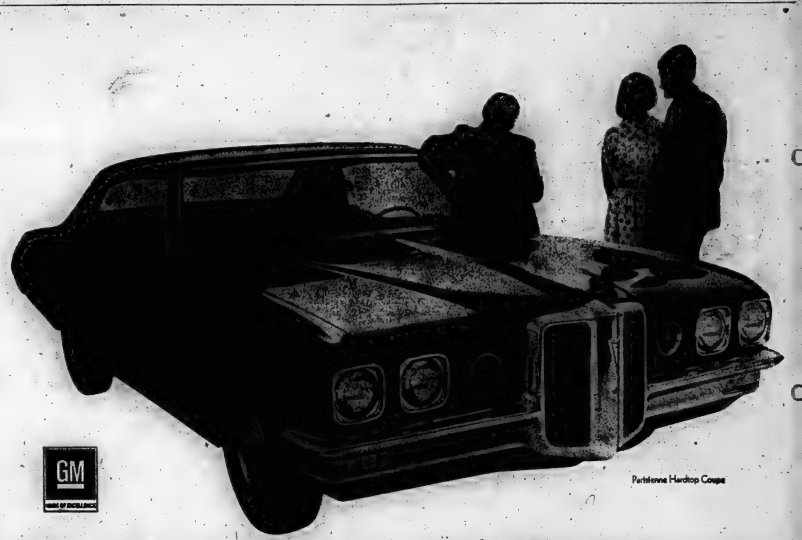
Outnumbered police and the rampaging youths battled back and forth over an athletic field for more than three hours in 90-degree late-afternoon heat.

Tear gas failed to disperse the crowd. One group of youths tried to calm others, but to no avail. One squad car was overturned and two other cars burned. One of those on fire exploded, filling the air with black smoke. Blazers also set trash fires. Cars passing along Lake Shore and Balbon drives were pelted with rocks.

After a police helicopter swooped low to broadcast the state riot act by loudspeaker, the police line made a final charge and mobs of youths retreated into the downtown area, pulling down street lights in Grant Park as they went.

The violence ended after about six hours.

Phosphate Removal Could Pay



TORONTO (CP) — Two University of Toronto professors suggested Monday that large cities could remove phosphates from sewage and make a profit from the process by selling the fertilizer obtained as a byproduct.

The object of removing phosphates is control of algae which thrives on the chemical but uses up oxygen at the expense of other marine life.

Dr. R. L. Bunnel and Dr. James W. Smith concluded from experiments at Ashbridges Bay waste-treatment plant here that removing phosphate from 150,000,000 gallons of effluent a day could be achieved at a capital cost of about $1,240,000.

The plant would show an annual yourplus of $262,500, after payment of labor, steam, maintenance and chemical costs, through sale of $705,000 worth of precious-quality fertilizer.

The researchers suggested in a paper that the process would best suit large cities. Small towns would still be advised to use a lime process proposed by the Ontario Water Resources Commission, a process comparatively inexpensive to install and not involving sale of a by-product.

British Longshoremen Call Off Dock Strike

LONDON (Reuters) — British longshoremen decided today to call off a national strike which immobilized cargo handling at all ports for the last two weeks.

Their decision was announced officially after a stormy meeting of stevedore delegates.

The meeting, representing the industry's 47,000 workers in all ports, decided by a vote of 51 to 31 to accept a compromise better-pay offer.

It gives stevedores a guaranteed weekly minimum wage of £20 ($48) and with overtime and bonus benefits puts most of them nearly into the £2,000-a-year wage group.

The more militant men at some ports wanted more than the average increase of £2 10s a week represented by the new award.

Most of the dockers will be operative again Monday, but there is a fear that splinter groups, where the militants are powerful, will decide to continue their stoppage on an unofficial basis.

The strike held up imports of raw materials to keep industry going and also stopped exports which Britain relies on to pay its way in the world.

Together, the value of these delayed goods is estimated at £500,000,000.

But with only a two-week backlog, an all-out effort by the longshoremen when they resume work Monday should soon clear the delayed cargoes.

One less which cannot be recouped: fast perishable foods. Fruit, vegetables and some meat worth several million pounds rotted in ships' holds during the strike.

It now is a dead loss and some cargoes of bananas on the West Indies today were dumped into the sea.

Mercury Level High But Nobody Poisoned

WINNIPEG (CP) — While mercury-contamination levels at Clay Lake in the Kenora district of northwestern Ontario are among the highest in the world, area residents have shown no symptoms of mercury poisoning, Dr. E. G. Bligh said Tuesday.

Dr. Bligh, assistant director of the Freshwater Institute laboratory here, and author of a report which revealed the situation at Clay Lake, told a news conference that no residents in the area eat enough of the contaminated fish to put their life in danger.

The report, which was handed to the OWRC in April but has been kept secret since then, warned that the level of contamination is three times higher than contamination which killed five persons in Japan five years ago.

Dr. Bligh told the news conference the Japanese victims ate fish containing five parts per million of mercury three times a day.

He said he thinks the source of the contamination is a chlorine plant at Dryden, Ont. Clay Lake is the first lake downstream from Dryden on the Wabigoon River.

The Canadian safe standard of contamination is 35 parts per million, but Dr. Bligh's report showed that one species, turbot, has a mercury contamination ranging from 10.46 parts per million to 16.65.

The report says pickerel from the Clay has levels from 7.52 to 8.14, northern pike 6.32 and cisco, a fresh-water herring, 7.20.

Liquor Licence Board Chairman Has Retired

TORONTO (CP) — Judge W. T. Robb has retired after 26 years as chairman of the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario, Premier John Robarts announced Tuesday.

Judge Robb, 82, a native of Dannville, Que., has been chairman since Oct. 24, 1944, the year the board was formed to administer regulations dealing with the sale of alcoholic beverages in Ontario.

"Judge Robb has most deservedly earned the appreciation of the people of Ontario for his many years of dedicated service and hard work," Mr. Robarts said.

His replacement has not yet been named.

Judge Robb was appointed judge of the County Court of Dufferin in December, 1931, and served 23 years before retiring from the bench in 1954.

Railwaymen Are Killed

EDMONTON (CP) — Three train accidents within little more than 24 hours left two men dead and hundreds of passengers delayed.

A CPR freight train, diverted to a side track by an open switch, crashed into a 40-car train near Carmangay, Alta., early Tuesday. Engineer Gilbert Cook, 52, and Gerardus Braat, 26, both of Lethbridge, were killed.

No Cod in Hold

Nova Scotia Boat in Gaspe Shows Herring, Bullet Holes

GASPE, Que. (CP) — The fishing vessel Scotia Bay of Yarmouth, N.S., came into port Tuesday with 200 tons of herring in her hold and seven bullet marks in her superstructure.

The shooting incident occurred Sunday night when rifle shots were fired from the rocky cliffs outside the tiny fishing village of Madeleine Centre, 90 miles east of this community on the tip of the Gaspe Peninsula.

Captain Cecil Garland of the Scotia Bay attributed the shooting to a misunderstanding on the part of local fishermen who are believed to have fired the shots.

"They think we're taking their cod, but all we're getting are herring," he said.

"We never see any cod. If we had been taking their cod ,they would have had the right to tell us to get the hell out."

Fishermen in Madeleine Centre are reported angry because, they say, their cod catches have been cut in half since herring fishermen from the Maritimes arrived in the area.

At least 10 fishermen were marching up and down the community's wharf Tuesday carrying rifles and shotguns.

Captain Garland said his seiner will not return to this water off Madeleine Centre until he is sure the vessel will not be fired upon again.

Most of my crew members are family men and I wouldn't want to see any of them shot."

He said the bullets struck the superstructure and it was only by chance no one was working in the area at the time.

Earlier, Quebec government officials investigating the shootings said the charges by the local fishermen "seem exaggerated."

Some reports said fishing boats from the Maritimes were depleting the residents' catch and fouling the beaches.

Regis Tribodeau, Gaspe fisheries protection director, said "there doesn't seem to be anything wrong here . . . and all we found on the beach were four fish."

The Madeleine Centre economy is based on fishing and tourism.

Heath Told Costs High

'Try one of these. They're handy for internal disorders.'

LONDON (CP) — Robert Stanfield, Canadian opposition leader, said today he has been encouraged in discussions here to believe that "nothing will happen precipitately" in Britain's controversial plan to sell arms to South Africa.

He told a news conference he suggested, in talks with Prime Minister Heath and other officials, that any possible strategic benefits from the arms sale would be more than offset by repercussions among Commonwealth countries.

While he declined to attribute any statement to Heath, he said he believes that the British government "is not going to rush ahead without a good deal of consultation" with Commonwealth countries.

The Progressive Conservative leader said he shares the concern over the arms issue expressed by Prime Minister Trudeau in a personal letter to Heath which was leaked to the British press during the weekend.

Stanfield added he has no reason to believe the mysterious leak came from the Canadian government.

He said he believes there is a strong feeling in Canada against the arms sale.

Hydro To Raise Offer

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro said Tuesday it is willing to increase its 4½-per-cent wage increase offer to more than 10,000 clerical and operations workers to avoid a strike.

Gordon McHenry, director of labor relations for Hydro, said the utility will increase its offer when negotiations resume next month.

Meanwhile, officials of Local 1000, Canadian Union of Public Employees, are balloting strike authorization ballots and will count them Aug. 4.

Robert Abbott, Hydro's chief negotiator, declined to say how high Hydro is prepared to go with its wage offer to avoid a strike.

Hydro employees are seeking an increase of 14 per cent on an average hourly rate of $3.82.

Herring Dying Again

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Samples of red herring found this week in Newfoundland's Placentia Bay have been sent to marine laboratories in Halifax for examination, a fisheries department spokesman said Tuesday.

Harold R. Bradley, area director for Newfoundland, said the fish look "suspicious."

A phosphorus plant in Long Harbor, Nfld., halted production in May, 1969. Effluent from the plant was found to be responsible for marine life deaths, particularly herring and cod.

Stiff Protest Made About Russian Ships

OTTAWA — The Government yesterday handed the Russian ambassador a stiff protest regarding the behavior of Soviet trawlermen off the west coast. External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and Fish delivered a sharply worded side-memorandum.

Mr. Davis said later that the 1,200-word document was "just about as stiff as you can get."

It sought Soviet assurances that there would be no further incidents.

While the note was being delivered in Ottawa, authorities on the coast were taking steps to increase air and surface surveillance of the Soviet trawler fleet of about 27 vessels, many of them more than 300 feet long.

While the navy prepared a stepped-up schedule of reconnaissance flights by Argus aircraft, the fisheries protection service hastened to bring a second vessel down the coast from Northern B.C.

By nightfall, the Laurier was on station off the west coast of Vancouver Island, joining the larger Tanu, which has been keeping an eye on the Soviet fleet for some time.

Right-wingers Blocking Israeli Acceptance Of U.S. Formula for Middle East Ceasefire

From AP-REUTERS

Right-wing ministers have blocked Israel's decision on the U.S. ceasefire proposal by threatening to quit the government if it is accepted.

The cabinet is scheduled to discuss the American proposal again today, and government sources said a majority is expected to give reluctant, qualified approval. But they said Premier Golda Meir is determined to obtain unanimous assent.

The right-wing Gahal party, which holds six of the 24 cabinet seats, split over the U.S. proposal in a stormy meeting Tuesday night. Sources said some members were willing to abstain in the cabinet vote but hardliners refused to accept any compromise.

Some Gahal members said it was "almost 95 per cent certain" that the party would quit the cabinet if it accepted the plan, the government radio reported.

Mrs. Meir conferred with Gahal leaders in an effort to avert a cabinet crisis.

Defence Minister Moshe Dayan meanwhile denied that he had threatened to resign if the government accepted the U.S. proposal. He told students in Tel Aviv that he would accept the plan reluctantly.

"We are not so strong we can foretell our allies," he said.

Local press reports said earlier that Dayan had misgivings about the plan because it speaks of Israeli withdrawal from lands captured in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. Dayan believes Israel's security depends on retension of the Gaza Strip, the Syrian Golan Heights, and the strip of Sinai coastland that runs from Israel's southern tip to the Red Sea. The Gahal party advocates holding on to all of the occupied territory.

Dayan also said the Soviet Union has "supervisors" of SAM-2 and SAM-3 anti-aircraft missiles in Syria as well as Egypt. Egypt is known to have both models of the Soviet missile and Russian technicians helping to man them, but an Israeli command spokesman said he had no knowledge that the Syrians have any SAM-3s.

The American peace proposal calls for a 90-day ceasefire so that UN envoy Gunnar Jarring can resume his third-party attempts to bring the Arabs and the Israelis together. Egypt and Jordan have accepted the plan, but the Palestinian guerrilla organizations have turned it down and vowed to keep on fighting.

Egypt suspended two nightly guerrilla broadcasts on Cairo radio because they were denouncing Egypt's acceptance of the U.S. initiative.

A Cairo government statement coupled the announcement of the closure with an assurance that Egypt would continue material, military and political support of the guerrillas.

The authoritative newspaper Al Ahram said a delegation from Fatah will arrive in Cairo today for urgent consultation with Egyptian officials, but it did not state the purpose of the visit.

One leftist guerrilla group, the Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, said the ban was the first step in a campaign to liquidate the guerrilla movement.

Fatah, the guerrilla newspaper in Amman, said the Voice of Palestine now will broadcast from Syria, which also has condemned the U.S. proposal.

The Palestinian central committee in Amman called a two-hour general strike in the Jordanian capital Thursday to protest the American plan.

Conversion Of Cottages Disliked By Council

AMELIASBURG (Special)—Township Council Monday night expressed willingness to encourage cottage building in the municipality — provided proposed changes to its zoning and building bylaws are strictly observed.

A resolution, proposed by Councillor Arnold Weatherall and seconded by Councillor Lyle Van Clief, suggested cottage lots be increased to 20,000 square feet with 100-foot frontages.

Township bylaws currently permit cottages on sites with 75 - foot frontages and a minimum area of 15,000 square feet.

The resolution also called for floor space requirements to remain at 800 square feet minimum.

The resolution will be sent to the township solicitor before being forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval.

Council is endeavoring to discourage cottages being turned into permanent residences, a regular practice previous to an OMB hearing earlier this year. The hearing chairman criticized the township for not having cottage usages properly defined.

Cameras Halt Nonsuch'

PICTON (Staff) — The Nonsuch made an unscheduled stop yesterday afternoon, anchoring in South Bay, 15 miles southeast of here, while a CBC camera crew photographed the craft for an upcoming television production, The Fur Trade.

Members of the camera crew directed by film producer Peter Kelly, shot film of the Hudson's Bay Company ketch from the water and, later, from her deck.

Captain Adrian Small captained the ship from the wheelhouse.

He promised to forward sketches of the mast's proper uses.

Capt. Small, joined by Revere Bailey and Commodore James Plenner, of Milford, later dined at the Black Creek home of Prince Edward County marine historian Wilkis McCalla, author of the book Canvas and Steam.

Mr. McCalla owns a unique collection of marine relics, among them a piece of sailcloth from the original Nonsuch.

The Fur Trade production — complete with Nonsuch — will be televised Nov. 1 at 9 p.m.

Sailing at a bit of a disadvantage compared with modern shipping, the Nonsuch had the last laugh yesterday. A houseboat, equipped with pontoons, was used to ferry the CBC camera crew from Belleville to South Bay. Time for the trip: one hour.

Last week, the Nonsuch sailed from Picton to Belleville with the same number of seaboun hours charted in her log.

UCS, Labor Council Have Joint Meeting

"We want to promote liaison with you," Robert Ord, president of United Community Services told the executive of the Quinte District Labor Council last night.

Dialogue was active as labor leaders joined directors of this year's United Appeal campaign for an informal dinner and discussion at a local motor hotel.

Co - operation of the labor council is important to the success of the United Appeal and campaign leaders last night solicited comment and criticism on United Appeal services from the labor representatives.

Ben Corke, United Appeal campaign chairman, told the QDLC representatives that he wanted to give them r e a l value for their dollars. One means of doing this suggested at the meeting was an extension of membership scholarships to the YMCA for less fortunate children.

Arnold Ord, spoke for the group when he said "we want them to do more and we hope that they will".

"I do not think that people realize that you work year round," Robert Andrus, president of the QDLC, told the lives.

Ben Corke contended that part of the reason for this was that, to the mass media, bad news is generally more remarkable than good. He said that when he and his wife have their 30th anniversary this year it would not make a hard news story but if he burned his wife it would be.

"You are dealing with people and we want to know what they think about social services", Isidore Cooperman, UCS executive director, told the labor leaders. He contended that all groups in the community deserve a hearing. including the Belleville Chamber for Belleville Committee.

Adequate means of determining the feelings of labor were discussed. United Appeal leaders asked Mr. Andrus if they could attend the next QDLC meeting on September 14. Mr. Andrus agreed to their request.

Additionally, Mr. Cooperman expressed his desire to attend as many meetings of union locals as possible in the next few months.

"We may be able to report on certain developments in United Appeal agencies by that time," he said.

Booth's Back at Old Stand, But With A New Philosophy

By HARRY MULRALL
Staff Reporter

At 14, Howard Booth probably was the youngest amateur radio operator in Canada.

Today, he's still tuning in. Only this time it's on a commercial wavelength shared by thousands of consumers.

Keeping contact with public purchasing moods has been a guiding precept in the growth of Booth's merchandising during 25 years of enterprise.

It's also one of the reasons for transporting Booth stock to its newest scene of operation — a converted w a r e house on Market Square.

For years, Booth's has been a commercial house divided — its various departments decentralized into separate, sometimes obscure locations in Belleville's downtown.

The current move finally settles the firm's quality lines of appliances, furniture and carpets under a single roof — and this will create higher operational efficiency.

But there's also this:

"We're convinced," says Mr. Booth, "that the buying public is more interested in value and the price of goods than fancy premises.

In line with this evaluation, Booth's now is switching to what is described as a "low-operation, offering "quality prices."

"We'll do volume buying for them and pass the savings on to our customers," says Mr. Booth.

It's the newest departure in what Mr. Booth reckons is the biggest, locally-owned business shift in the city, now.

Yet, coincidentally, the move physically brings the firm full circle.

For it was on Market square that Booth's first saw the light of commercial endeavor.

The new Booth's warehouse operation adjoins the west wall of Memorial Arena. In 1945, the company first went into business in what once was the city works-cade office at the east end of the rink. (It now houses the Opportunity Shop of the Belleville General Hospital's Women's Auxiliary.)

Booth's then was a radio repair shop — a fledgling start for today's big business that was an inevitable outcome of a teenage hobby.

Radio pervaded the 1930s — a natural attraction for a beat.

Howard Booth found it an absorbing pursuit and by 14 was sharing the amateur broadcasting wavelengths with similarly - enthusiastic - but older — home operators.

"I was the youngest ham in the country," he recalls. "You can't get a license at that age today."

The teenager's hobby had unexpected community results. His father, a city police sergeant, caught some of his offspring's absorption with radio and decided to put his tinkering to practical use.

Sgt. Booth built and installed a communications hookup between police headquarters and a cruiser — giving Belleville one of the first police radio systems in Canada. On its first experimental run it resulted in a prowler being nabbed on the spot at Belleville General Hospital.

Back in Belleville — after radar research service in World War II — the Booth radio repair endeavor was launched.

Television was on the horizon — and an obvious first step for an enterprising business.

Booth's introduced Bellevillians to the new medium.

As a "novelty" Howard Booth recalls building the "first television set that ever produced a picture in this town" — an antenna that picked up transmissions from Syracuse.

The next step was obvious. Booth's began selling television sets — and the radio repair business took a major step into merchandising.

It's been moving up ever since, moving its operations site as business growth demanded — first to premises on Front Street near East Dundas, then opposite city hall. It spread into adjoining premises as they became vacant. Then, three years ago, fire gutted the premises, forcing a move to two separate locations on East Bridge street.

Now, Booth's is back — almost at its old stand — but with 25 years of meeting trends and changes as its business references.

Among those changes have been the growth of peripheral shopping plazas. Yet, today, Booth's still remains a "city by a downtown business operation.

Mr. Booth believes there's room for both styles of merchandising in today's consumer market.

Both have their place and particular appeal, he says.

"There are towns where the downtown sections and the plaza sections advance together pretty well with rising populations, and the rise of spendable income," he adds.

Syracuse, N.Y., he cites as a prime example where, despite the installation of shopping centres on the city's rim, the downtown "is still booming as well as ever."

Booth's latest downtown shift also has neatly solved one of the problems of central shopping — parking.

The new location has some frontage parking space. But, more really in the city's rim the rim of one of the city's major municipal parking areas.

It's one of the side benefits for customers coming to view Booth's offerings — a range of lines that has been selected by a quarter - century in business.

In that time various lines have been adopted and discarded in the process of business evolution. Some goods, for instance, once a big Booth department, now are no longer part of the operation.

But the popularity of other, more recent, forms of recreation is recognized. Musical instruments are part of the store stock.

What has evolved is an enterprise centred on the home front.

Today's lines: Television, (color and black-and-white), furniture, carpets, refrigerators, ranges, stereo record players, musical instruments, bedding, tape recorders, laundry equipment.

And — of course — radios.

Today, as president of one of the district's major business houses, Booth still maintains his interest in the early hobby that launched it all.

He's still an active amateur operator and — when occasion demands — will repair his own radio.

Park, Pollution Marmora Topics

MARMORA — Proposed plan for the park on the northeast shore of Crowe River, submitted by Canadian Mitchell Associates, Ltd., consulting engineers and town planners of Brantford, was accepted by the Park Committee at a meeting of Marmora Village Council last week.

Present were reeve William Reynolds and Monk, and committee members James McChesney and James Cook.

Councillor Bill Monk was appointed chairman of the Parks Commission.

It is the opinion of Canadian Mitchell Associates, that with its strategic location on Highway 7 in an established tourist region, Marmora Park has great potential as a recreation area of significant value to the region as well as to the village itself.

The various development phases of the park will continue over an estimated twenty - year period and cost of the program is based on a 50 percent government grant on monies spent on its development.

Pollution problems were discussed by council with Lloyd Ellington, Chief Health Inspector of the Health Unit of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties. Members of the Pollution Probe committee were present for this part of the meeting.

Council and Pollution Probe were assured by Mr. Ellington that steps would be taken immediately to find the sources of pollution in the park area, north of Highway 7. Progressive reports are to be forwarded to Marmora Pollution Probe by the Health Unit.

Ships Harassed

Canada has naval units stationed on the west coast and it is about time they were put to use guarding fishing vessels being harassed by Russian ships milking the fishing grounds there.

It seems you can hardly turn around these days without hearing about Russia's fishing fleet operating in this, that and the other ocean, and to make matters worse they are now making trouble for Canadian trawlers.

Two incidents reported from the west coast include a ramming and a sideswiping of Canadian ships by Soviet vessels. These appear to have been deliberate, for in the ordinary way the Russians would not want to be accused of incompetent handling of their boats.

It is time the navy did something about this unsatisfactory situation on the fishing grounds of the west coast. Air surveillance of the Soviet fleet should also be considered.

Soviet Dealings

Opposition leader Robert Stanfield is reported to have raised the west coast fishing problem with a Soviet deputy minister during his recent visit to Moscow. To nobody's surprise his representations had little or no impact; but then, nor have several other protests made by Ottawa in recent months.

There is something rather pathetic about the government's efforts in this regard, with Fisheries Minister Jack Davis lamenting the fact that "we do not seem to be getting through to the right people," and bravely noting that another protest would be made, "at least at the deputy minister level." All of which may draw a yawn at the very least from the Soviets — if it does get through at all to anyone in authority in the Kremlin.

As for Mr. Stanfield, the cartoonists' 'in' joke just now shows him taking his ease on a Kremlin balcony, while Premier Kosygin and First Secretary Brezhnev hastily thumb through phrase books seeking in vain for a translation of "Leader of the Opposition."

Political opposition of course is not tolerated in Russia and the man in the street there seems to suffer from some degree of naivety in this regard. American playwright Arthur Miller touched on this theme in his interesting book, In Russia, in collaboration with photographer his wife Inge Morath, and found that outside the Kremlin told Miller he had faith in what his country's rulers were doing; they knew best, Miller was told in effect.

So much for participatory democracy in Russia. Such opposition as there is, does not go far. Four years ago, at the 23rd Communist Party Congress in Moscow, Brezhnev made it clear that the party was going to crack down on artists and writers who had been criticizing the government. In February of that year two Soviet writers, Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuli M. Daniel were sent to jail for anti-Soviet works which were published abroad.

Just the other day, the CBC's Moscow correspondent, Ab Douglas, quoted William Cole, a U.S. newsman who has been expelled from Russia, as saying that 16 literary figures have died in Soviet jails and that their deaths were hastened by lack of medical attention.

It might be argued that Soviet society is peaceful compared with the United States' scene today, until we get reminders such all these that the Communist party is supreme, that no opposition is tolerated and that the secret police ensure that it stays that way.

Third at Games

Canada's 162-strong team at the Commonwealth Games went far toward erasing this country's lack-lustre sporting image of recent years. Their place among nations, with 506 points, behind traditional contestants for top honors Australia (644) and England (631), was a creditable performance. And congratulations to Price Morris of Belleville's Apollo Rec Bell club for the bronze medal he won in the heavyweight weightlifting contest. All in all we seem to be on the up and up in international sporting competition.

Loses Eye

There will be sympathy with former Prime Minister Lester Pearson in the removal of an eye. However, Mr. Pearson is still an active man at 73 and we hope the operation will not slow him down unduly. Reading and study are important facets of the life of a politician in retirement so we can understand Mr. Pearson's predicament. Still one eye is better than none, as the former prime minister is doubtless aware at this time.

Penny-Pinching on $18,000

MP Wants Close Watch on CBC and Other Spenders

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — With just about all practical MP hope abandoned of any parliamentary pay raise beyond whatever the Government's guidelines might be next fall, many of the 95 freshmen members of the Commons have been saying they will not be back after the next election.

They have been clamoring for an increase from their current annual $18,000 plus some very worthwhile fringe benefits — like a lifetime pension regardless of age starting after only six years in Parliament — to pay-cheques ranging all the way from $25,000 to $28,000.

With the same fringe benefits, of course.

Well, it has been clear for some time that they are not going to get it.

And it still has not occurred to some of them that the possibility of their not being back in Parliament after the next election will not necessarily be a decision of their own making.

For it is not altogether unrealistic to imagine that a few might not even get their party's nomination even if they asked for it again, or that, given it, they automatically would win re-election.

Wildly improbable as it must sound to some of the first-termers, they are not all as hollow-cheeked as they seem to think.

Not only might their cheeks back home wonder if their initial performance has been worth even $18,000 — but if they care to look over their shoulders, they will be surprised to find how long is the line of willing replacements.

After all, the life of an MP is not all self-sacrifice, and where else can you qualify in six years for a pension for life?

Among the freshmen who made the loudest protest against what he publicly complained was the under-pay and over-work of an MP was Ralph Stewart, a Liberal representing Northern Ontario's Cochrane constituency.

He clamors that he is going broke on $18,000. And he may be, for he has eight children in support and one of the biggest riches in Canada to cover.

His cries that he is worth more than the $18,000. And he could be, for he is pretty bright and works hard at being a full-time on-the-job MP.

He has said as much in a letter addressed to a dozen or more newspaper editors all across Canada, and he has made a pretty good case for his self, and, anyway, it not for all 95 of the freshmen MP class.

How bright is Ralph Stewart?

Bright enough to know that he is not going to get $26,000 or maybe not even $25,000 — and to think out an altogether practicable and worthwhile alternative.

Worthwhile both for an MP and for the taxpayer.

He has suggested, in a series of 37 bills, the appointment of an MP to the board of directors of 37 federal crown corporations and commercial agencies.

Like the directors of industrial, financial and commercial corporations, members of the boards of federal agencies — all part-time appointments — are paid. Directors' fees and expenses.

These fees can amount, and in some cases have amounted to as much as a very acceptable $5,000 a year.

Not too much work. Nor time. Nice for an MP, you say?

Agreed.

But good for you, as a taxpayer, too.

No need to remind you that while you are putting up $181 million in loan dollars this year for the CBC the broadcasting corporation refuses to give a full accounting of its purposes to Parliament. None of Parliament's business, it has argued for years, and got away with it.

Now Ralph Stewart proposes the appointment of two Members of Parliament — one Liberal, one Opposition — to the CBC Board of Directors. He should give Parliament a direct voice and some long-needed muscle in CBC top management.

Remember how, year after year, lead to the howls of protest from Parliament, the Canada Council has dished out your tax dollars in grants to such oddballs as the self-appointed Town Clown of Vancouver, confirmed Separatist — Journalist Stanley Gray, and Ralph Ortiz, the Great Piano-Basher from New York?

Well, Ralph Stewart would appoint to the Council's board an MP who might be able to explain to the academic types on it that tax dollars are real — not play money.

Ralph Stewart has another bill to put an MP on the board of the controversial Company of Young Canadians, who tolerated anarchists in their ranks, giving aid, comfort and financial backing to Montreal terrorists.

Another to give an MP a seat among the directors of Ottawa's fabulously expensive — it cost you $49 millions — National Arts Centre.

Then crown corporations and federal agencies are, as they delight in reminding Parliament, "independent."

Ralph Stewart would have a man who might be some Parliament's own man — to remind them and perhaps even make them believe that it is your money and your business, too.

Road Works Sign

Editor,
The Intelligencer

The closing of part of Highland Avenue as a throughway brings me to the point of a suitable name for a sign at the top of this road.

I am aware that the usual term for such a street is "Dead End" but in view of the proximity of the Bush Funeral Home may I venture to suggest that in this instance it would not be a something like "No Through-way" would be more acceptable.

Yugoslav Native Throws A Mean Boomerang!

Don Delaplania in the Globe and Mail

The world expert on Australian boomerangs, and the best thrower, is a Yugoslav.

In addition, husky, blue-eyed Stephen Sladdy, 47, now touring Canada, teaches Australian aborigines how to throw boomerangs, with a special plastic weapon he has invented. His boomerang, which he says is aerodynamically perfect, is guaranteed to come back.

He sees a big future for boomerang-throwing in Canada, because there is so much space in which to throw them. Space is needed, he says, unless a guy want to smash windshields, or perhaps cut somebody's head off.

He was in the Royal York Hotel, with his pretty wife, Pauline, tossing a boomerang around a small hotel room. This was quite a feat, a masterpiece of control in fact, for usually he wants 100 yards clearance in all directions in which to operate.

A muscular man of 195 pounds, he throws boomerangs distance thrower. Once he threw one 120 yards and it came back to his hand. But he says he does it every day in the week, for the wind has to help the boomerang back.

If you throw a boomerang that far, and it comes three quarters of the way back, you are considered a success.

Recently he performed at the Calgary Stampede where he tried to interest some Canadian Indians. Instead, an Indian charged his wife $1 for permitting her to take his photo.

"It's like that back in Australia. There the Aborigines charge two bob," he said.

He arrived in Australia as a 15-year-old immigrant and shortly after went to Botany Bay, where Captain Cook had first seen aborigines with boomerangs back in 1770, and described the strange curving swords that came back.

He made boomerangs his spare time study, and finally, in 1952, was able to defeat all white men and aborigines in national competition. A toolmaker, he decided to make a perfect boomerang, and claims he has done so out of plastic.

The aborigines had two types of boomerang, he says, one that came back and one that didn't. Usually one was the one that didn't, and it's now known as "the Killerboom."

Sladdy now tosses five or six boomerangs rapidly into the sky, one after the other.

Man, you sure have to be ready to duck, as they come back at you," he said.

Speaking of Comfort

You can be social, or secluded, in this spacious easy-chair enclosed by circular, adjustable shells. As may be seen, there is room for two, but if you want to get away from it all just drop the lid in front, hang up your coat, turn on the light and curl up with a magazine. The capsule has a radio-tape recorder too, not to mention a mini-bar and the whole thing is air-conditioned. If you should be at the beach and want to take a walk you can lock up your valuables in the built-in safe deposit. The gadget is the work of a well-known porcelain-manufacturing concern in Selb, Germany, which has branched out into furniture production.

The tourist business in the city of Belleville is way below what it was last year, say most merchants and dealers, according to a survey made by The Ontario Intelligencer . . .

Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School will be literally crammed to the doors when classes re-open come September, according to school principal G. E. Currie. Registration for September classes has already reached 1,071 students, which is more than 150 increase over that of last year. To accommodate the additional students, there will be only one extra classroom — one provided through temporary division of the collegiate library which will hold up to 50 students.

Hippie Invasion

Vancouver's Unwanted Visitors

Hamilton Spectator

If more Canadians adopted the same attitude to life hippies as Vancouver's mayor, Tom Campbell, there would be fewer of them longing about. Mayor Campbell, like many of the other civic citizens in Vancouver, is sick of the hippies who swarm westward from all over the country and lie about on the grass overlooking English Bay.

He thinks these able-bodied young folk should be left to themselves if they refuse to work. There is merit in this. A lot of these young people beg in the streets. "Have you a dime or two?" they ask politely. (In Toronto they are becoming bolder and asking for "spare quarters").

It is not a kindness to give any more than it is to pick up hippie hitch-hikers; it enables them to continue on their idle, unwashed way. Furthermore, they accept with a slight, contemptuous curl of the lip, because the donor is stupid enough to want the money and then give it away to someone who is smart enough not to work.

In the meantime, more forest fires are raging in British Columbia than for many years. Appeals are being issued to every able-bodied person capable of helping to join the fire-fighters. But not the hippies. They stand for "rights". Not only is such activity hard work—which they avoid like a plague—but it is "bourgeois". After all, are they not proving that a person can live, and kill around, without work, while the "stupid square makes it possible? Their decadent "philosophy" as hodge - podge of half-baked Marxism, yoga aphorisms and so-called Zen Buddhism, serves as a camouflage for idleness.

In the end, it is up to the people of Vancouver. If they are really sick of hippies lounging around on their benches, they can get rid of them fast enough. There are laws on the statute books; the trouble is they are not enforced, or they are watered down by something against "vagrancy" by begging permitted.

If the citizens back up their police force, instead of abusing it, as so many of them do, the beaches could be cleared of these unwashed and unwanted tourists.

Today In History

J. S. Woodsworth, Canadian socialist and social reformer, was born 96 years ago today—in 1874—near Islington, Ont. He was a Methodist minister for nearly 20 years and left the church because of its attitudes to war and social reform. After his participation in the Winnipeg general strike of 1919 he went into Parliament and helped bring about pension legislation in 1926. A few years later he became the first leader of the CCF party, which he helped found company only in 1932, when he refused to vote for declaration of war on Germany.

At Last—the Demise Of the IQ Test!

Ottawa Journal

To a generation raised in worship IQ scores, it will seem incredible that the IQ test is being quietly buried. The tyranny of the Intelligent Quotient has been broken by psychiatrists, educators and psychologists who once enthroned it as the scientific objective way of measuring intelligence and of classifying school children. . .

Now it seems that an IQ test even if it was to reveal a child's academic achievement at the time he took the test, it never really measured awareness, imagination, creativity, judgment, stability. IQ tests purported to measure some narrow, inane quality called "intelligence". But now it is conceded that intelligence cannot be separated from a whole cluster of characteristics, notably cultural influences.

How many children have been stunted and their self-esteem laid but unrealized because of low IQ scores? The whole vicious business has been made worse by the teachers who, unable to separate the teachables from the unteachables, led, as Dr. Henry G. Davidson, a psychiatrist, has written, to "self-fulfilling and self-perpetuating prophecy."

Teachers didn't expect much from a child with a low IQ and expecting much, the teacher did not get much. The very children who most desperately needed more of the teacher's time got less of it. The worst part of it all, the damage done to them was a kind of assbolutism . . . attached to an IQ; it was believed that it could no more be changed than the color of the eyes.

The IQ was finally overthrown by the unexpected performance of children who had been branded as backward and put into special classes or slow streams. Individual attention — "find patience — brought such good results that these children proved that their real problem was cultural deprivation, not a low IQ.

The demise of the IQ test should be a warning to all, parents and teachers, that the pretensions of any inexact science which uses some mathematical formula to conclude it solves possibilities of the human mind.

Tourists Love It

Two foreign fishing vessels stand in the usually fog-shrouded harbor of St. Pierre, capital of the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon — France's only North American possession. It's not easy to reach, the summer temperature averages only 58 degrees and of course the fog rolls in too often. However, the European atmosphere and cheap prices draw tourists like flies, allowing the tourist industry to rank third to fishing and the civil service for this outpost off the coast of Newfoundland. Witness Tells of Tate Bloodbath

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Screams pierced the darkness, Linda Kasabian said, as a man, blood streaming from his wounds, stumbled from actress Sharon Tate's hilltop mansion across the lawn.

"We looked into each other's eyes for a moment, and I said, 'I'm sorry. I'm sorry. Oh, God, make it stop.'"

Sobbing into her hands, Mrs. Kasabian testified Tuesday that she saw two persons slain at Miss Tate's home Aug. 9 and heard the screams of three other victims pleading for their lives.

"I heard a man scream out 'No, No' and then I just heard screams. I don't have any words to describe how the screams were. It was just unbelievably, horribly terrible."

The sandy-haired 21-year-old mother of two told her version of the bloodbath as she testified at the murder-conspiracy trial of cult leader Charles Manson, 35, and three women followers.

Mrs. Kasabian said Manson instructed her to follow the orders of his lieutenant, Charles (Tex) Watson. Then he sent Watson, Mrs. Kasabian and two other girl followers on a mid-night mission which ended at the home of Miss Tate, 26, a blonde, pregnant movie star.

Mrs. Kasabian testified that she saw Watson shoot to death the first victim, Steven Parent, 18, a visitor driving away from the house, and slab and beat to death Wojciech Frykowski, 37, a Polish-born guest whose body was found later on the lawn.

Mrs. Kasabian said it was Frykowski she encountered on the lawn, and at one point, after he had fallen, he tried to get up. She said "Tex hit him on the head and was stabbing him in the back . . . I don't know how many times. He just kept doing it and doing it and doing it."

Still weeping, Mrs. Kasabian told of seeing one of Manson's co-defendants, Patricia (Katie) Krenwinkel, 22, knife raised, chasing night-gown-clad Abigail Folger, 26, across the lawn. Miss Folger, a coffee company heiress, also died outside the house.

Mrs. Kasabian said another defendant, Susan (Sadie) Atkins, 21, approached her in the midst of the killing.

"I said, 'Sadie, make it stop,' but she said, 'It's too late,'" Mrs. Kasabian continued.

Mrs. Kasabian said she didn't see Miss Folger slain. And apparently she didn't witness the killings of Miss Tate and hair stylist Jay Sebring, 35, who died in the house.

Mrs. Kasabian's testimony was interrupted by a rapid-fire volley of objections by Manson's lawyer, Irving Kanarek, who vainly challenged virtually every prosecution question.

Mrs. Kasabian, the prosecution's chief witness who has been promised immunity from prosecution, said she was unaware of the purpose of the mission when Manson sent her with the others into the night.

"Charlie told me to go with Tex and do whatever Tex told me to do," said Mrs. Kasabian. Watson has been indicted in the case and is fighting extradition from Texas.

As Watson started the car, Mrs. Kasabian said:

"Charlie came to my side of the car and told us to leave a sign. He said, 'You girls know what I mean—something witchy.'"

She said Manson referred to girls in his mostly female clan as witches.

Bloody scrawlings were found at the death scene.

After Parent was killed, Mrs. Kasabian said she went with Watson to the house where he cut a window screen, but she was sent back to Parent's car to act as lookout.

"I waited a few minutes and then I heard people screaming and saying, 'No, please, no.' It was horrible. I can't tell you how horrible it was."

Later, she said, "I saw Katie in the background with an upraised knife, chasing a girl . . . I turned and ran."

The four defendants sat impassively as Mrs. Kasabian testified. At one point, the girls mouthed a message in CB radio-ese and she silently mouthed an answer.

Her lawyer said later the message from the girls was, "You're killing us," and that Mrs. Kasabian replied, "I'm not killing you. You've killed yourselves."

Earlier Tuesday, Mrs. Kasabian gave an account of the Manson "family's" unconventional sex rituals, including group sex gatherings in which "everybody made love to everybody."

Manson, she said, came to her in a chre the night after she joined the Manson family at the isolated Spahn ranch.

"He made love to me and we had a slight conversation," she said.

The witness told of a family gathering at which Manson had sexual "intercourse with a 16-year-old girl while 20 "family" members watched.

Mrs. Kasabian said that after he took the girl, Manson "told everybody to make love to everybody."

Q. What followed thereafter?

A. Everybody made love to everybody. We shed our clothes and were lying on the floor and it didn't matter if a man or a woman was beside you. You touched everybody and made love to everybody.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID McKENNA

McKenna — Mouck

At St. Thomas Anglican Church, the recent marriage of Patricia Anne Mouck and David Carnavon McKenna took place with Rev. Peter M. Tett officiating. The organist was Donald W. Devenport.

The bride is the daughter of Marilyn Eileen Mouck of 132 John Street South, Belleville and the late Lt.-C. Mouck. The groom is the son of the late James Albert McKenna and Mrs. McKenna of St. John Street South, Belleville.

The bride was given in marriage by brother of the groom, James Cameron McKenna.

She wore a wedding dress, consisting of a pure silk pilmia empire waistline with Swiss embroidered lace bodice and lily point sleeves of the same lace. A scissor front with insertions of matching lace and button closing scoop neckline topped off the ensemble together with a long chapel train, hem and train with Swiss lace edging.

The bride carried a bouquet of pink carnations with white stephanotis and ivy.

Maiven of honor, Mrs. Dorothy Mowers wore a powder blue A-line crimplene sheath dress, trimmed with white, carrying a hand bouquet of white and blue carnations.

Best man was Norman E. Mowers and ushers were Tony Fox and Gerfield Little.

At the reception at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, the bride's mother wore an aqua silk jersey sheath dress with white accessories carrying a white and pink carnation bouquet.

The groom's mother wore a deep blue lace dress with white accessories, carrying a white carnation corsage.

For the wedding trip to the Ottawa area, the bride wore a white crimplene dress trimmed with lace with black accessories. She carried a white gardenia corsage.

A community shower was held at the Kiwanis centre and a shower was given by the girls who work with her at the Templer Flower Shop.

Upon their return, the the couple will reside in Belleville.

Young Ducks Hatched In Frying Pan

WADENA, Sask. (CP) — Mrs. George Kowalishka of Wadena has seven young ducks that got an odd start in life: They were put "to bed" in an electric frying pan.

When she heard of a neighbor who had some duck eggs that the ducks for some reason refused to hatch, she obtained 10 of the eggs and put them in an old pan.

The pan was lined with wool, a soft cloth and facial tissue.

With the pan temperature kept at a steady level recommended by a hatchery and periodic application of warm water from a window-spray bottle, the ducks began to hatch within a month.

When they squawked for attention, Mrs. Kowalishka liberated them from their unusual birthplace.

After seven had arrived, she examined the rest and found that five eggs were not fertile and the others hadn't yet reached the stage where they could peck their way out of the shells.

Now, the seven are in a small wooden box farm community 110 miles northeast of Regina and thriving on a diet of oatmeal, boiled and cottage cheese under the watchful eye of Mrs. Kowalishka.

Parents Home

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer returned home from Niagara Falls on Sunday where they were called following an accident in which their son-to-law, William Bertrand of Campbellford, was seriously injured in a fall into the Niagara Gorge.

Mr. Bertrand had asked a passerby where he might go to the bathroom and had been told to jump over a nearby wall. Disregarding instructions, Mr. Bertrand fell 100 feet down Niagara Gorge to land on bare rock. He sustained broken arms, legs and ribs.

Ann Landers

Neighbors Disturbed By Boy's Actions

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The people next door bought a puppy for their three-year-old son. The puppy is so small you can hold it in the palm of your hand. The little boy is not old enough to take proper care of a puppy and I'm afraid he'll hurt the poor thing. I've asked the boy several times to stop bothering the puppy, but he doesn't really listen to me. I think it is terrible for parents to give a small child a pet before he knows how to take care of it. This little kid doesn't know the difference between a live animal and the stuffed toys he's been playing with.

I pleaded with them to call the Humane Society but she doesn't want any trouble with the neighbors. When I said I'd call she yelled, "Don't you dare!"

I can't go against my mother's word, but I am sick of seeing that puppy tortured. Please tell me what to do. — PAT G.

DEAR PAT: Go to the neighbors and tell them what you told me. Sometimes adults can learn from children, and this is one of those times. The parents need to have this situation brought to their attention and I'm sure you're the person who can do it. Good luck.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have accepted an engagement ring from a wonderful young man. We decided to marry before he goes into the service.

I get a little sick inside when I think of Hugh meeting some of my relatives. I have a couple of aunts and uncles who don't know how to dress. Also, their table manners are appalling and their grammar is atrocious. They say such things as "Didn't you seen it before?" They talk too loud and laugh like hyenas. I hate for Hugh and his family to meet these idiots but I must invite them. Is there something I can say to prepare Hugh and his people for these offensive boors? — DREADING IT

DEAR DREAD: Offensiveness must run in your family. You sound like a social-climbing creep to me.

So what if your relatives aren't up on how to dress, and their table manners and grammar leave something to be desired? They're your relatives and you should make no apologies for them. Get wise to yourself before Hugh has to make apologies for YOU, Kiddo.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've heard it said that when a marriage goes on the rocks the rocks are usually in the mattress. I don't want this to happen to me. I am being married soon to a wonderful man. I have had no sex experience to speak of and I'm scared to death I will be a great disappointment. How can a woman be a good sex partner if she has had no experience? They say practice makes perfect. I want to be perfect but I don't want to practice — in advance, that is. Please help me. — LILY

DEAR LIL: Practice does not necessarily make perfect — when it comes to sex, that is. Sometimes it just makes people tired. Don't worry about technique, Doll. Let your instincts guide you. If you and your fiance are really in love you can develop the technique later.

Recipe for Active Vacationers

Sauerbraten is a rib-sticker and will satisfy your swimmers and water skiers. Mary Moore has given two totally different methods. One calls for canned roast beef with gravy and the other starts from scratch and will serve a cottage crowd of 9 or 10.

Recipe to Cherish

Sauerbraten Right for Cottage Cooks

By MARY MOORE

This sauerbraten received such a cordial welcome I am hurrying it into print for the cottage cooks. The Speedy Sauerbraten is made from canned roast beef with gravy. The Sauerbraten for a crowd will serve nine people and is a recipe you must cherish in your Beef Stew file.

New Concept Needed

Housewife's Work Genuine Active Labor

OTTAWA (CP) — Housewifery is a major missing element in calculating a country's national income, says a woman who should know.

The contribution that women make to the economy in running homes is ignored statistically and this lack of recognition also is hard psychologically on housewives, says Sylva Gelber, director of the women's bureau for the federal labor department.

"Although the precise extent of unpaid domestic services in industrial countries is not known, it is obvious from those estimates which have been made, particularly where these have been on the basis of equivalent values for paid domestic services at market rates, that they represent a substantial percentage of national income," she said recently.

Miss Gelber was speaking to the North American conference on labor statistics in Houston, Texas.

Women working in the home should be considered part of the active labor force and the estimated value of the cost of specified unpaid domestic services which women provide in their own homes should be included in the total cost of goods and services which make up Canada's gross national product, she said.

This would have a psychological effect "towards a more positive attitude on the part of society to housework services, not to mention a more positive attitude of housewives themselves to their own domestic services," she argues.

The belittling of the role of the housewife and of household domestic services has been responsible in no small part for many of the dissatisfactions being experienced at the present time, particularly by some younger women who might well have found satisfaction in choosing such a role but for prevailing attitudes."

Miss Gelber has previously called housework services "the orphan in economic reckoning," A plaintive jingle which appeared in the Canada Labor Gazette, "from the women's bureau," sums up the situation:

"Through women in labor, life keeps on its course;

"But mothers don't count in the labor force."

Miss Gelber said in her Houston speech that by considering housewives part of the active labor force, scope of the present social security programs would be broadened to include them.

One example was the Canada Pension Plan, a federal social insurance program to which employees and self-employed persons contribute and thereby earn rights to a retirement pension at age 65.

"Thus a woman entering the labor force after a period of years, during which she was providing unpaid domestic services in her own home, is at a definite disadvantage compared to persons who during those years were providing paid services in the open market.

"If, as a housewife carrying out her own domestic services, she had been considered to be in the active labor force, she might have been given the opportunity to pay into the plan. On seeking employment outside of her home, she would bring with her the equity in the plan to which she had been contributing.

"Similarly, allowances, provided under an adult retraining program in Canada are available to persons who have been attached to the active labor force for a period of three years.

"Because housewives are excluded from the labor force, they are not eligible for these allowances. Yet the retraining of this important segment of the working population would contribute to the fuller utilization of manpower services."

Liability Insurance for R.N.s.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyer Mary Southin of Vancouver says registered nurses should obtain liability insurance similar to that held by other professional groups.

Miss Southin told a recent meeting of the Registered Nurses' Association of British Columbia that liability insurance is a safeguard against being sued for damages.

She said that in any profession there are bound to be conflicts between duty to one's superiors, duty to the law and duty to professional ethics.

The nurses subsequently approved a resolution calling for an investigation into an emergency medical aid act that would grant protection to personal persons giving aid at accidents or in an emergency.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "I'll bet you wish you, but he practices and Jack does. He's no older than you, but he practices and tries harder. He'll probably win the junior tournament this summer."

It does not add to a child's ability at games if his inferior points are constantly emphasized. If he enjoys the sport and your companionship, this is a better incentive for him to practise and improve.

"Father: "You're getting so you really hit the ball solidly. I enjoy golfing with you."

Son: "Maybe you could show me how to improve my putting."

Successful Living

Boys' Own Common Sense Governs Night Life Hours

By DORIS CLARK

"Curfew? We don't have any curfew at our house. Our boys are 18 and 19. We depend on them to use their own common sense. If they stay out too late too often, then they are too tired the next day. They have found that out.

"They don't go haywire. When it is a boy-girl affair all the kids around here hold out for having it in a home where the parents have agreed to stay around for the evening.

"Now I notice that Bill is staying home occasionally rather than spending every night out with the boys. He knows he just can't do it and do his job properly or enjoy his work.

"Both of the boys pay board and Bill is taking some extra studies at night school. I think when boys help out with painting around the house and do the other things we need them for, they are entitled to some trust."

This was the happy statement of a surprisingly young-looking mother, backed up by a relaxed - looking husband. In fact, this whole family of four seem to have the light of enthusiasm in their eyes — enthusiasm for one another.

Nice to read about, isn't it?

* * *

Dear Doris: This I had to pass on to you and your readers. After living all my life in a house, I had to give it up and move into an apartment. It is a nice apartment in pretty grounds but I didn't know a single person in that big complex. The walls were still bare of pictures — unpacked cartons all about and a lump of loneliness in my throught I couldn't wash down even with a cup of tea.

Then my phone rang. When I said, "Hello!" a warm, husky voice said, "Hello. I'm your next door neighbor and I just phoned to say I hope you will be happy here."

The lump went down — fast. "If you're not too busy come in and have a cup of tea with me, won't you? And if you're too busy right now getting settled, come tomorrow. If you'd care to."

Maybe you think it was a very little thing — but I tell you, right then it just about saved my life. It certainly made me feel an apartment could be a nice place to live in after all. — Susan

Dear Susan: I know. Like a rope thrown to a drowning man. That one cup of tea was worth a million dollars.

ZIPPY FLAVOR

Heat a can of beef broth, diluting as usual, according to directions on the can. But add a suspicion of horseradish for zippy flavor.

In a delicate straw yellow British woven tweed from Linton, this Chanel suit shows a closer than usual fit and a buttoned-up-to-neck look filled in by a jewelled gold necklace. The sleeve bears a stitched tuck from shoulder to banded cuff. Blazed seams give slight flare to the skirt.

CASTLES OF ENGLAND by Garry Hogg

Over nine centuries of thrilling history waits to be explored within the majestic stone walls of England's castles. Each bears witness to some memorable tale — occupation and siege, glorious victory, royal tragedy, pomp and pageantry. Those in this book range from romantic Knaresborough, familiar to all readers of Scott's novels, to the towering keep of Ludlow; from the lordly stronghold of Arundel, to the massive battlemented walls of Bodiam, reflected in the still waters of its moat.

OPERATION OVERFLIGHT — by Francis Gary Powers

Mr. Powers' story followed from a Russian prison in 1962 and now reveals the full story of what happened behind the scenes in the most sensational espionage case of the Cold War History — the Y-2 incident, which wrecked a Summit Conference, cast a blight to the credibility gap, and inaugurated a new era in the art of spying. Drawing on a diary he kept while imprisoned, the author discloses the details of his mysterious trial, and of his life inside two of Russia's most infamous prisons, Lubyanka and Vladimar.

COPPER AND BRASS — by Geoffrey Wills

THE GREEKAMMERGAU PASSION PLAY by Vernon Heston

This book recalls for us the story of the dreadful plague that destroyed a quarter of the population of Europe during the seventeenth century. The story also tells of the great actors who devoted so much of their lives to their parts in the play — and yet remained simply villagers. In spite of the vast crowds that flock from all over the world to see the performance.

Gas Drilling Permit Issued

TORONTO (CP) — A permit for the exploratory drilling of an oil or gas well on Walpole Island was issued Tuesday to Camac Explorations Ltd. of Calgary after the Ontario cabinet approved a recommendation by Mines Minister Allan Lawrence.

Dennis Sharp of the petroleum resources section in the Ontario department of energy and resources said Indians on the island reserve favor the drilling but have asked Camac to complete the well by mid-September, before the hunting season starts.

The permit was issued for one year.

Duke Probe to Be Conducted By Mr. Justice Campbell Grant

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court was appointed Tuesday to conduct a public inquiry into the relationship of an Oshawa businessman with selected provincial police officers and two men alleged to have Mafia connections.

Premier John Robarts, in announcing Mr. Justice Grant's appointment, left the date of the inquiry up to the new commissioner.

Mr. Robarts's announcement was made in a prepared statement after he discussed the terms of reference for the inquiry at a morning meeting with his cabinet, including Attorney-General Arthur Wishart who had urged a public inquiry to remove suspicion of police wrongdoing.

The statement said Mr. Justice Grant would be empowered to probe into any improper relationships between OPP personnel and "any person or persons of known criminal activity."

Specifically, it said the inquiry would delve into relationships alleged by Dr. Morton Shulman to exist between OPP officers and George Gibson Dube, Donald Gasbarrini, John Papalia and Donald Le Barre.

Dr. Shulman, New Democratic Party member for Toronto High Park, had charged before an Ontario legislature committee hearing last month that the Mafia had sought to influence the OPP. He charged through Mr. Dube, an Oshawa millionaire who had been jailed in the United States for armed robbery about 40 years ago.

Gasbarrini, Papalia and Le Barre were identified by Dr. Shulman as Mafia figures with whom Mr. Dube associated.

Dr. Shulman Tuesday described the terms of reference as "no damn good," adding that it would only give the commissioner authority to investigate relationships which had already been "thoroughly explored" by the legislature committee.

"Nobody has ever suggested there was any relationship between the OPP and Gasbarrini, Papalia and Le Barre, although I suppose that's worth looking into," Dr. Shulman said.

"As far as I'm concerned, I think buying the bogsby would look into whether or not the OPP had acted properly insofar as any organized crime goes, and in addition the matter of their associations. Under the terms I see it, as initial examination, they won't be able to do that."

Dr. Shulman said the terms also seem to rule out the possibility he will be able to produce affidavits at the hearing from U.S. police officers concerning organized crime in Ontario. He announced last week that he had received the sworn affidavits, of which the OPP had been aware for more than a year, but on which they had taken no action.

Mr. Roberts's statement also said that the government would "not hesitate to recommend appropriate adjustments" if the commissioner found it necessary. The public "must" to have the terms of reference altered.

The statement said that, in addition, the commissioner shall have the power of "summoning any person and requiring him to give evidence on oath and to produce such documents and things as the commissioner deems requisite to the full examination of the matters into which he is appointed to examine."

Mr. Roberts announced Monday that the commissioner would be requested to proceed "with despatch" to get the inquiry started.

An OPP investigation into Dr. Shulman's charges, as revealed to the legislature committee by Mr. Wishart, found no evidence of a criminal relationship between Mr. Dube and high-ranking OPP officers.

Mr. Wishart, who was not available for comment Tuesday, said at the time there had been instances of social indiscretions but nothing to indicate criminal connections had influenced the force. Two top OPP officers were later suspended in connection with the affair and charged with insubordination under the Police Act.

Franchise Rebates Ruled Out

TORONTO (CP) — A group of Toronto doughnut shops won a court decision Tuesday that ends a five-year battle to get back secret rebates paid by its suppliers to the company that controls its franchises.

Mr. Justice John Sheet of the Ontario Supreme Court ordered Mr. Donut (Canada) Ltd. to return to Jirus Ltd., which owns three Mr. Donut franchises in Toronto, the secret profits from supplier rebates.

The suppliers would bill the franchise holders direct, then rebate from five to 10 per cent of the bill to the franchising company.

In an interview, Jirus vice-president Irving Robinoff said the decision "is going to upset all the franchisers in Canada." He said the rebate practice is common throughout the franchise industry.

STUDY MOSS EFFECTS

CAVENDISH, P.E.I. (CP) — Divers using scuba-water sleds and cameras are studying the sea bed near here to determine whether it has come harvesting is having an adverse effect on lobsters. The survey will attempt population counts of lobsters inside and outside moss beds. The lobster industry is worth $8,500,000 annually to the island province's fishermen while the moss industry has grown into a $1,350,000-a-year enterprise.

DDT Ban Brings No Relief To Most Insects Eating Crops

By SANDY McFARLANE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Mosquitoes and other household pests may be finding life easier, but recent bans against DDT have brought no improvement for most crop insects.

Canadian farmers continue battle them with substitute pesticides.

Cross-Canada Survey by the Canadian Press shows that even in Newfoundland and New Brunswick, still without bans against DDT and certain weed-killers, farmers concerned about pollution are voluntarily moving to substitutes.

Increases in onion maggots in Ontario and spruce budworms in New Brunswick are the only serious threats to crops or timber so far attributed to reductions in DDT use; the survey shows. But there have been increased problems with mosquitoes, black flies, bedbugs and human lice in some areas.

The bans affect pesticides and weed-killers such as 2,4,5-T which do not break down chemically soon after being applied and so build up in plant and animal tissues in dangerous levels.

The long-life chemicals are still allowed on some crops for which no effective substitutes have been found, such as tobacco and apples in Ontario and rapeseed in Saskatchewan.

Wildlife services across the country report it is too early to determine whether animals, expected to be the major beneficiaries of the bans, are any healthier.

In Ontario farmers almost never used 2,4,5-T and so are not affected by the ban, says K. E. Fallis, assistant director of the soils and crops branch of the provincial agriculture department.

"It was used mainly in Western Canada on one or two weeds in certain crops, but we didn't use it here on cereal crops because it was hard on the crop itself."

"Our farmers used it on some rough pasture land and can still use it there because the chemical is still available for non-crop land."

But, Mr. Fallis says Ontario's ban on DDT created a "serious onion-maggot problem because other measures used were too little and too late to do much good."

"The onion crop survived but certainly not on the level it would have with DDT. There are substitutes being tried now, but it is still too early to say how effective they'll be."

Mr. Fallis says that for other crops Ontario farmers began to move away from DDT even before the formal ban, largely convinced by advertising programs by the manufacturers of substitutes.

"The main drawback to these is cost, because less persistent chemicals have to be used more often, and since some are more toxic to the person using them they must be applied with greater care."

Ontario Federation of Agriculture's director of marketing research, David Crone, says no farmer groups in the province have asked to have the bans lifted.

"They may have grumbled and muttered in their beer about the higher costs, but they're concerned about pollution too and if there's a shortlike and too late to do much good."

"I think farmers in general are taking a fairly responsible attitude toward pollution."

Mr. Fallis says there have been complaints of mosquito increases in Ontario's resort areas, and Don MacDonald, associate provincial agricultural representative for the Ottawa region, predicts that "if the controls go any further we'll be right back to staying at home with the fireworks."

Dr. G. K. Martin, executive director of public health for the Ontario health department, says the ban has not created a public-health problem because DDT is still available as a prescription drug to kill head-lice, and human fleas respond to other pesticides.

"There are some insects which respond only to DDT, and so our system allowing for ministerial orders creating exceptions is the ban is much more workable than a total ban," Dr. Martin says.

Papers to Get Guidelines

TORONTO (CP) — Daily newspapers in Ontario will be sent guidelines concerning classified advertisements of employment in line with new legislation in prevent discrimination because of sex or marital status, says Dr. Lila-Rose Betcherman, director of the labor department's women's bureau.

In anticipation of the new legislation, the Globe and Mail last week replaced the headings of Help Wanted Male and Help Wanted Female with the headings Job of Interest to Men and Jobs of Interest to Women.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League — Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Now that the children are out of school we are looking forward to taking a nice relaxing trip to New York State and maybe do some camping and fishing. Could you suggest a suitable route?

ANSWER: Take the pleasant ferry ride to Wolfe Island. From the south side of Wolfe Island, the Cape Vincent Ferry takes you to the New York mainland. Take route 12E south to Watertown, N.Y. — here your wife may like to do some shopping.

From there take Route 3 east, which winds through the vast Adirondack Mountains to Tupper Lake where you can stop and swim, fish (permit required) and rent boats at Rhue Jay campsite on Big Tupper Lake. This is privately owned and reservations can be made. Other very good campsites are also available here.

Turn south at Tupper Lake and take Route 30 for 25 miles to Long Lake and Blue Mountain Lake. A few miles south of there is the Adirondack Museum, open June 15-Oct. 15. Standing over 1,200 ft. in the hills of mountains. Then continue on Route 30 to Speculator, where there are many good campsites, fishing, boating and swimming. Route 30 you will come to the Sacandaga Reservoir and Park. This is a lovely unspoiled area and not too crowded by tourists.

From here, turn east on Route 4 and Route 29 to Lake George, a beautiful jewel of a lake surrounded by mountains and one of New York's more popular resorts with many state recreation areas. Take a cruise on Lake George. The Lake George Steamboat Co. has cruises that run at 9 a.m. and 2:15 p.m. — round fare $4.

The Miss Lake George Speedboat Co. offers 15 - mile island and shoreline cruises daily 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. — fare $1.50. Gaslight Village is ½ mile south on US 9. It features continuous Gay Nineties entertainment, including silent movies and variety acts.

Storytown USA is on Route 9, four miles south of Lake George and offers more than live characters and animals. Admission including rides adults, $3.95; children 3-11, $2.95.

Take Route 9N from Lake George north to Ticonderoga. This scenic drive extends through lovely scenery along the shore of Lake George for 40 miles. Here is Fort Ticonderoga, a great stone fortress and military museum with an extensive display of firearms of every description used during the French and Indian Revolutionary Wars. This should appeal to the men in the family. Open daily 9 a.m. until dusk. There are two good campsites here where you can rent boats and fish.

From there, continue on Route 22 north to Westport, N.Y., route 9N west to Keene, and north to Upper Jay. Here we have the Land of Make Believe — a colorful child-scale village of fairy tale houses and an early western town. Admission Adults $2.75 and Children 5-16 years, $1.85.

Whiteface Mountain is about 10 miles north on Route 86, where they have chair lifts to carry tourists to the summit of Whiteface Mountain — a height of 4,867 ft. — and where you can get a tremendous panoramic view of mountains and lakes for a 100 miles.

Santa's Workshop is a few miles west of 431 at North Pole, where we have Santa and his helpers at work.

High Falls Gorge — a few miles west on route 86 is a deep ravine cut into the base of Whiteface Mountain with spectacular waterfalls. Follow Route 86 to Lake Placid and Saranac Lake, both famous all-year resorts which offer every kind of sport imaginable. Researching for Peace

Dr. Norman Alcock, 53, left a high-paying job as a nuclear physicist in 1961 to found the Canadian Peace Research Institute in Oakville, Ont., at a salary of $3,000 a year. The institute, one of about two dozen in the world and working on an annual budget of $60,000, employs five full-time peace researchers and three volunteer office workers in an attempt to "discover the causes of our major social illness — war."

Addiction Research Body Backs Le Dain

TORONTO (CP) — The Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario has endorsed with few reservations the Interim recommendations of the Le Dain Commission on the non-medical use of drugs.

In a report to the provincial government released Tuesday, the foundation says it is impressed by the Le Dain report's "tone of objective search for truth, its concern for human welfare and its philosophical scope and balance."

The foundation is the province's main institution for dealing with drug problems.

A key recommendation in the federal commission report calls for lowering the penalties for possession of marijuana except in the case of drug peddlers.

"Such changes in the law would probably eliminate the hardship which is currently visited upon a small but appreciable p e r c e n t a g e of casable users," the foundation says.

But it adds: " . . . these changes would probably increase substantially the level of acceptance of drug use in Canada, the total extent of such use and the frequency of heavy use. . . . The public must make its choice between the two."

The foundation says the Le Dain commissioners were right to stop short of recommending legalization of marijuana because knowledge of what its liberal use entails is still incomplete.

Dow Says U. S. Court Lacks Jurisdiction

WASHINGTON (CP) — A brief filed this week in the U.S. Supreme Court by Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd. says the United States has no jurisdiction over the company in the case of a Lake Erie mercury pollution complaint by the state of Ohio.

The brief filed Monday by lawyers for the Sarnia company also argues the Supreme Court should not assume original jurisdiction in an action on an alleged nuisance where the nuisance already has been abated.

The company, along with Wyandotte Chemicals Corp./ and the Dow Chemical Co., both of Michigan, were named in April by the state of Ohio in a motion for leave to file a complaint in the Supreme Court to restrain the c o m p a n i e s from dumping mercury into Lake Erie or its tributaries.

The Supreme Court will receive submissions from the three companies and the state before making a decision on whether to allow the complaint.

Dow Canada states in its brief that it has complied with a government of Ontario order prohibiting the discharge of mercury and mercury compounds from its plant into the St. Clair River.

"Any nuisance there may have been has been abated," the brief argues, "and remains subject to the continuing jurisdiction of the Crown in the right of the province of Ontario."

Dow Canada is a completely autonomous, totally independent, operating company which derives its legal existence from and is responsible to the government of Canada, it says.

Partial fishing bans have been imposed on the lake by both Canada and the U.S. since the discovery of high amounts of the toxic substance in the flesh of fish.

Ontario has since announced plans to dredge part of the St. Clair River to dispose of the mercury contamination, but research from other countries has brought concern that dredging might aggravate rather than solve the problem.

Corbys Apply Grease To Ellis Skid

Corby's Distillery used a three run - explosion in the top of the seventh to cancel the Ellis Juniors brief lead and upset the league leaders 8-4. The Juniors had taken the lead from Corbys in the sixth on a similar three run outburst sparked by Ted Walte's homer.

In the first game of Tuesday's double - header City Hotel gained a four - point bulge in third spot as they whipped Stinsons 4-1.

Corbys grabbed a 2-0 lead after three innings scoring on Larry Maxety's RBI single and double in the third and first innings. The score remained that way until the bottom of the sixth when Steve Ling got on base by an error and Paul Goodfellow singled. This set the stage for Ted Waites long homer to right field. Waite, one-half of the Ellis pitching duo, was forced to play short-stop due to a lack of players. Corbys came right back a half-inning later though scoring three runs on two Junior errors and a single @ Gary Goyer. Singles by Lorne Blatchford, Rod Ridley and Steve Ling produced another run for the Juniors but it was too few too late.

Pat Scollard picked up the win for Corbys giving up seven hits while fanning four and not walking a man. Larry Maxety led the Distilleries with a double and single. Gary Goyer, Neil Campbell, and Ken Brooks each had singles for the winners.

Scott Reid fell to his sixth defeat of the season against five victories. He gave up only five hits and fanned nine batters. Waite's homer and John Campbell's double were the only extra base hits for the Juniors. Steve Ling, Paul Goodfellow, Wayne McTaggart, Lorne Blatchford and Rod Ridley all had singles for the losers.

The loss kept the Juniors in gay striking distance of, by Rollins Construction the second place team in the standings.

Ellis 000 003 1 — 4 7 1

The hot City Hotelmen stretched their third place lead over Point Anne and Stinsons to four points by bouncing the blue - clad Constructionmen 4-1.

Again the long ball was in prominence last night for City as they connected for their sixth homer in two days. This time Pug Kellar and Ken Generaux, two of the smaller men on the team, had the big blasts. Kellar had his in the second and Generaux punched his in the third to give City a 3-0 lead. Stinsons cut the lead to one run in the sixth when Paul Stinson doubled in Lyle Thompson. Any comeback hopes were quickly dashed though as Ed Lemon tripled in the bottom of the sixth scoring Doug Murray who had opened the inning with a single. Lemon then scored himself on Rusty Garvin's single.

Bob Ethier fired the win for City giving up six hits while fanning five and walking only one. Keller with his homer and single and Generaux with a homer paced the Hotelmen at the plate. Doug Murray added a double and single. Ed Lemon a triple and Garvin and Larry Potter one single apiece.

Bob Sean was touched for eight hits in tabing the loss for Stinsons. He fanned one and walked four. Paul Stinson with two doubles, Dwight Bedford with two singles and Lyle Thompson and Wayne Woods with a single each were the Construction crew hitters.

Falcon bantam goalie Vahe Parmakzesian stretches for the ball as his defensive partner Rick Vant blocks out onrushing Falcon Junior Bill Leitch. Vahe was a last minute replacement for the bantam team and played outstanding ball even though beaten six times by the stronger and more experienced junior club.

Soccer Winners Make Certain

The winning teams left no doubt as to their right to victory Tuesday night in Belleville Minor Soccer as the Falcon Juniors whipped the Falcon Bantams 6-1; Station Square Food Market blanked the Circle T.V. mosquitoes 5-0 and; Modern Hair stoms bombed National Billiards 8-0.

Kevin Parry led the Falcon juniors to victory firing three goals. Bill Leitch added two and Bob Howes scored a single goal. Larry Wright tallied the lone Falcon bantam goal.

The Crawford boys, Bobby and Mark, were the big guns for the Station mosquitoes as they scored two goals apiece. Scott Shettell scored the odd tally.

James Weston accounted for five of his Modern atoms goals in their win over National Billiards. Mark Ryall had the hat - trick for the winners.

Plane's Cinch Pennant With 4-1 Win Over Latta

Pitching, which has been a Plane's Concrete strong point all season, carried the Canniffton team to the South Hastings pennant last night as Ted Adams hurled a three-hitter to defeat Latta 4-1.

Planes holds a five - point lead over second place Read who have two games remaining in their schedule.

A three-run effort in the seventh inning, broke a 1-1 tie between Plane's and Latta, as a sik, an infield error and Ron Urch's two - run homer accounted for the Cannifton runs. The losers had opened the scoring in the fourth inning on a pair of singles and a fielders choice.

Abrams yielded singles to Keith Dickey, Doug Chisholm and Terry Cameleman for Latta's only hits. He struck out nine batters and issued two bases on balls.

Lorne Cronkwright started for Latta, giving way to Terry McTaggert in the seventh inning. Between them, they struck out four batters and walked one man.

Ron Urch led the winners' nine-hit attack with a homer and double. Other base hits went to Bob Laffman, Warren Hay, Ted Abrams, Eric Emerson, John Tweedy, Larry Adams and Pat O'Connor.

Oshawa Athletes Added Entries In Twilight Meet

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

The Belleville Twilight International Track and Field Meet has attracted some "outside" interest, in the form of a contingent of Oshawa athletes, who will be competing in the eight - event meet Thursday night.

While the exact number of competitors from the Motor City is not yet known, it is certain that they will field a strong entry in the mile-relay

One member who has confirmed his entry is 1960 COSSA champion in the 220 and 440 yard dashes, Al Monks. The Oshawa Tuner could also move up to the half - mile to challenge Pat Larry, Dave Simonds, Dave Grant and others in the already strong field, or move down to the 100, which is already close to having a full complment of runners.

Trenton runners Duncan Rogerson, who finished seventh in the senior 1500 metres at OFSAA this year, and Brad Martin, who placed sixth over the same distance, should provide some competition to the two - mile race for Paul Cory and Pat Larry.

Cory's time of 9:38 for the 3,000 metres was good enough to place him fifth among the best secondary school runners in the province this year, and Larry proved he could handle the long distances, as a member of the champ. lionship Guelph University cross country team.

The long and triple jumps were weakened due to the fact that former COSSA record - holder Vic Wiriak will be unable to compete, but will field a number of strong contenders including Glen Milligan, who placed second at all - Ontario this year in the Junior long jump.

One event in which the competition won't be quite as intense, is the "Jiggers Mile" in which members of the Walking and Jogging Club, as well as any other interested jogg ers in the area, will compete over a mile distance, using a handicap system.

Trophies for all the track events and the top combined effort in the field events have been obtained, as well as ribbons for the first four finishers in each event.

The meet will begin at 7:30 p.m. on the Quinte Secondary School track.

Picton's standout long distance runned Paul Cory will be one of the favorite's to win the two-mile event at the Belleville Twilight Invitational Meet to be held at Quinte Secondary School Thursday. Athletes from all over the Bay of Quinte area as well as a number from Oshawa will be competing.

Novice Scorers Scarce

The midgets division saw everyone get into the act in the scoring department while the novices' scorers were regulated to two men in Belleville Minor Lacrosse action.

Golden Mile edged Dairy Queen 5-3 in the novice game as Laurie Wilson tallied all the Mile goals and James Weston had the hat - trick for the losers.

The midget game saw the 707 Jets whip Team No. 3, 9-2 and Dickens Voyagers defeat Larry's Imperials 6-4.

B. Locks was the only Jet to score more than one goal as he tallied twice. Rod McAlpine, Darrell Donnelly, Steve MacDonald, D. Harvey, J. Deiorman, Fran Searle and M. Turner each had single goals. Dan Bedard and Jim Wringe scored for Team No. 3.

Andy Ricketts had two goals for Dickens with singles going to Dan Nuttall, Steve Cowan, Kerry Reid and Austin Wilson. Danny Payne with two, and Ray Maddone and Duncan Presant with one each were the Imperial scorers.

Bower Impressed with Hockey Talent in Territories

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Johnny Bower, former Toronto Maple Leafs goaltender, says he's impressed with youngsters he's encountered as an instructor in the Northwest Territories' first hockey school.

"There's some good kids here," says the 45-year-old Bower. "I'm really impressed. They're asking questions, skating and shooting pretty hard."

Bower and Maple Leaf George Armstrong are the first of several instructors to 150 youngsters at the school, arranged by Hockey Canada and a group of local residents.

"What do you think of a hooked stick like Bobby Hull's," one youngster asked during a preliminary session.

"Well . . . you've got to learn how to handle an ordinary stick first," Bower said.

Hockey has become popular in the N.W.T., especially in the more-populated southern Mackenzie district and at Inuvik, near the Arctic coast.

The hockey school is divided into two one-week sessions and is combined with a coaches' clinic.

A. J. (Buck) Houle, general manager of Hockey Canada, said in an interview there is a crying need for these schools in the N.W.T.

"You can't afford to take Yellowknife to the south, so you bring the instructors and school to the territories."

Other instructors lined up are Bobby Baun of Detroit Red Wings, George Watson and Billy Harris of the Canadian Nationals and Gordon Juckes, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

PAY $20

Youngsters at the school, which consists of two hours of skating and two hours of lectures, are from six northern communities. Most are under 17 years. Tuition is $20 each.

Yellowknife's midget and senior entries in the recent Arctic Winter Games won gold medals over Yukon and Alaska teams. And at Dauphin, Man., N.W.T. midget teams scored well against competition from Ontario and Manitoba.

"These kids have a better chance of getting something out of this school than youngsters would be in Ontario where there are 500 at a time," Bower said.

"There'll be more opportunity to learn and more ice time."

Bower retired from professional hockey after playing a few games last season. He played for 25 years in professional ranks, about 100 of them in the National Hockey League as a goaltender.

Armstrong, a former Toronto captain who played last season with the club, had these opening instructions for the youngsters:

"I don't want you fellows calling me Mr. Armstrong or George. Just call me Chief." They do.

Some of the youngsters attending the school have televised NHL games made available to them through the CBC's Frontier Package, a daily hockey program selection that is broadcast in some larger N.W.T. centres a week late.

Sport Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Help keep Bobby Orr in Canada. Don't write to him for an autographed picture.

The Canoma finance committee was informed Tuesday that the young National Hockey League defenceman, of the Boston Bruins spends more than $15.00 a year sending autographed pictures to his fans.

Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL players' association, said that Orr cannot deduct his autographing costs from his income tax — one of several regulations under Canadian tax law which the Toronto lawyer said may send NHL players skating to the United States in search of a larger net income. Orr spends the off season in Parry Sound, Ont.

DUBLIN (CP-Reuters) — Canadian track and field athletes, members of the first athletics squad from Canada to compete in the Republic of Ireland for 50 years, won 11 of the 32 events at an international athletics meeting Tuesday night.

NEW YORK (AP) — The $40,000 which Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus split for their national four-ball championship victory last Sunday put them into the top 10 money winners on the PGA tournament players division.

Nicklaus moved into sixth place in the weekly standings with $92,135 in total winnings and Palmer, with $87,638, was No. 8.

Despite a 14th place finish in the team tourney at Ligonier, Pa., Lee Trevino held onto the top spot with $130,875.

MONTREAL (CP) — The National League set a weekend attendance record by drawing a total of 588,528 fans to scheduled baseball games during the past weekend. Friday night, 207,676 fans attended NL parks. Saturday there were 186,570 paying customers while on Sunday there were 194,284 spectators.

Roughriders Explode to 42-9 Win Over Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ron Lancaster exploded the "flame wing" myth and Silas McKinnie demonstrated his own flying style as they combined to lead Saskatchewan Roughriders to a 42-9 victory over British Columbia Lions in the Canadian Football League curtain-raiser Tuesday night.

Lancaster, whose "tennis elbow" was in a cast for four days last week, showed little sign of trouble as he connected on eight of 17 pass attempts in the three quarters he quarterbacked the defending western conference champions.

Included were scoring tosses of 32 and five yards to McKinnie, who added a third touchdown on a 11-yard burst over tackle in the first quarter.

The Lions, displaying woeful tackling that left coach Jackie Parker fuming in the dressing room, were never in the contest. Saskatchewan, coached by Parker's old teammate Eagle Keys, led 21-0 after the first quarter and 35-3 at the half.

Other Rider touchdowns were scored by swift Bobby Thompson, who started the slaughter with a 36-yard dash around left end in the sixth minute. Steve Molnar on a two-yard plunge in the first, and rookie quarterback Don Weiss, who ended it on a five-yard keeper in the dying minutes.

Jack Abendschan converted all six touchdowns.

For B.C., place-kicker Ted Gerela was the only bright light, kicking field goals of 22 and 42 yards and adding singles on a pair of 44-yard attempts that went wide. Ken Phillips added a single on a 31-yard punt.

"I've never seen our team tackle as badly as they did tonight," said Parker, obviously angry. "I don't know whether they were mesmerized by Saskatchewan, but they came out a dead football team in that first half."

He said the "Riders played well—and maybe they were running that well, but all I could see was missed tackles."

Parker said he was prepared for "a lot of snickering around

Restic Wary Of Ottawa Speed

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders may have lost a few steps since last season but don't try to convince Hamilton Tiger-Cats' coach Joe Restic that the 1969 Grey Cup champions haven't got speed.

Restic said prior to tonight's Eastern Football Conference game that despite the departure of flashy end Margnoe Adkins and halfback Vic Washington, Riders "are a lot faster than we expected."

Players like flanker Hugh Oldham, defensive halfback Al Marcelin and split end Billy Cooper "particularly impressed with their speed" in Riders' 27-20 exhibition victory over Tiger-Cats in Hamilton Thursday, he said.

"And now they'll have flanker Whit Tucker back — they didn't play him against us in the exhibition," Restic said. The Hamilton coach also expects Riders' rookie quarterback Gary Wood to give his team trouble in the EFC opener at Lansdowne Park.

passes for 88 yards and Thompson three for 49 as the Riders made 124 yards through the air. Weiss completed one of two passes for seven yards.

Lions made 194 yards passing with quarterback Paul Brothers completing nine of 19 for 120 yards and replacement Carroll Williams four of 13 for 122. Williams, who came in late-in, the third quarter, also had one intercepted, by Bruce Bennett.

Saskatchewan rolled up 24 first downs with a total net offence of 429 yards, compared with B.C.'s 13 first downs and net 213 yards.

Lions, who likely will be looking for help, announced Tuesday they have been given permission by Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern conference to negotiate with running star Vic Washington, suspended by Ottawa earlier this year. There has been no indication whether Washington, who wants to play in the U.S. National Football League with San Francisco, will consider playing here.

Lions also have picked up defensive end Bill Whisler, former Winnipeg all-star, from Toronto Argonauts, who acquired him this month then placed him on waivers.

B.C. will be looking for added running authority from fullback Jim Evenson, who missed Tuesday night's game after being suspended by the club in a "disputa" over his medical fitness. Evenson had an appendectomy July 3 and said his doctor disagreed with team doctors who said he was ready to play. A decision is expected soon.

Lions play next at Winnipeg Aug. 4, while Riders will meet Edmonton Eskimos at Regina this Friday.

Next CFL action is tonight, with Hamilton at Ottawa in the east and Winnipeg at Calgary in the west.

Pirates, Mets Continue Power Struggle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pittsburgh Pirates and the New York Mets continued their power struggle in the National League East Tuesday in Cincinnati and New York.

In Cincinnati, where there is seldom a shortage of power with the free-swinging Reds, Dave Giusti came in from the bullpen and short-circuited them in the ninth inning as the Pirates slipped off with a 4-3 victory.

In New York, Don Clendenon sent a surge through the Mets with two three-run homers as he led them in a 12-2 rout over San Francisco Giants.

The victories kept the Pirates one game ahead of the Mets.

In other games, Los Angeles Dodgers downed Philadelphia Phillies 6-2, Montreal Expos nipped San Diego Padres 5-4, St. Louis Cardinals thumped Atlanta Braves 6-4 and Houston Astros hammered the Chicago Cubs 10-4.

Giusti turned off the switch in Cincinnati in the ninth inning.

Bruce Dal Canton, 6-1, another bullpenner making only his second start of the season for the injury-riddled Pirates, had stopped the slugging Reds on six hits and held a 4-3 lead entering the ninth. But a single by pinch-hitter Jim Stewart ended him out.

Joe Gibbon relieved, gave up a bloop single to Bobby Tolan and a bunt single to Pete Rose, and left in favor of Giusti.

Giusti got Tony Perez, with his 37 homers and 94 runs batted in, to hit a sacrifice fly; walked Johnny Bench, with his 34 homers and 97 RBI intentionally; and then struck out Bernie Carbo and got Lee May on a fly.

Bill Mazeroski had given the Pirates a 3-0 lead in the second inning with a three-run homer, his fifth.

Jim McGlothlin, 11-5, took the loss. Cincinnati's lead in the West stands at 11½ games over Los Angeles.

Clendenon really turned it on in one of his few starts against a right-hander, Rich Robertson.

He hit a sacrifice fly in the first inning and then blasted a three-run homer in the third for a 5-0 lead. Then, against a lefty in the fourth, he hit his 12th of the season with two on for seven RBI in the game.

Little Bud Harrelson stroked a single, double and a triple, scoring three Met runs and driving in two.

Jim McAndrew, 6-8, stopped the Giants on five hits and fanned Willie Mays three straight times, giving Mays six strike outs in a row before he was taken out.

The Dodgers ruined Jim Bunning's try for his 100th National League victory, which along with his 118 triumphs in the American League would have made him the only other pitcher beside Cy Young to win 100 in each league.

But the Dodgers, handing the Phillies their third loss in 13 games since the All Star break, scored twice in the first on Wes Parker's double and an infield out and twice in the fifth on Maury Wills' single and Parker's sacrifice fly.

Ron Fairly's second homer of the game broke a 4-4 deadlock in the eighth inning for Montreal. He had hit a three run shot in the fourth inning off Gaylord Perry.

Vic Davalillo drove in three runs with two singles and Bob Gibson, 13-3, staggered in with a 12-hitter for St. Louis which beat Jim Nash, 10-5, for only its fourth victory in 21 games.

Jim Wynn's three-run homer got Houston started and Johnny Edwards and Doug Rader added two-run shots for the Astros' 11th victory in 14 games.

Angels' Catcher 'Passed By'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bill Melton of the Chicago White Sox finally got his bat on the ball Tuesday, the same day it started smoking the glove of California Angels catcher Tom Egan.

Melton ended a string of 10 strikeouts in as many trips to the plate with a ninth inning fly ball as Baltimore Orioles downed the Chicago squad 4-2.

In another American League game, Egan set a league record with five passed balls, committing a costly error as well as the Angels bowed to the New York Yankees 6-5.

Elsewhere, Minnesota Twins trimmed Cleveland Indians 5-3; Kansas City Royals edged Detroit Tigers 7-6; Oakland Athletics downed Boston Red Sox 6-4 and Milwaukee Brewers beat Washington Senators 5-1 on Al Downing's two-hitter.

Orioles southpaw Mike Cuellar, who leased a three-hitter for his 14th victory in 20 decisions, fanned Melton three times before the Chicago third baseman filed to left fielder Don Buford in the ninth, ending his strikeout skein three short of the AL mark set by Washington pitcher Jim Hannan two years ago.

Melton had drawn a walk and been hit by a pitch, in addition to seven strikeouts, during a doubleheader against Detroit last Friday night. He was making his first start for the Sox since then.

The record of 12 strikeouts in consecutive plate appearances was set in 1955 by former Los Angeles mound ace Sandy Koufax.

Egan's troubles began with a first-inning passed ball. He was charged with another in the fourth, a third in the fifth and two more in the sixth when he failed to handle Eddie Fisher knuckleballs. In that inning, Egan also dropped a throw to the plate, allowing Danny Cater to score the deciding run.

Yankee catcher Thurman Munson peppered California pitching for four hits, including a two-run homer.

Mike McCormick, acquired last week from San Francisco, picked up the victory in his first start for the Yanks with late-inning help from reliever Lindy McDaniel.

Downing, wildest in four previous decisions since the Brewers picked him up in a trade with Oakland, limited the Senators to a third inning bloop single by Tom Grieve and a fifth inning single by Tim Cullen.

Tommy Harper drilled his 22nd homer for the Brewers.

Harmon Killebrew's 31st homer—a towering tie-breaking wallop in the seventh carried the Twins past Cleveland and snapped Sam McDowell's winning streak at seven games. McDowell, 15-5, also was rocked for a solo homer by Brant Alyea.

Bob Oliver of the Royals poled a pair of two-run homers, the second with two out in the ninth to bring the Royals from behind against Detroit. Norm Cash had sent the Tigers ahead 6-5 in the eighth with a two-run homer.

Sam Bando's two-run blast in the fifth overcame a 4-3 Boston lead and powered the A's to their seventh straight triumph. All but one run in the game came on homers, Don Mincher and Reggie Jackson also connecting for Oakland while Rico Petrocelli and Reggie Smith unloaded for the Red Sox.

Proposals for Reform of Pentagon Opposed

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Proposals by a presidential commission for a sweeping reorganization of the defence department are likely to run into strong opposition from service chiefs, Pentagon sources said today.

Officially, the military is remaining silent on the commission's report, published Tuesday. One major recommendation called for joining the military operational functions of the joint chiefs of staff under a single, high-ranking officer.

But officials did hints to hide their coolness toward the report, which was accordingly critical of Pentagon efficiency and organization.

Gilbert Fitzhugh, chairman of the commission which spent a year studying the department's administrative structure, acknowledged that there is military opposition to its proposals.

Defence Secretary Melvin Laird said the report would be given urgent consideration.

The report pictured the Pentagon as an amorphous lump with many layers of civilian and military staff resulting in excessive paper work and co-ordination, delay, duplication and unnecessary expense.

It said poor organization caused millions of dollars in waste and it recommended 113 changes in all.

What is thought to have particularly upset the military was the report's assessment that the present arrangement for military operation activities for the president and defence secretary through the joint chiefs of staff and military departments is awkward and unresponsive.

"It provides a forum for inter-service conflicts as he injected into the decision-making process for military operations, and it inhibits the flow of information between the combatant commands for the president and secretary of defence, often even in crisis situations," the report said.

The report suggested the military operation functions should be handled by one high-ranking officer, leaving the military chiefs in their roles as strategic planners and with authority, as heads of each service, for recruiting, training and equipping their forces.

Algonquin Logging Operations Probed

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario department of lands and forests is investigating charges that commercial loggers are violating operational restrictions in Algonquin Provincial Park.

A spokesman for minister Rene Brunelle said Tuesday that letters to departmental field officers have been sent instructing an enquiry. He expected a report to be available next Monday.

The investigation was prompted by a letter from the Algonquin Wildlands League to Mr. Brunelle Tuesday, citing instances of logging despite regulations curbing all commercial operations during July and August.

Old Folks Good For Children

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Vivian Rakoff, a psychiatrist taking part in a panel discussion at the Conchiching Conference Tuesday, said nuclear families, isolated from relatives can be like a car.

"The nuclear family is portable, convenient and doesn't last too long," said Dr. Rakoff, a psychiatrist at the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry.

Nuclear family is a term used to describe a family of two parents and children, with no relatives included.

He said it would be interesting if by-laws stipulated that apartments have extra bedrooms for extended family purposes.

"The old people might drive poorly but they would be good for their grandchildren."

The annual conference at a camp near Orillia ran by the YMCA is studying Love and the Establishment.

U.S. Chemical Firm Faces Pollution Suit

BUFFALO (AP) — The United States government filed suit Tuesday against the Olin Corp. of Niagara Falls, N.Y., accusing the chemical firm of discharging mercury into the Niagara River.

Olin is one of eight companies with 10 plants in seven states named by the Interior department last week as mercury-polluters. The Justice department authorized prosecution of the companies.

U.S. Attorney H. Kenneth Schroeder filed a complaint in U.S. District Court, seeking a permanent injunction against further discharge of mercury by Olin.

He said he is awaiting the completion of supporting affidavits by government investigators before asking for a temporary restraining order. If a temporary order is approved by a judge, the next step would be for the court to consider a permanent injunction.

Schroeder also asked the court to order Olin "to take affirmative action "to eliminate any continuing consequences of mercury discharges."

The government charged that Olin "has been discharging effluent wastes into the waters of the Niagara River from its plant a few miles above Niagara Falls.

Schroeder said the water flows over t' falls, down the Niagara Gorge, and into Lake Ontario, where he said mercury pollution recently killed some fish and made others unfit to eat.

The suit said Olin's discharges "contain significant quantities of mercury compounds suspended or in solution."

Government tests are reported to have shown Olin had discharged up to 25 pounds of mercury a day into the river.

Olin said Friday it is doing all it can to reduce the discharge of mercury. It said that earlier this year the discharge had been reduced to three from six pounds daily.

Municipalities 'in' Unless Objection Filed

OWRC Outlines Quinte-Area Water, Sewage Plan to Officials

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Establishment of a Quinte-wide water and sewer area seemed likely here yesterday, as result of a public hearing called by the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Close to 100 elected representatives and staff personnel from 13 Quinte district municipalities attended the meeting at Centennial Secondary School following which OWRC chairman D. J. Collins said that a recommendation for establishment of the area would be made to the Commission.

Following an order by the Minister, copies will be mailed to all municipalities concerned which will have, 28 days to object to the plan.

Attending yesterday's meeting were municipal representatives from Belleville and Trenton, the villages of Frankford, Stirling, Brighton and Wellington and the townships of Sidney, Thurlow, Murray, Brighton, Ameliasburg and Hillier.

Reeve Gordon Lloyd, of Hillier, warden of the county, asked why only Ameliasburg and Hillier were included in the proposed water and sewer area.

After reasons were presented why Picton and Bloomfield also should be included, OWRC Chairman D. J. Collins said he agreed and indicated a second hearing would be held for the inclusion of all of Prince Edward County.

While possible water and sewer projects were mentioned during the hearing, Mr. Collins emphasized that yesterday's meeting was specifically to designate a water and sewer area "with the approval of you and the Minister".

Yesterday, the only real objection for inclusion in the proposed area came from the manager of the Brighton Utilities Commission who said that his village had no water problems.

However, when it was pointed out there would be no charges until services were received, the objection was withdrawn.

Sitting at yesterday's hearing were OWRC chairman D. J. Collins, John Root vice-chairman, and commission member A. Moodie.

Commission staff members were also on hand to answer questions. These included assistant general manager A. K. Watt; H. Landis, general counsel; A. B. Reddekop, supervisor of waterworks; engineer, L. G. South and Murray Wilson, commission project developer.

Commission chairman Collins said the day's hearing was important in that it was an attempt to solve servicing problems by joint action regardless of municipal boundaries.

If the water and sewer area was not approved, municipalities would have to proceed on an individual basis, he said.

Mr. Collins said he had been tremendously encouraged by the vision of people in the Quinte area whom he had met at previous meetings.

"Our concern today is the establishment of an area with discussion of actual projects being secondary," he said. "If the problems can be solved on an area basis, municipalities can develop individually."

Existing water supplies in the various municipalities were outlined by Mr. Reddekop who said that in most instances these were ample for present use, but if there was appreciable development other sources would be necessary.

Most favorably situated were the town of Trenton and the village of Brighton, Trenton with its four wells plus surface supply had adequate water for 18 years with certain improvements in its system.

However, it did not have water to supply rural areas in Sidney and Murray townships.

Brighton and Murray townships had no particular problems with water supply although in Murray it would be difficult to provide good high capacity wells for a communal water system.

In Sidney township, the only communal water supply was at the hamlet of Batawa where additional investment or an alternate supply was needed.

Mr. Reddekop said development in Sidney township was being curtailed by a lack of water supply, together with the difficulty of treating water from the Bay of Quinte.

Thurlow would also have difficulty in developing communal wells although plans were under way for provision of city water for developed areas immediately to the north of Belleville.

Belleville's water plant was operating at capacity and the city was in need of additional supply. The condition of water from the Bay of Quinte where Belleville now gets its supply did not lend itself to complete treatment at reasonable cost.

(Later in the meeting Belleville utilities commission chairman Lyle Langabeer and John Argo, engineering consultant for Gore and Storrie, said that the city had called tenders for an extension to its present water plant in order to use bay water. These tenders were now being held up awaiting the outcome of today's meeting and the possibility of water being piped from Lake Ontario.)

Neither Ameliasburg nor Hillier had any communal source of water supply, although Mr. Reddekop said if a 2.5 foot drop in the water level of Roblin Lake could be tolerated, this could be used to supply about 2,000 residents.

The village of Wellington has two wells but an additional supply is recommended.

Mr. Smith reviewed existing sewage treatment plants in the area, noting that systems in both Belleville and Trenton were being extended with the provision of secondary active sludge treatment plants.

Treatment plants at the Canadian Forces Base and also at Batawa were currently overloaded.

Trailer camps in Sidney were serviced by private systems. About 25 lots on Montrose Drive housing subdivision were serviced by private septic tanks. There were minor problems at Bayside.

Frankford had a primary treatment plant and Stirling a stabilization pond where enlargement was now being considered.

A sewage system was currently in the planning stage for the village of Wellington.

Large bayfront lots in Ameliasburg township would make development of a communal sewage system "quite expensive" it was stated.

Project development officer Murray Wilson said, several meetings in the Quinte district had been held at which the need for water and sewer service was expressed. Stirling, Sidney, Thurlow and Belleville councils had passed resolutions in favor of a water and sewer area, he said.

A single service either for water or sewer in the proposed area was not practical, he said. The proper solution would be provision of units or subunits within the area.

Presentations were made by many of the municipal representatives, including Belleville Mayor J. R. Reddick Scott and Trenton Mayor Duncan McDonald.

Mayor Scott said his council had passed a resolution for sewer and water services "in our area."

"The economics of urban living should also be available to rural residents," he said.

"It is the wish of our council that the OWRC proceed so that the Quinte area may have better living conditions with more jobs and better pay."

When several municipal representatives indicated that their municipalities had adequate water supply, Quinte riding member Dr. R. T. Potter stressed that sewer and water service must be approached on an area basis.

He noted that some municipalities are in greater need than others but suggested it was the responsibility of the OWRC to provide the services on an area basis "at reasonable cost."

To questions from the floor, Mr. Collins said the Ontario government, through legislation passed last year, would provide a 15 per cent subsidy to municipalities for oversizing water and sewer services to provide services for adjoining municipalities.

In many instances the 15 per cent subsidy would allow doubling of capacities, he said.

Public conjectures on mercury contamination of Lake Ontario is stirring a wavelet of resentment along Quinte-district shorelines.

Commercial fishing is a traditional industry that still plays a sizable economic contribution to many families, along the district's Lake Ontario coast.

It is an industry that involves several fish company operations and generations of rodeavors of maybe 200 fishermen from Brighton to Amherst Island. For some, it is believed the only source of income.

What spokesmen for the industry want is for government sources — federal and provincial — to be specific about a situation they fear could breed dire consequences if it's not closely outlined.

As one source puts it: "They better say it and say it fast."

Already, the bogey of pollution is putting the pinch on market outlets.

One fish plant manager says he's heard retail fish sales in some Toronto outlets are down as much as 50 per cent.

The mercury-contamination controversy switched to Lake Ontario this week when U.S. Congressman Richard L. Ottinger of New York State released a private laboratory report indicating mercury in fish may exceed the maximum safe level by as much as 175 per cent.

Fish samples gathered from the eastern tip of Lake Ontario by the lands and forests department are now being tested by the Ontario Water Resources Commission. The results are still awaited.

"There is no information available from the government. We don't know what's going on," W. S. Rankin, president of the Eastern Lake Ontario Fishermen's Association complained yesterday.

Mr. Rankin, a lifelong fisherman who makes his commercial runs off Salmon Point ponders the veracity of the US report.

Either way, it can have bad consequences for the fish trade, he indicates.

"If it isn't authentic, it's terrible. If it is authentic, it's terrible," he says.

Government tests run on whole fish and perch produced clean results he says.

"This thing didn't crop up last night. I don't know what's or it's someone looking for a bit of publicity, or what."

William Smith, chairman of the Quinte's Isle Tourist Association chamber-of-commerce-like, noted that Lake Ontario was a large area.

He believed Congressman Ottinger's report involved a source of pollution in the Syracuse area.

However, he said, if there was any basis to the report, Canadian government authorities should communicate with local industries that may be involved.

Mr. Smith, who operates a tourist resort near Wesport, said he frankly "cannot accept" any statements relating to possible mercury contamination in the lake.

He says he is "disappointed with the slowness" of government announcements on mercury tests.

Much of the Bay of Quinte tourist appeal also has been based on fishing, he noted.

Tourists at his camp have discussed the situation and "seem to be concerned of course," said Mr. Smith. "But everyone to date has been catching fish and eating them."

Tourist and fishing organizations now are awaiting government information on the situation. If these reports differ from the U.S. warnings, "they better say so and say it fast," he says.

At Brighton Quick Fish Company some ships about eight tons of fish a week out of the district. Manager Glenn Quick says about 75 per cent of the volume is perch bound for Detroit, Mich., where local smoking and distributing is carried on by the Lake Erie mercury furor.

There has been no drop off in shipments, but "we could blow up any day," Mr. Quick says.

Already there are indications of adverse public reaction.

The plant has a small retail business which recently has dropped off considerably.

From Toronto, he heard one report of a hospital that cancelled a large order for lake trout because women patients refused fish since the controversy over mercury.

In the Quinte area, fish taken locally have shown clean tests, Mr. Quick also says. The U.S. report centres the problem at the east end of the lake and the Upper St. Lawrence, an area says Mr. Quick, that also boasts pulp mills and chemical plants.

"In my opinion, too many politicians get hold of this (contaminating issue) and blow it up, the says."

J. W. Buchanan, manager of the D. Allan Jarvis Fish Company at Picton also agrees the situation has been "blown up and exaggerated."

He says he has been in contact with both provincial and federal government sources and "can't find out anything from them."

Mr. Buchanan also noted provincial government programs to plant fresh water supplies from Lake Ontario to the Belleville region.

"If there's mercury in it you wouldn't think they'd want to bring it over there (as drinking water)."

"All you hear about is fish. If it's an unsafe how come we can swim in it and drink it?"

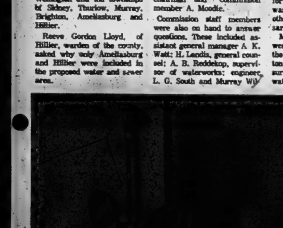
Bayside, CFB Trenton Tie Into Local Service?

The new Hastings county $2.5-million secondary school complex to be built at Bayside could be served by piping sewage to plants at Belleville or Trenton, rather than by costly on-site disposal facilities.

This possibility was mentioned briefly at yesterday's public hearing by the OWRC on the establishment of a district water and sewer area.

The reference was made by OWRC chairman D. J. Collins following a presentation by Sidney Reeve Jack Bush.

Mr. Collins asked if the township would be in favor of looking into the possibility of a services book - up with Belleville or Trenton.



The Sidney Reeve said he favored investigation of such a proposal.

He said that the $180,000 or so that would be spent on temporary services would go a long way toward the installation of necessary pipe.

The Canadian Forces Base at Trenton would also be interested in the possibility of hooking its services up with Trenton, Reeve Bush said.

Reeve Bush said his township favored the water and sewer area proposal.

He realized that the township could not be serviced all at one time but said industry must be serviced and serviced well.

Commission Members Explain Plan

Filtration Plant Addition Awaits Water Verdict

The city of Belleville is behind the eight ball with respect to its domestic water supply.

On one hand the city public utilities commission had drafted tenders for the construction of a filtration plant addition and a new intake from the Bay of Quinte.

And on the other hand there is a strong possibility that, with the establishment of a sewer and water area, water from Lake Ontario could be piped in to supply Quinte district municipalities.

The result is that if the city went ahead with current plans to spend an estimated $1.2 million on plant extension, the money could be wasted if lake water was brought in.

"It is a critical time for Belleville," stressed PUC chairman Lyle Langabeer, in his presentation yesterday to the OWRC hearing at Belleville. "A lot depends on the decision made today."

Mr. Langabeer told the hearing that tenders for the PUC's proposed plant extension were being held until September 14 "until we know where our water supply is coming from."

If treated water from Lake Ontario was made available, most of the equipment at the Belleville plant would be redundant, he said.

John Argo, formerly with consulting engineers Gore and Storrie, who for the past 46 years have done considerable engineering work for water and sewage projects in the city, said if the OWRC provided treated water, the Belleville Utilities Commission could change its plans.

He said that with an expenditure of approximately $181,000, the utility could temporarily boost the plant's capacity from the present eight to nine million gallons per day to about twelve million gallons.

Required would be filter changes, additional micro strainer units, plus the provision of a new underground water reservoir with a capacity of about two-and-a-half million gallons. Also, mains would be required to serve the reservoir.

The cost of the reservoir would be in addition to the $181,000 but OWRC chairman D. J. Collins said the Ontario government would provide a 15 per cent subsidy on the reservoir cost provided it was necessary to serve. This low.

Today, Utilities manager E. L. Burnham said such temporary measures would boost the capacity of the present filtration plant sufficiently to meet city demands and also could provide water service to Thurlow for all "foreseeable demands."

The peak demand for water at the Belleville plant was given as 7.9 million gallons in one day. Short period peak demands during lawn watering could boost this to over 10 million gallons per day.

Plant extensions for which tenders have been called would boost the plant capacity to 16 million gallons per day.

Communists Take Hill Resort For Vital Victory in Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The battle for the Kiri Rom plateau ended today in a major Communist victory as the last government troops fled from the hill resort.

The Cambodian command released no casualty figures for the 14-day battle, but several hundred government troops were believed killed or wounded. Five government battalions were ambushed, overrun or driven down the slopes in confusion.

One Cambodian field officer said the defeat might force his senior officers to re-evaluate their defence strategy. Western military experts said the government should have abandoned the area 80 miles southwest of Phnom Penh when it was first overrun July 11. They said it was of no strategic importance, and the battle was an obvious trap to cause heavy government casualties.

It was the second major Communist victory in Indochina in a week. U.S. forces abandoned Fire Base Ripcord in the northwestern sector of South Vietnam last Thursday after North Vietnamese fire killed 61 Americans and wounded 345 in three weeks of attacks.

The Phnom Penh government also has decided to restrict the operations of South Vietnamese troops in Cambodia because of their large-scale looting.

The commander of the Long Vek supply depot 26 miles north of Phnom Penh, said: "We don't want the South Vietnamese to return. Their discipline is no good."

The commander, Lt. Col. Ngin Sgroeng, said three South Vietnamese battalions were sent to the depot June 28, but they did not go into the forest after the Viet Cong.

"They broke into the homes of military dependents, broke down the doors, and took gold and belongings."

It was the same story earlier in June during fighting around Kompong Speu, a provincial capital 30 miles west of Phnom Penh. South Vietnamese troops shelled the town for three days, then entered it and immediately began cleaning out the stores.

Liquor supplies were stuffed into sacks or loaded by the case into armored personnel carriers, and Vietnam coins and gold and other valuables

Railway Dumping Of Sewage Is Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration will propose steps aimed at eventually ending the railway practice of dumping raw human waste along the tracks, Commissioner Charles C. Edwards has informed Congress.

But Edwards' testimony Tuesday before a House of Representatives subcommittee "amounts to a total surrender to the railroad industry," consumer crusader Ralph Nader told the congressional group.

R. R. Marion, representing the Association of American Railroads, said on the basis of a five-year sanitation study 20 years ago "and on the sharply reduced volume of waste since that time, we fail to see that a problem exists."

Nader told the subcommittee the railways are dumping hundreds of millions of pounds of raw human waste, in a practice he said "allows a unique insight into the intransigence of these corporations and the weak, self-decreasing posture of the Food and Drug Administration toward them."

The railroads have $27,900,000,000 invested in their industry, Nader said, in estimating it would cost $15,000,000 a year to have the sanitary equipment needed to prevent dumping.

New York Struggles with Power Shortage in Sweltering Heat

NEW YORK (AP) — From sweltering subways to dimmed skyscraper corridors, New Yorkers felt the pinch of the city's power shortage Tuesday as they struggled through the hottest day of the year.

Subway service was temporarily cut 30 per cent, telephone were run on emergency power. Major buildings reduced air conditioning, halted some escalators and elevators, and turned off lights.

The cuts in electrical use combined with voltage reduction and the purchase of 1,250,000 kilowatts from outside the city enabled power-short Consolidated Edison Co. to ease through the day as the temperature hit 94 degrees.

Ontario Hydro began to channel emergency supplies of electric power to New York Tuesday.

Consolidated Edison will be getting 75,000 kilowatts daily from Ontario until New York's power crisis is over, Hydro spokesman Hal O'Neil said Tuesday night in Toronto.

Ontario could have supplied more, he said, but New York facilities were unable to cope with a greater amount.

Ontario formally supplies New York state with up to 300,000 kilowatts daily.

Even with the present extra loads, O'Neil said, Ontario Hydro is producing at only 78 per cent of capacity.

With more hot and humid weather forecast through Sunday, the power crisis was expected to continue.

A stable high pressure air mass extending from the Gulf of Mexico to New England has not only caused the heat wave, but also shrouded cities from New York to Atlanta in an annoying haze.

The weather bureau said atmospheric conditions in a seven-state area bounded by Philadelphia, Atlanta and Chattanooga could cause potentially serious air pollution.

Pollution alerts were issued in Washington and Baltimore.

New York's power crisis results from the loss of two major generating units responsible for 17 per cent of Con Edison's capacity. Both are out for repairs the rest of the summer.

Con Edison reduced voltage to five per cent at 1:15 p.m. Tuesday.

The utility asked 2,500 of its largest customers to reduce power use wherever possible.

The Transit Authority cut subway service 30 per cent and reduced top speed on the remaining trains from a normal 45 miles an hour to about 18 miles an hour.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller ordered "the maximum possible" reduction in state consumption—about eight per cent. Mayor John V. Lindsay turned out half the lights at city hall.

Air Pollution Plagues Japan's Big Cities

TOKYO (AP) — Students lose their appetite, lessons have to be suspended and although the weather seems fine, teachers hesitate to ask their charges to breathe deeply.

Trees suddenly die, plants wither, and fish disappear from lakes.

In the big cities, dirty yellowish-grey clouds hover in the distance; by mid-afternoon they turn day almost to night. Honking trucks blare warnings to the citizens to stay indoors.

It is not war but somehow, to many Japanese, it is reminiscent of the air raid days of The Second World War.

The problem is pollution, which has become so serious in Japan that some influential people are saying the country's economic boom should be slowed temporarily.

Prime Minister Eisaku Sato took note of these outcries today at a meeting of speakers of the nation's prefectural assemblies in Kyoto. But he added: "If we are a little more intelligent, we will be able to remove public hazards and maintain the pace of economic growth at the same time."

The transport ministry announced that it will set up an air pollution observation centre to collect data.

MAJOR SURVEY

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Acadia University's sociology 200 class is conducting a survey of 500 housewives here to find out how deprivation relates to several dimensions of the daily life of urban dwellers, and how institutionalized aspects of social structure are related to social class. Those interviewed will be asked to give their opinion on all aspects of life, from crime to religion.

Daytime Serial Writer 40 Years at Her Craft

NEW YORK (AP) — Irna Phillips may best be described as the woman who has done for American television's daytime serials what Thomas Edison did for electricity; She made them work and she made them profitable.

To a large segment of the working world of television, Miss Phillips is a remote and awesome character who is reputed to turn on an icy anger when her serials are referred to as soap opers.

The truth is that Miss Phillips is remote only because she lives and works in her native Chicago and her anger is simply spirited reaction to what she feels is unfair criticism.

"I don't mind the words a bit," she said briskly. "What I do object to is the sneering or belittling attitude."

In the 40 years since, Miss Phillips started writing the radio serial Painted Dreams until her recent retirement as creator and head writer of the popular daytime program As the World Turns she has been writing steadily, occasionally as many as four serials at the same time.

She estimates that if her output were bound in hard covers, it would constitute the equivalent of 2,500 novels.

Miss Phillips is undisputed queen of daytime stars and stress, which is credited with achieving weekday audiences totalling 41,000,000, mostly women.

She has had a hand in the launching of so many projects that some are forgotten. As the World Turns now is 14 years old and has an audience larger than those achieved by many expensive evening programs.

She put Gulding Light together for radio in 1937 and later shifted it to television—its first daytime transplant—and stayed with it as head writer and plot-smith until 1968. Guiding Light is still in the daytime top 10, as is her six-year-old Another World, now in other hands.

A few months ago, Miss Phillips shocked her long-time employer, the soap company which owns and produces As the World Turns, by severing her connections with the company and the serial.

"I wanted to write," she explained. "I want to write my memoirs—I want to call it The Ivory Tower," but the publisher isn't "too" happy with the plan. And I'd like to write a motion picture."

She also is interested in getting a second generation of serial writers out to a flying start. Her adopted daughter, Katherine Phillips, is the creator of a recently launched ABC serial, Words Apart, and Miss Phillips is sitting in as story editor.

Now in her 60s, Miss Phillips is a small, lively woman, usually dressed beautifully, coiffed and manicured. She still lives in Chicago, in the spacious apartment which has been her home for 39 years.

About four times a year, Miss Phillips visits New York; and, while not exactly ducking the networks, indulges in an orgy of theatre going.

She is passionately family-oriented and speaks ironically and proudly of Katherine and her adopted son and her grandchildren.

"People keep asking me if I would have given up my career if I had found the right man and married," she remarked.

"I think that is a silly question: I suppose so—wouldn't any woman?"

ANAF News

Next Sunday will be the big day for the members' youngsters as all roads will be heading for Cove Beach and the big annual childrens' picnic organized by the Duke of Edinburgh Unit.

Buses will leave the Market Square promptly at 10 a.m.) so be sure to allow plenty of time before then for getting aboard. Another must is the programs. Be sure and take them along for the big draw at 1.30 p.m. for the really good prize.

The sports and entertainment chairmen, have gone all out with the assistance of willing workers to ensure a good time for all. The Pipe Band will be out in force to provide entertainment and with various races and contests for all between one and ninety years of age. If the weather will kindly co-operate it should prove to be a very enjoyable and successful day.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the Unit and Ladies Auxiliary will be hosts to the twenty-two Boy Scouts agers while they visit Belleville. A good program is being compiled to make sure that they thoroughly enjoy their stay to the friendly city. Final details will be in the news next week so all members will be in the picture to help where they can.

The list of comrades in hospital has dwindled to one. F. E. O'Shaughnessy from up around Bancroft, has been admitted to the Kingston General Hospital with Cdes. B. Feather, A. Jordan, H. Wright and W. Sheppard coming along and resting at their homes.

Although at first the skies were a bit overcast, the weather cleared up at the contingent of unit golfers precooled mercifully on their way to Stoco Golf Course. It was a bit warm and humid but all enjoyed the day's outing but admitted that the nineteenth hole was a very welcome sight when they eventually reached it. There were several nice prizes and they were won by the following comrades: Winner and new champion, Glen Deshke, runner-up, Jack Asselline. Other prize winners, not necessarily in proper sequence were: Dusty Garvin, Bob Deshke, Bob Taylor, Ron Culloden, Dinny Young, Glen Coughlin, Gerry Christopher, Bob Power, Les McCormick, Frank Donovan, John Cusmark, Doug Bone, John Markle, Greg Ackerman, Bob Hatfield, Bob Benn, John Nokes, Dick Thompson, Joe Yome, Peter Beuner and Frank Freeman.

Altogether there were approximately fifty members and, winners or losers, they all had a great day and are looking forward to the next tournament which will be announced at a later date.

Government to Absorb $60 Million Grain Loss

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will absorb a $60,000,000 loss on sales of 1968-69 Prairie grain but pay farmers the same initial prices for their wheat, oats and barley in the crop year beginning Aug. 1, it was announced today.

Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, said that about 480,000,000 bushels of grain, including 350,000,000 bushels of wheat, will have been exported in the crop year now drawing to a close. This is an increase of more than 100,000,000 bushels of grain over the previous crop year and represents about more room in its delivery system from the farmer to export 45,000,000 more bushels of elevators in order to move more wheat, including flour.

In the new crop year starting Aug. 1, sales commitments have already been made to assure a strong export flow until the close of Great Lakes navigation, he said.

W. C. McNamara, chief commissioner of the wheat board, told the prairie news conference the board now has sufficient wheat, oats and barley in store to meet immediate demand and will concentrate for the first few weeks in taking rapeseed, flaxseed, rye and white agreig wheat off the farmers.

Mr. Lang said that in the 1968-69 crop year—the crop harvested in the fall of 1968 and sold through the first half of 1969—the wheat board had a $10,000,000 loss on barley and a $51,200,000 loss on oats.

Final accounting for the wheat crop has not been completed but the government is likely to have to cover a loss of about $50,000,000.

"In each case, these costs will be paid by the federal government and reflect a payment to the producer of more than $600,000,000 in excess of the market value of his crop."

For the new crop year 1970-71, the initial prices to be paid on delivery of grain by the farmer to his local elevator will be $1.50 a bushel for top grade wheat, 60 cents for oats and 81 cents for barley. Payment for lower grades will also be the same as in 1969-70.

Mr. Lang said a feature of the past year was the market for barley. Canada has not been a big exporter of feed grains, but found a big market, mainly in Europe, for barley as a livestock feed. This big market is expected to continue, at least well into the coming crop year.

He said wheat delivery quotas will be eight bushels an acre, as announced at the time plans were bared for the big program of incentives to cut Prairie wheat production.

The Canadian wheat board will determine how the eight-bushel quota is opened up, Mr. Lang said, but wheat deliveries in excess of 300,000,000 bushels were secured.

Mr. McNamara noted that starting Saturday, the delivery quotas are geared to the government's wheat acreage reduction program.

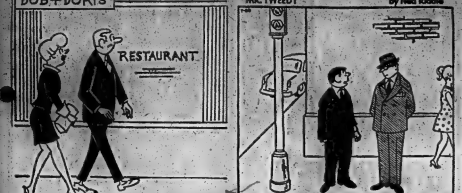
Chavez, Teamsters In Fight

DELANO, Calif. (AP) — Cesar Chavez says an "all-out war" is brewing between his farm workers union and the Teamsters Union as a result of a Teamsters' agreement with major lettuce and strawberry growers in the Salinas and Santa Maria valleys.

Chavez called a Salinas-area Teamsters' bargaining agreement announced Monday, covering an estimated 7,500 workers, a "Pearl Harbor type of sneak attack."

He said the Teamsters had signed a written pledge to honor his United Farm Workers Organizing Committee's jurisdiction in the vegetable and strawberry fields.



The development arose Tuesday as Chavez appeared for victory in his five-year struggle to unionize the California table grape industry.

Trenton Constable Dies Following Disturbance

ARMED WITH RIFLES, Gaspe cod fishermen patrol their docks and shoreline, threatening out-of-province trawlers which come too close to this village 300 miles east of Quebec City. The fishermen, fearing the outsiders are depleting their catch, have fired on several visiting boats. (CP Photo)

Gaspe Snipers Facing Action

MADELEINE CENTRE, Que. (CP) — Regis Thibodeau, Gaspe fisheries protection director, said Wednesday action will probably be taken against those responsible for firing shots on a Nova Scotian fishing vessel Sunday.

Mr. Thibodeau did not say what form the action could take but added that fisheries service officials and provincial police are investigating the incident.

The Scotia Bay of Yarmouth, N.S., pulled into Gaspe, about 300 miles west of here, Tuesday with 300 kegs of herring in her hold and seven bullet marks in her superstructure.

Fishermen in this community had been patrolling the local wharf with rifles and shotguns. They were angry because, they said, their cod catches have been cut in half since herring fishermen from the Maritimes arrived in the area.

Mr. Thibodeau said the herring fishermen are not responsible for poor cod catches in the area because their nets do not go deep enough to deplete the local cod supply.

He said the herring trawlers have every right to fish in the area.

"They don't have to respect any territorial limit. They hold federal permits which allow them to catch herring all along the Canadian coasts."

The provincial department of industry and commerce said trawling operations in the lower St. Lawrence will be stopped if it is proved they are interfering with local cod fishermen.

Mr. Thibodeau said the local fishermen are not really professional and should know trawlers cannot catch cod.

He said reports the RCMP had been called into the investigation. No criminal complaints had been laid by the owners of the Scotia Bay, Mr. Thibodeau said.

Another ship which was attacked Monday night had still not reported into Gaspe.

The vessels are part of a fleet of eight which have been fishing off the Gaspe coast for about a week.

So far they have landed 12,000 tons of herring which will be processed for fertilizer and animal feed.

Guerrillas Back Move By Nasser

From Reuters-AP

Two small Palestinian Arab guerilla organizations today backed the acceptance by Egyptian President Nasser of the latest American plan for a Middle East settlement.

They said his acceptance was a "skilful political, tactical move."

The Action Organization for the Liberation of Palestine and the Arab Palestine Organization, in a statement issued in Amman, Jordan, today, rejected what they called the "exploitation of the Palestine problem for attacking Egypt and the Soviet Union."

This is the first break in the ranks of the powerful Palestinian resistance movement, which bitterly opposed the American initiative.

The American plan was announced at a big demonstration in Amman Monday organized by the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and the Marxist-Leninist Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

Sources in Tel Aviv said the Palestinian guerrillas are planning heavy strikes against Israel from Jordan and Lebanon in an effort to prompt Israeli counter-attacks and undermine prospects for peace.

Smog's Grip Firm

New York Ban On Cars Likely

NEW YORK (CP) — A blanket of hot, eye-searing smog remained anchored over New York City and most of the U.S.-eastern seaboard today, and New Yorkers faced the prospect of all non-essential vehicle traffic being banned from some sections of the city.

Temperatures in the 90s and stifling humidity has plagued the city for a week and with it layers of dirty air. The situation is not expected to change much before early next week.

New Yorkers already are under a pollution alert. And Wednesday was the 57th day this year when an "unhealthy" pollution warning was issued.

Mayor John Lindsay ordered a first-stage pollution alert as the dome on warm air, known as a thermal inversion, trapped pollutants in the air.

Incinerators at city housing projects and hospitals were closed down and use of city garbage incinerators restricted. The air was so dirty Wednesday that at noon office workers in Manhattan could not see across the Hudson River 400 yards away.

Lindsay said that he was considering banning all unnecessary vehicles from certain areas of the city.

The mayor said private vehicles could be banned sometime this week if the crisis continued. He urged motorists to form car-sharing pools and to use public transportation facilities wherever possible.

The New York health department reported no immediate health hazard. Hospitals said there had been no apparent increase in respiratory and related ailments.

A health department spokesman labelled the pollution unhealthy under "chronic" and not short-term conditions. It required caution mainly by the elderly and the people with respiratory diseases.

But the pollution can cause eye irritation and discomfort.

Two measurements of air pollution are three for sulphur dioxide and smokestands, or the dirt particles visible in the air.

The sulphur dioxide level was reported at 0.19 parts for every 1,000,000 parts of air Wednesday morning, dropping to 0.13 parts in the afternoon. A concentration of more than 0.1 is considered unhealthy.

Smokestands was 3.3 units in the morning and 2.7 units in the afternoon. More than two units of smokestands are considered unhealthy.

New York, North America's largest city, also faces an electricity shortage.

Showers came to the aid of the beleaguered power supply Wednesday. Temperatures went into the 80s for the third consecutive day and for the third day in a row the Consolidated Edison Co. reduced voltage.

At 3 p.m. Con Edison put out 7,198,000 kilowatts—frighteningly close to its maximum capacity of 7,471,000. But thanks to the showers which dropped temperatures more than 10 degrees in an hour—the load decreased by 114,000 kilowatts and eliminated the possibility of further voltage reductions for the day.

Full voltage was restored at 5 p.m.

Earthquake Rocks Iran

TEHRAN (Reuters) — At least 40 persons were killed and 70 injured when a strong earthquake rocked northeastern Iran early today, it was officially announced.

Rescue teams organized by the army and the Red Lion and Sun Society of the Red Cross were flown to the mountainous region by helicopter with medical supplies and equipment.

The quake hit a 20,000-square-mile area of remote Khorassan province, where more than 12,000 persons died two years ago in a violent quake.

Official reports said tremors damaged roads and bridges leading to stricken villages in the province.

The Red Lion and Sun director, Hassan Khatibi, and the governor-general of Khorassen province flew to the area.

The Shah of Iran, vacationing at a Caspian Sea resort, has ordered all possible relief and rescue measures, palace sources said.

Police Arrest Three

By Malcolm Johnson
(Staff Reporter)

TRENTON — Police have arrested two men and a woman — and issued a warrant for a third man — in connection with the Wednesday afternoon death of Trenton police constable Mark Houlden.

The 37-year-old father of two children answered a disturbance call to a house here prior to his death.

Full details on circumstances surrounding the officer's death were not revealed, Police Chief R. J. Rutherford said the officer had suffered a seizure. An autopsy was scheduled for today to determine cause of death.

In custody, said Chief Rutherford, are Gordon Welsh, 18, and Helen Kerr, no fixed address, charged with assaulting a police officer and Carl Anderson, 28, of Trenton, charged with causing a disturbance. Police have issued a warrant for the arrest of George Welsh, brother of Gordon Welsh, on a charge of assaulting a police officer.

Const. Houlden died in Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Chief Rutherford said that Const. Houlden, a 13-year veteran of this town's police force, answered a disturbance complaint at 15 College Street at 4 p.m. yesterday.

He said that Const. Houlden, 37, was in company with another officer and "he suffered a seizure."

When asked if the constable was involved in a fight, the chief replied: "On a disturbance call there's always some kind of struggle."

However, he stressed, "no one has been charged with causing the death of the constable's."

Constable Houlden was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital and admitted at 4.15 p.m.

Vicar Seeks to Guard Corpses From English Witches' 'Mafia'

LONDON (CP) — Alarmed by the spread of black magic practices in his parish, a South London vicar wants to set up a society for the protection of the dead against ghouls who break into graveyards and smash open coffins.

Rev. Percy Gray, 38-year-old vicar of St. Celsin's Anglican Church in Southwark, had to rebury the body of a child which had been taken from its coffin, apparently for some kind of witchcraft ritual.

"I was so shocked that at first I dared not even touch it," he said. "After prayers had been said, the body was reinterred and it was then that I felt it necessary to find some protection for the dead."

The child's coffin was in three pieces on the floor of the 18th-century crypt in the cemetery chapel. Outside, crosses had been turned upside down and statues of angels beheaded.

The vicar said a number of black magic rituals had been taking place in Nunhead Cemetery since it was closed in January because of what cemetery administrators called "high running costs."

A young Dutchman living in the neighborhood says he has seen parties of young people in black cloaks entering the graveyard at night.

"The work of these black magic sects and their evil must be stopped soon," said the vicar. "A dead body is not a piece of garbage to be thrown about."

The vice-provost at Southwark Cathedral, Canon John Peacock-Higgins, is strongly convinced something must be done to curb the black magic club. The graveyard is in Southwark diocese.

"I think it's something on which the church falls down badly—they refuse to treat it seriously," he said after a recent inquest in which a bachelor was found to have hanged himself because bewitched a girl was practising black magic on him.

A spokesman at Church of England headquarters in London said the church was such a "loosely - structured" organization that it would be difficult for any central action to be taken.

Almost every week sees at least one newspaper account of a black magic desecration somewhere in England.

Cecil Hugh Williamson, owner and curator of a witchcraft museum in Sussex, Cornwall, says black magic has become a profitable trade and wishes any organized in Britain today "like a kind of Mafia."

UCS Volunteers May Separate

The volunteer bureau of United Community Services may become a separate United Appeal agency, if it receives approval at a meeting next Thursday.

"A meeting has been called with people that I assume will be interested in making it a separate agency", Mrs. Freeman Burrows, director of the bureau, said this morning.

There has never been an allotted separate fund to provide for the services of the bureau. However, as an agency, the volunteer facility would be funded with a slice of the United Appeal receipts.

There are only five such volunteer bureaus elsewhere in the province. In Hamilton and Ottawa, at least, they are separate agencies.

"Volunteerism should have a proper spotlight", follows Cooperman, executive director of UCS said this morning.

As an agency, the bureau may be revised and restructured. The possibility is not ruled out that meals on wheels and both the clothing and furniture exchanges may be incorporated into the agency.

The bureau now has 450 volunteers on file, each with particular specialties.

"We match a person's talent with a community need," Mrs. Burrows said. When a person calls the bureau for assistance, details are taken of the particular need and, with reference to the index, a volunteer is found to give assistance.

Madoc Sewer Is Approved

MADOC — A loan application by Madoc for $88,000 for construction of an inlet sewer has been approved, it was announced this morning by Clarke T. Rollins, MPP.

Artists to Present Crafts Display

PICTON (Staff) — Cast members of the Quinte Island Theatre's summer production, The Magic Trumpet, this weekend will join with several Prince Edward County artists in presenting a crafts display in the Armory Mall.

Guest exhibitors for this two - day showing will be Joanne Cunnington, The Schoolhouse Pottery; Grace Bush; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Nurcombe, Nurcombe Weaving Studio, Cherry Valley and Mrs. James MacDougall and Dorothy Netherton, The Boutique, Picton.

The crafts display is part of a program being assembled by the theatre group this summer to bring all forms of art to the county under a single sponsorship. Through artist's displays at the Armory Mall members of the theatre will give theatre group hope to create local enthusiasm for their plays.

The Magic Trumpet, performed throughout July and August at the County Centre struck a sour note last weekend when a free performance was cancelled owing to lack of attendance. A theatre spokesman explained that hot weather made it impossible to present the play indoors.

Later performances will be outdoors on the same afternoon drew a large crowd of youngsters. Described as a play for children of all ages "Trumpet" captures the imagination of adults too.

Members of the QIT now are recruiting talent for their fall production program. A sheet headed "What can you do" has been posted periodically in the Armory Mall in an attempt to garner seamstresses, carpenters, electricians and artists into the theatre group. This fall the QIT hopes to begin production of adult plays in order to appeal to a wider audience. A small group of enthusiastic players plan to continue to present "Trumpet" for the remainder of the summer in an effort to introduce live theatre in this community.

Long, Hot Summer Is Just Starting

It's summertime and the livin' ain't easy, but George Gerstein would certainly agree with that fractured lyric that symbolizes the hot temperatures that have prevailed Belleville for a week now.

The heat wave in the Quinte area that has seen temperatures as high as 96 degrees began July 23, one week ago today.

And, according to Trenton's duty forecaster, the trend will continue at least for the entire long weekend.

Today's high point will be somewhere between 85 and 91 degrees and the humidity this morning registered 95 per cent — perspiration weather for all.

Friday's forecast shows exactly the same situation, temperatures in the high 80s and a high humidity factor.

Saturday will see a slight change in the weather situation as the result of a weather disturbance north of Lake Superior.

The humidity will drop extensively late Saturday or early Sunday but temperatures will remain in the mid-80s for the entire long weekend. There is a slight chance of precipitation in the form of thunderstorms.

The forecaster compared this year's heat wave to a week long episode last year from July 13 to July 20.

The difference this year, is the fact that the heat wave has lasted a week already and there's no end in sight.

Herdsmen's Course Offered

The Department of Agriculture and Food will present a 18-week dairy herd workers course at the Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology in the fall.

During the course, students will be required to spend four hours each day doing practical work in barns and take two hours of instruction in the classroom.

The regular rates of allowance for Canada Department of Manpower retraining courses are provided as well as mobility allowances for the men to move to new locations on completion of the course.

If some of the students are more interested in beef or swine than in dairy cattle, provision will be made for them to take their practical training with these types of livestock.

The fall course complements a spring course that saw 12 men pass and begin jobs with incomes up to $400 a month.

Enrolment in the course will be accepted at the ARDA Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food at Kingston, Napanee and Stirling, or the closest Canada Manpower Centre.

String Along with Me

TORONTO Ithographer, Harvey Nurcombe, sits before his loom at his Cherry Valley home where he and his wife will weave handicrafts to market in Prince Edward County tourist spots. They selected the county for their new occupation after vacationing at Point Traverse for the past 20 years.

Toronto Weavers Retire To Looms in County

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

CHERRY VALLEY (Staff) — By "pulling a few strings" Toronto lithographer Harvey Nurcombe with his wife, Elsie, recently retired in Cherry Valley. Expert weavers, the Nurcombes originally made their craft with Toronto institutions, Mrs. Warner King.

For nine years the couple "strung along" with their hobby before deciding to make it their livelihood.

Vacationers for 20 years, at Point Traverse, about 25 miles south of Picton, the Nurcombes promptly agreed that Prince Edward County would provide the ideal market for their handicrafts. This spring they opened a studio adjacent to their village home.

In a co-operative effort with the Quinte Island Theatre group to promote local arts and crafts, Mr. and Mrs. Nurcombe plan a special display of their work this weekend in the Armory Mall, Picton. Starting the hill for this colorful show is nationally recognized potter, Joanne Cunningham, Bloomfield.

The Nurcombes weave in a bright, well equipped room boasting a dozen looms of various types. Showpiece of the studio is an antique loom, more than 60 years old, formerly owned by a Picton attorney, the late Frederick Ward. Observes Mrs. Nurcombe, "These large old looms are not very pretty, so many people break them up and dispose of them. They are built to last, are of space and are not generally popular with antique fanciers."

Nurcombe's studio is filled with six large looms matched with six smaller belt looms. Shelves against one wall hold spools of thread in rainbow colors. A large table stands in the centre of the studio laden with "the fruit of the looms." Gay scarves, ponchos, place mats, dresser scarves and wall hangings number among the items for sale.

A spinning wheel used in making yarn occupies one corner of the studio. It is seldom used since Mrs. Nurcombe has discovered this process can be extremely time consuming. She spins only a limited amount of the yarn used in her work.

Local interest in weaving has convinced the Nurcombes to teach classes in this ancient craft. "It's on a first come, first served basis," says Elsie, adding that each pupil must have his own loom.

Since the studio is equipped with approximately a dozen looms it would be impossible to instruct large classes.

Although weaving appears to present no reasons for getting up tight, the beginner can soon find threes of thought with surprising ease. Perseverance and patience "take out the kinks." This point is subtly stressed in a poem paraphrasing Kipling's "If" which hangs in the studio. The verses suggest that if the novice can endure trial and error one day he will become a weaver.

Each week dozens of colorful and imaginative designs leap from the Nurcombes' looms. Few can equal in striking simplicity the pattern this couple has chosen for their retirement years.

Park Raided By Vandals

CAMPBELLFORD (Special) — The Rylstone Women's Institute Park at the junction of county road 28 and the Rawdon - Seymour Township line has been the scene of vandalism and theft recently.

Two picnic tables have been stolen and other park equipment has been disturbed. The tables, which are specially marked, as well as the other equipment, were gifts to the institute park from former residents and welwishers.

OPP officers are investigating.

No Mail Monday

The city of Belleville and the surrounding rural area will receive no mail delivery on Monday, August 3.

However, boxes in the post office lobby will remain open on a 24-hour basis.

Although no wicket services will be provided, special delivery service will be available and all mail will be received and dispatched as usual, with letter box collections being made as per Sunday schedules.

Regular service will resume on Tuesday.

District Unionists Join UAW Pickets

Striking workers at Stewart Warner Corp. of Canada today manned mass picket lines in a show of union solidarity at the MacDonald Avenue plant as their, walkout, seeking higher wages, enters its fourth month.

There were no incidents. But police were called to the scene as company officials — surrounded by pickets — attempted to open office doors on which locks were reported jammed.

Strike officers said the demonstration was spurred by the mailing of a company letter this week to members of the striking Local 1538, United Automobile Workers.

They charged the letter was an attempt to encourage striking workers to bargain individually with the company.

"It was an attempt to split the union down the middle," said Frank McKay, Local 1538 president. "They tell us at the (company - union negotiation) meetings they're willing to bargain with us. Then they mail this letter out."

The letter, signed by company president Robert Reid reviewed negotiations before and after the last work contract expired in February.

But, it was its concluding paragraph which, union officials said today, sparked today's demonstrative reaction.

In closing, the company noted it was required by law to bargain with the union and its committee, and added: "Therefore, if you have any feelings about what should be done and about whether negotiations should be resumed, you should give your views to the union committee.

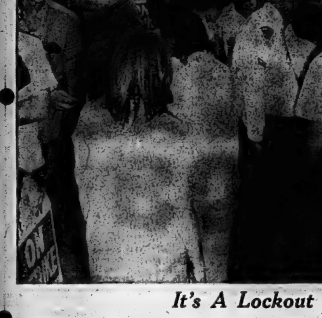
"I think they're using this letter to get the union and get the people riled up so they will bargain individually," claimed Clarke Thompson, chairman of the union's bargaining committee.

No comment was immediately available from senior company executives on the letter.

Mr. Reid was reported on vacation while company manager F. C. Ekbier was not at the plant this morning.

The strike, involving about 140 workers — both men and women — was launched April 27.

At that time, a company statement said the union was seeking a 30-cent hourly wage increase while the company offer was 15 cents. UAW district representative Tom Green, of Oshawa then claimed starting rates were $1.37 for women, $1.42 for men.



On the scene for this morning's mass picket was Robert Andrus, president of the Quinte District Labor Council.

Mr. Andrus charged that Stewart Warner workers were being asked to scale for percentage increases much lower than percentages reached at other local industries during negotiations this year.

The council has donated $100 to the strikers' fund, he said.

Police were called to the scene after office workers found themselves locked out of the plant.

Two constables stood with the pickets as officials attempted to clear a main door lock on the building. A police official said it appeared a B-B pellet was jamming the apparatus.

It's A Lockout

Staff workers at strikebound Stewart Warner Corp. of Canada were temporarily locked out this morning when locks on office block were found jammed. Police, called during mass picket by striking UAW members in support of union, stood by while company officials attempted to open building.

School Addition Receives Approval

Necessary provincial government approvals now have been received for the $198,350 addition to Sir John A. Macdonald public school in Belleville.

Ontario Municipal Board approval of the project was given in a telegram received yesterday by the Hastings County board of education.

Tuesday, the department of education signified its approval.

Construction can now begin immediately, said L. A. Kells, acting education director.

The addition is an open - space teaching area, the equivalent of six classrooms and a library service, he said.

It could be completed by the end of the year.

Water... Water

Even to the unscientific mind — or from the viewpoint of the general public, with only the evidence of their eyes, the water scene these days, is in contemporary parlance, a "bad scene."

The condition of possible mercury contamination of fish in the Bath (near Kingston) area of Lake Ontario is bad enough, but what does this mean for example for people concerned not only with what they are eating (remember when radioactive fallout was the big bogey) but with such vacation situations as finding a clean area of beach and water to go for a swim?

The dead fish situation at The Outlet and other beach areas these days is deplorable. The water itself is murky and of highly questionable quality, yet people go in anyway. What irony in a land of such vast water resources, including our own well-supplied area, that there really is no place that can be regarded as either entirely safe or completely germ free.

So much for the age of pollution!

Meanwhile, it is good to see Quinte-area municipalities and Ontario Water Resources Commission representatives getting together to discuss the needs of the population and the various communities. There is a continuing need for such meetings, the better to assess our requirements in the light of industrial and population growth and the trend ultimately toward regional government.

Dissent in Russia

Dissent where it exists in the Soviet Union is fraught with hazards. It does exist though, not only among the intellectuals seeking change and relief from a stultifying political system, but also among a surprising number of the general public who are becoming increasingly disenchanted with shortages and inefficiency.

According to William Cole, a United States newsman recently expelled from Russia, there is even talk among the intellectuals of the possibility of another revolution. Despite the risks involved, Cole managed to bring with him filmed interviews with three young Soviet writers of the intellectual underground, who propagate their ideas — overseas in some instances — knowing full well that they risk imprisonment.

One of the trio had already spent time in prison, or rather a special camp set up for persons the authorities choose to regard as being in need of psychiatric care; there they may be drugged and otherwise coerced. Another depicted 'out the other day, Cole learned that 16 writers had died while in jail. Another young writer, photographed with his attractive artist wife, has repeatedly been arrested; he is the author of a book on whether the Soviet political system will survive.

The interviews were shown on television Tuesday night, and even though filmed in secret (in one case in woods near Moscow) the very fact they were to be shown in the west virtually sealed the fate of the writers concerned, as noted, they are already been arrested and sooner or later the other two may suffer the same fate. Yet all three insisted the interviews go ahead.

Many Russians accept the one-party system unquestionably, as U.S. writer Arthur Miller discovered from a man outside the Kremlin who said he trusted the country's leaders to do what was best. But not a few others, intellectuals and citizens at large, feel they are at the crossroads and that something has to give, sooner or later.

The Commercials

That early morning musical blurb for the soft drink company — "It's the real thing" and all that, and sung by "The Fifth Dimension" no less (at least, it sounds very much like them) seems to have been replaced by a sugar-sweet, piano aimed at curbing human carelessness, specifically with regard to forest fires.

"What a piece of work is man," some heavenly minded writer once said in a new city. "How noble in reason ..." And then the announcer says something about being sure people do not intentionally set forest fires.

Well, how nice! It is just that in so many ways homo sapiens is such a slob (work of art and noble in reason or not), from the way he dresses in some instances, to the manner he desecrates the countryside, pollutes the environment and persists in making war.

We are all of us just too imperfect to live up to the commercial songwriter's concept, but at least we can heed the bit about forest fires often being due to carelessness. Get the message!

The Cabinet's Long Hot Summer

PM Alone Looks as If He Can Take It in His Stride

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Watch the Cabinet file out, these last couple of weeks, after one of its many mid-summer sessions over the shielding problems of Ottawa on the back of the Government stove and one is to bet over when the Commons gets back to business in the fall.

See them troop out of their air-conditioned Cabinet think-tank on the third floor of the Centre Block: tired, drooping, heads down, the mark of weary frustration on them all — all but one.

That one, of course, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

As different from the circle of fatigued men around him as he is different from all the Prime Ministers before him.

Cool, fresh, unruffled. Looking as if he just dressed for the day. Shaved, showered, shorn, shirt crisp.

Altogether fresh. As if the long, hard, hot day were just beginning instead of running out.

Grateful almost to the free flowing motion of talk.

Tasty. On his toes, all but bouncing.

Smiling, shrugging, chatting. Unaware of, at least, hearing outward appearances.

How come? What is the trick? The seeming physical sleight-of-body?

Those who pretend to know him — if anyone really knows — say it does — say he cuts out. Unplugs. Leaves his Cabinet cares on the Privy Council table once it is time, tomorrow, or the next day, to shoulder them again.

He has the uncanny facility of being able to stand apart, to disengage for the moment, of release, from the problems of a Prime Minister.

It could be a life-saver, Liberally.

For his two years — they have not been all that sort of a political touch, even if he has not had to worry, deep down, about Opposition — have not laid a wrinkle on him.

Look what the years — right from those opening months of responsibility — did to Prime Ministers St. Laurent, Diefenbaker and Pearson.

In only weeks it aged them months, and the months took the toll of years.

Pictures and performances of the three men furnish ample evidence of the physical fall-out, almost as swift as the dramatic deterioration of the fictional Dorian Gray.

It could be, too, that, having picked the next around him in Cabinet, he leaves their problems to them.

Which makes it great for him — at least in these low-pressure months of the parliamentary recess — and anything but — that around him.

They bear the scars of punishment.

Look at them plod heavily out of the Cabinet chamber, shoulder bowed under the weight of their work-load.

Finance Minister Benson — who can not sell his Wife Paper on Taxation, all in the name of reform, even a majority of his own Liberal colleagues in the Commons who are opposing him as vigorously as Conservative Leader Stanfield.

Postmaster General Kierans — who, by fiat, has not been able to deliver the mail even at increased postal rates and still soaring costs.

Health Minister John Munro — who can neither legalize pot nor shoot another $3 billion on welfare.

Bryce Mackasey, who seems able to negotiate only inflationary wage increases, and as the Minister responsible for Labor, can scarcely escape taking some of the rap for union militants who slang the Prime Minister with such ripe epithets as "whore," "damned liar," and "prostitute" to his face.

State Secretary Pelletier whose Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism many Liberal parliamentarians publicly have called "vicious," "biased," "unbalanced," "irresponsible," and "explosive."

Justice Minister John Turner who has been told, when he sell-ed State Secretary Pelletier's Public Service Commission for an explosion of its cobtrovers-ial application of the Langu-ages Act in the federal Civil Service, to butt out and mind his own business.

Consumer Affairs Minister Basford whose Prices and Incomes Commission and Anti-Inflatory program has been publicly and totally rejected by labor.

Energy Minister Joe Greene who can neither do anything about American restrictions on Canadian oil exports, nor reconcile his own National Energy Board to live up to its own import regulations governing the petroleum industry.

Minister of Agriculture — the , Wheat - Board Otto Lang, who can not sell wheat or anything else to or for the Prairies.

Mention a Minister, any Minister in the whole long Cabinet Cabinet line — up, and you can pin - point a problem.

Mention any Minister, that is except the Prime Minister, and there you have a conundrum.

A Double Standard

Peterborough Examiner

While no one condones the racial policies of South Africa, one wonders if the protesting nations are not guilty of maintaining a double standard. For while they all voted to expel South Africa from the Olympic Games, all were willing to play ball, literally, with the Soviet Union and other Communist states, whose policy of discrimination and rule by sheer terror makes South Africa look like a model of democracy.

Lesson for West

The Plight of Czechoslovakia

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I read with great admiration the three excellent but sad articles about Czechoslovakia by Ottawa Journal editor Norman Smith, a writer with skill and deep human touch. I wish that Canada and the free world would have more courageous newspaper men like Mr. Smith to tell the truth about a small but brave nation and its people.

His conclusion is a timely warning to many Canadians and should be read by all and repeated often: Czechoslovakia is a country of people who have every reason to be sad — and are sad . . . Czechoslovakia is a country whose plight should make us long bewere of Russian promises and of possible words. Czechoslovakia proved in 1968 that between might and right the line has an difficulty choosing.

Czechoslovakia and what happened to Dubcek should remind some of the starry-eyed people in Canada and all over the world that Russian imperialism is just that and not some kind of sweetness for the benefit of man."

These words should be read by people who like to stage demonstrations — strikes — unrest on university campuses, etc. mostly inspired by Communist agents to destroy our free society and government.

National President,

Cabinet Committees Are Busy

OTTAWA (CP) — On the outside, Ottawa appears in the doldrums with Parliament Hill turned into a teeming tourist park, MPs feuds - basking at home and public servants vacationing in droves.

But inside the cabinet room it's a long hot summer. And if this hard concrete is the more talkative days of Lester Pearson or John Diefenbaker, cabinet ministers would be getting more exposure than a film festival at a nudist colony.

But now, typically, the silence of public men hard at work is almost deafening as cabinet ministers trudge into meetings in the early morning. They emerge late, drawn, hot and perspiring, well into the night.

Since the Commons recessed June 26, cabinet has been setting a record-breaking pace with its meetings.

Usually the meetings consist of committees involving six to eight ministers. Some, particularly Finance Minister Edgar Benson and Treasury Board President C. M. Drury, serve on several committees and often go from one meeting to another.

The make - up of the various committees — they cover such areas as planning and priorities, economic policy and programming, social policy, cultural and information, external affairs, defence and federal-provincial relations — have never been revealed. Prime Minister Trudeau is known to be a highly-active member of the committee on planning and priorities.

The committees are wading through some 60 to 80 pieces of legislation that could face Parliament in October, along with a reorganized cabinet structure, agendas are closely followed.

Youth and the New Idealism Run Into That Old Truism: Nothing New Under the Sun

Winnipeg Free Press

A recent broadcast by a Toronto professor told listeners that modern youth has come to the conclusion that liberalism, tolerance and individual freedom are concepts that failed to improve the human condition, and this is why young people at the universities on both sides of the lectern, are so earnestly seeking new concepts. The old ideals are still being upheld, said the professor, by holdovers from the Second World War who believe (mistakenly) he did not specify) that they had been on the side of the forces of light when they were fighting the forces of Nazeric darkness. But for the new generation now coming into its own such memories mean nothing and the ethics of their elders appear to them as phoney.

Watching this agonizing search for new solutions at the UN Youth Assembly session makes one wonder how new is new. Have we not seen it all, the idealism, the doubts and the down of opponents, refusal to hear a different point of view? Instant labels are all old and the fastest, and the youngsters who Forever talk of "tolerance" and "meaningful" subjects for their studies would be quite surprised if they were told that the differences between the Persians and the Greeks, reformation and counter-reformation, the Anabaptists in Munster, absolutism, and on to Mussolini and Hitler and Stalin. It is all "penalthinkers" "relevant" and "meaningful," as much as Prof. Marcuse's "tyranny of tolerance" or Che Guevara and his Samson - like death-wish that would bring the whole rotten civilization crashing down on us.

Tolerance, individual freedom and liberalism have failed, they say — and what then has succeeded? His regimentation, repression and intolerance anywhere improved the lot of man? Can the youngsters and the professors, these "professional youths," name one place where the practice of intolerance has in any way alleviated the iniquities they deplore? Their promises of a glorious future can only be gauged by past experience, whatever their aversion to any lessons of history.

Fortunately, liberalism and demand for individual liberty are revealed more dynamic than those produced by the arid philosophies of Palestinian guerrilla preaching over the UN youth peace commission, or the lines of the Soviet and Cuban "advisers" who were present over the youth assembly. Tolerance, understanding of the things for individual freedom have been the heritage of man since the dawn of time, and while the latest speculate at the UN World Youth Assembly may demonstrate that these youngsters have no better than some of their elders who all too often provide an embarrassment at the UN (Although, thus far, no "disgruntled delegate" has offered to "kick his opponent" as did the youth delegate of the old Russian Empire), it will merely affirms that those who shout loudest are the most barren of ideas.

Why Geese Fly in A 'V'

Winnipeg Tribune

Just at sunset a few weeks ago, residents in the west end of Brandon who looked their eyes to the sky saw a sight of almost incredible beauty. Great skeins of geese flying northward stretched across the heavens. The birds were flying at a high clip that the noise of their honking could barely be heard on the ground. But the rays of the descending sun set the wings of the great slow-moving V formations were indescribably beautiful.

The scientists at the California Institute of Technology are not particularly interested in the beauty of flying geese. But they are interested in why the birds fly in V formations. Two specialists in aerodynes in ics think they have pinpointed the reason.

They have calculated that large migrating birds flying in V formation lower their flight range by as much as 70 per cent. Their calculations show that each bird creates an upward current in its wing tip. The bird following places its head in formation so as to take advantage of the lift and gain greater range.

If a bird gets out of its proper position, according to the analysis, it immediately senses an increased resistance and drops back. The optimum spacing of the birds depends on the angle of the V.

Trenton Police Constable Dies

Lupton said the constable died at 5.46 p.m. "despite strenuous efforts to revive him."

Precise cause of death is expected to be revealed by a postmortem today, said Chief Rutherford.

Following the autopsy the body becomes the legal responsibility of Coroner Dr. David Listers, of Brighton.

Mr. Lupton said the doctor may decide to hold a coroner's inquest.

Const. Houlden served as president of Trenton Police Association since 1968. Prior to that he was its executive secretary.

He is survived by his wife, Jean, and two children.

A neighbor, who wished to remain unidentified, said:

"I heard them talking, hollering and yelling but I was on the phone and I don't just know what time it was.

"The police took a guy away but I don't know who it was."

Const. Houlden called for assistance and three additional police officers were immediately despatched to the scene, said Chief Rutherford.

Neighbors confirmed there was a scuffle and that the officer had called for help. They said the disturbance had taken place in the back yard of the house.

Chief Rutherford said this was the first time a member of the town's police force died in the performance of duty.

Chief Rutherford said the three persons in custody will come before a justice of the peace this afternoon and will appear next Wednesday in provincial court for remand.

Chief Rutherford said there "is no doubt that Const. Houlden's death will be a great loss to the department. He was an outstanding police officer."

Turbo in Transit

Canadian National's new Turbo train, which went into regular operation in late spring passes under Sidney Street bridge in one of its four daily runs. Five Belleville engineers are on regular Turbo assignment.

Belleville Engineers At Controls of Turbo

When CN's speedy new Turbo trains slip through Belleville on their daily runs between Toronto and Montreal there is an almost fifty-fifty chance that local engineers are at the control.

Five Belleville engineers are on "Turbo assignment" meaning that they take regular turns driving the streamlined trains on the fast passenger run between Canada's two largest metropolitan centres.

Other engineers for the Turbo run have been chosen from Montreal and Toronto.

The five Turbo engineers from this city are Lyle Langabeer, Robert Dawson, C. A. Guest, R. C. Jones and M. T. Campbell.

Another five Belleville engineers act as spares and replace the regular engineers in case of sickness or when they are off due to holidays or for other reasons.

The Turbo trains — CN's competitive answer to air transport — pass through the city eastbound at 8.05 a.m. and 4.25 p.m. On the westbound run the runs pass through the city at 10.25 a.m. and at 6.40 p.m. EDT.

The trains make the 336-mile, non-stop inter-city run in three hours and 58 minutes —chopping a full hour off Rapido's time.

The operating schedule for Belleville engineers calls for them to make one-way runs each day for four consecutive days. Then they have five days off before resuming runs.

Although the trains don't stop at Belleville, local residents can almost set their watches by their regularity.

"Usually they are right on time," commented a crew office employee.

MD Prescribes 'Cheap Highs'

TORONTO (CP) — A psychiatrist at York University has told his students to forget acid trips and try water routes.

Dr. Daniel Capon says there are ways to reach a psychedelic state that are much safer and cheaper than drugs.

—If you drink several gallons of water, you will dilute your blood to the point that oxygen to the brain is reduced and you become euphoric and depersonalized.

—Or you can spin around on a barber's chair until you get a feeling equivalent to the one produced by a carnival ride.

—Sleep-deprivation will disorientate you but recovery is just a nap away.

—You can drop cold water against the ear drum for about eight seconds through a soda pop straw.

—With sensory deprivation you shut off all sound and light in a room, "lie perfectly still for four or five hours and off you go."

All these methods have been used in a laboratory experiment, on distortion of time, space and identity, Dr. Capon said in an interview Wednesday. Reasons for developing these "cheap highs" was that Dr. Capon needed "a method that could be interrupted at any time—you can't do that with drugs."

Since word about Dr. Capon's experiments has leaked out, students have been coming to his laboratory door, asking for a quick spin on his barber's chair.

Two Break-ins In Tweed

TWEED (Special) — Madoc provincial police are investigating two break - ins in the village which resulted in a total of nearly $700 loss and damage.

Both of the break-ins — one at the Tweed Feed Mills and the other at the Skoo Lake park lunch bar — occurred some time Monday night.

At the Tweed Feed Mills, intruders forced an inside door to the office where they wrecked a soft drink vending machine and stole about $5 in coins. Damage amounted to about $300.

At the lunch bar, entry was made through an unlocked window. A small amount in coins and more than 400 packages of cigarettes were stolen, Wilfred Lessard is the vendor at the lunch bar.

Grand Opening.

Needless to say, you're invited.
We'd like to show you around our sparkling new showroom. Then take you out back and show where we keep all the Volkswagen parts for all the Volkswagens out front. The big new service area where we service them, and the mechanics of it all.
We'll throw open the doors of all our brand new Volkswagens: the Beg, Fastback, Squareback, Karmann Ghia and Station Bus. And we'll be around to answer any questions you might have about what makes a Volkswagen a Volkswagen.
There'll be refreshments (so bring the kids) and free rides for the adults: a spin around the block in the Volkswagen of your choice.
Even if you're not in the market for a new car, why not plan on doing some window shopping at our place.
Who knows? You might not need a new VW today, but you just might get the bug tomorrow.

"How can they see anything at the countryside at that speed?"

NDP Spokesman: 'Branch Plant' Status Hurts Our Economy

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada has become a branch plant of the United States and U.S. investment has hindered the Canadian economy, economist Melville Watkins said today.

Prof. Watkins, vice-president of the New Democratic Party and a professor of economics at the University of Toronto, was invited to speak at hearings before the subcommittee on foreign economic policy of the joint economic committee of the U.S. Congress.

"Foreign direct investment makes growth too easy and builds in dependence to an unnecessary degree."

Without foreign inputs, Canada's domestic growth might have been easier, he said.

The economist said foreign direct investment results not in the export of capital from the U.S. but rather in a drain of surplus to the United States.

He said it has been estimated that between 1926 and 1967, Canadian subsidiaries and affiliates sent $1,000,000,000 more to their parent companies in the form of profits than they received in capital imports.

As well as losing profits to the foreign country, Canada loses its raw materials and the jobs it could have had from processing.

Festival Promoters Under Attack

MONTREAL (CP) — What price love and peace?

The promoters of this weekend's Mariposa pop festival have set $12 and $15 as the price for tickets, promising three days of those two commodities in return.

The promoters have come under attack from a group calling itself the Quebec Cultural Committee, which says the festival organizers are exploiting young people and their music to make money.

"These money-hungry Quebec pseudo-organizers are not hesitating to exploit love and peace to fill their pockets," the committee said in a statement distributed at a news conference Wednesday.

The committee also announced plans for a sit-in demonstration in front of the ticket booths at the festival site to support what they say is the right of Quebec's young people "not to be exploited on their territory by paying a $15 entry fee."

Advance tickets for the festival, available at a number of outlets in Montreal, Quebec City, Toronto and Ottawa, cost $12 each. Gate admission costs $15 a person.

Ziggy Wiseman, one of the festival promoters, told another news conference Wednesday that 17,000 tickets had to be sold for the promoters to break even and 28,000 have been sold already.

Mr. Wiseman, who also goes by the name of Ziggy Richards, said, however, that the festival has not yet been able to sign some of the big-name acts being advertised as appearing.

Among the advertised acts which may not perform are guitarist Jimi Hendrix and his backup band, the Canned Heat group and folksinger Richie Havens.

Mr. Wiseman would not produce contracts signing any other artists to the festival.

Anyway, he said, "the real star of a pop festival is the audience that attends it."

Bulging nets of Soviet dragger boat Suifin are filled with valuable bottom fish as well as salmon, according to west coast Canadian fishermen, angry at the Russians for taking the fish as well as at recent close brushes with the Soviet boats while the Canadians were anchored. B.C. Businessmen Said Afraid To Criticize Socred Regime

VICTORIA (CP) — Robert Kaplan, a Liberal Member of Parliament from Toronto, said Wednesday British Columbia businessmen appear to be afraid to criticize their provincial government.

"It makes you wonder what kind of democracy they have in this province," said Kaplan, member of a section of the Commons finance committee on tour to hear opinions about federal proposals to change the tax system.

Mr. Kaplan, who represents Toronto-Don Valley, made his comments during the third day of the group's Victoria hearing when four industry representatives were testifying.

The MP said no witnesses have hesitated to criticize current federal tax laws or the proposals for change in Ottawa's tax white paper.

But representatives of forestry and mining—B.C.'s main industries—had been "reluctant or unwilling" to comment on what Mr. Kaplan called "discriminatory" provincial taxes on logging and mining.

"I think the witnesses are afraid to comment," said Mr. Kaplan, suggesting that they feared criticism of the provincial Social Credit government would provoke some kind of retaliation.

Executives of the Council of Forest Industries of B.C. and one of its member firms, B.C. Forest Products Ltd., offered no reaction to Mr. Kaplan's remarks.

They have said that the B.C. logging tax, along with the combined federal-provincial corporation tax, constituted an "excessive burden" on their industry.

But the loggers tended to fault the federal authorities on the ground that Ottawa declines to allow them to fully offset their provincial logging tax against the federal portion of corporate income tax.

The B.C. government raised the logging tax rate to 15 per cent from 10 per cent two years ago, but federal authorities refused to reduce their corporate tax way further in compensation.

The result, the loggers say, is an effective, combined rate of tax on net income of almost 37 per cent compared with about 51 per cent for other industries.

In their submissions to the committee, the loggers directed criticism toward Ottawa. The council said absence of "proper offset" provision was an example of "lack of federal-provincial co-operation."

B.C. Forest Products said "the offset provisions under the federal Income Tax Act have worked as a penalty . . ." The company has opened legal proceedings against the federal government to get tax rebates expected to be tied this fall in the Supreme Court of Canada.

The loggers urged that federal proposals be modified—especially in the taxation of capital gains—to their tax burden would not become heavier.

Ray Perrault (L—Burnaby-Seymour), former leader of the B.C. Liberals and a long-time campaigner against the provincial government of Premier W. A. C. Bennett, told the loggers their high combined tax rate resulted from provincial action and they should direct criticism there.

The B.C. Sugar Refining Co. also suffered sharp rejection when it proposed that the federal government launch an entirely new inquiry into taxation.

"We have been sitting and listening to brief's like yours for months," said committee member Ross Whicher (L—Bruce). "We are not here just for our health."

Meantime, the MPs received no indication that Mr. Bennett, who doubles as provincial finance minister, would change his mind and accept an invitation to present his views on the federal white paper before the current hearings wind up tonight.

MR. AND MRS. ROBIN JOHNSTON

Johnston — Meagher

Holy Rosary Church, Belleville was the scene of the July 25 wedding of Karen Marie Meagher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Meagher of Belleville and Robin Gerald Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Johnston of Belleville. Rev. Father Reginald Sweeney officiated at the ceremony; organist was Mrs. Grace Brown and soloist Bill Mann.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of nylon chiffon over taffeta with an empire waistline, high wedding band collar trimmed with Swiss lace and long full chiffon sleeves. Swiss lace ran down the front of the bodice around the waistline and cuffs. There were daisy appliques on the bodice and sleeves. She wore a chapel train bordered with Swiss lace and a headpiece of Swiss lace daisies trimmed with aurora borealis and a four - tiered scalloped silk illusion veil. She carried a nosegay of pink carnations, deep pink sweetheart roses and white shasta daisies.

Maid of honor was Miss Lynne Meagher, sister of the bride, wearing a floor-length gown of printed chiffon over yellow taffeta with an empire waist and bell sleeves. She wore white accessories and a headband of white shasta daisies and carried a nosegay of white shasta daisies and yellow sweetheart roses.

Bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Meagher, sister of the bride and Misses Cheryl and Candy Johnston, sisters of the bridegroom. They were dressed identically to the maid of honor in blue with a headband of white shasta daisies and a nosegay of white shasta daisies and pink sweetheart roses.

Best man was Ian Dallas, and ushers were Stephen Meagher, brother of the bride, Terry Meagher, cousin of the bride and Randy Ian Norman.

For the reception held at Club Canara, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing an ice blue sleeveless dress of silk shantung with matching coat of embroidered organza, white accessories and a corsage of yellow baby 'mums.

The bridegroom's mother wore a pink chiffon over pink taffeta dress with accordion pleated skirt and long sleeves and a corsage of white baby 'mums tinted pink.

For the wedding trip to points north, the bride chose a white pantsuit with blue accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Upon their return the couple will reside at 920 Castell Rd., Apt. 103, Kingston.

Goodwill Is Key To Success

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer protection groups must have a good relationship with manufacturers in order to accomplish things, suggests Mrs. A. R. R. Lawrence of Ottawa, chairman of the Canadian Toy Testing Council.

Recently the mother of four travelled with her husband, who is an Ontario cabinet minister, to Vienna to take part in an international consumer conference sponsored by the International Organization of Consumers Unions.

"I tried to point out while in Vienna that in regard the manufacturers as villains is not the way to improve the situation," she said in an interview.

"In order to get anywhere we must have their goodwill."

Her own organization, a non-profit group dedicated to improving the quality and safety of toys, has achieved a rapport with manufacturers it deals with. They provide the council with toys to test and frequently act on its suggestions.

The Canadian Toy Testing Council, a volunteer group of Ottawa women including teachers, scientists and social workers, also operates on an annual budget of $500 provided by the Canadian Toy Manufacturers Association.

RETURN TO HATS — The prediction is that fall will see a return to hats. Some of the new styles that will be worn are (from left) a standard LBJ profile hat in white velour, a knitted cap in Swiss design with hanging fringes and complemented by six-foot scarf and a Velentino of Rome hat of black fur felt with cavalier sweep brim.

One in Four Garments Homemade

NEW YORK (AP) — That stylish lady walking down the street may look like she's wearing a Dior or a Fured or a Givenchy. But chances are it's a Mrs. Smith or Mrs. Brown "original" instead.

In fact, one out of every four women's and children's garments is made at home with 43,000,000 home sewers in the United States today, industry sources indicate.

And everybody from fibre manufacturers to the textile industry to pattern companies to store retailers cites the same reason for the growth: sewing is "in" and for most home sewers it's a creative outlet.

The "new and save" element has been replaced by the "sew and show" element, says Richard Hallet, marketing executive at E.I. du Pont de Nemours and Co., one of the biggest makers of synthetic fibres.

"The average home sewer is proud of the garments she makes," he says. "Five years ago she probably would have apologized for making the garment. Now she's apt to give a 20-minute talk on exactly how she did it and how much she saved."

Industry sources cite other factors contributing to the boom, of course. Things such as the poor quality of ready-to-wear garments versus their high costs. And that patterns, fabrics, and styles are simpler, easier to sew, and as current as ready-to-wear.

Last year, home sewers in the U.S. spent at least $2,500,000,000 a record survey by McCall Pattern Co. shows. The lion's share of that money — about $1,500,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 was spent for fabric. But patterns pulled in an additional $150,000,000. $400,000,000 was spent for notions and $450,000,000 for sewing machines.

Behind the boom in sewing is a different type of home sewer, industry sources report. Another recent study by McCall's says the average home sewer is younger, better educated and more affluent than ever before. This study indicates she's around 30 years old, with some college and a median income of more than $9,500.

"Ten years ago we looked at the sewing business and found quite a few people didn't like to sew because their mother or grandmother had to sew out of economic necessity," says Glen Saxon of Singer Co., the sewing machine manufacturer. "We tried to change the emphasis and appeal to the young."

Changing the emphasis involved massive educational and promotional programs by many companies in the home sewing industry. For example, Simplicity Pattern Co. alone has 40 home economists who put on about 2,000 demonstrations a year.

McCall says it put on 18,000 school programs last year in an effort to reach the youth market.

Prizes were presented to a number of those present. Grant Ketcheson of Madoc was elected president for next year with the remaining executive being unchanged.

All members were urged to bring their present branch history up to date and send it to the historical secretary, Mrs. Taylor Franklin, Belleville or recording secretary, Mrs. Nelson Welsh, Belleville.

Making Good Coffee Is A Rewarding Art

DEAR READERS: Recently a woman wrote a letter and signed it "Hate Myself". Her problem — she couldn't make a good cup of coffee. I received a better letter than I asked for when I asked for suggestions. Many of the responses were so helpful and interesting I'm passing them along. The replies were beautiful. Here is a sampling.

ANN LANDERS

EAU CLAIRE, WIS.: I'm Norwegian and everyone suspects that I should know how to make good coffee. When I first got married my husband said, "Your coffee is terrible. Are you sure you are Norwegian?" Well, Ann, I cried for two days over that insult. Then I finally decided I would learn how to make the best coffee in town. I experimented with all types of coffee makers — electric, drip, open pot, fresh ground, vacuum packed — and I even ground my own coffee beans. I still couldn't please him. One day I invited my next-door neighbor in for a cup of coffee and she said, "How come you are using water from your tap? Your coffee must taste awful." I asked her what she was talking about. "Oh," she said, "the water around here has a lot of mineral in it. For good coffee you have to use bottled water."

The next day I bought bottled water and now my husband says I am the best coffee maker in the world — and this includes Norway.

DAVENPORT, IOWA: Most people who can't make good coffee are lazy. They don't scrub the pot after each using. Tell "Hate Myself" a little elbow grease is the answer.

BOSTON: I'll bet I know why that woman can't make good coffee. She probably scrubs the pot after each using. Tell her to stop it. This makes the water taste of metal and ruins the coffee. If she'll just clean the pot with hot, warm water her coffee will taste better.

TOPEKA, KANSAS: Funny how people will buy the most expensive shoes but when it comes to coffee they reach for the cheapest brand and try to save a few pennies. Tell "Hate Myself" to borrow a friend's coffee for a few hours and she'll be surprised at the difference.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.: I used to spend a fortune on coffee — I even arranged to have a friend send me some from Brazil. Then one day when I was shopping in a supermarket I smelled the aroma of coffee being ground. It was awfully cheap but it smelled so good I bought a bag. It was the best coffee I ever tasted and I've been using it ever since.

BOISE: My coffee secret is simple. I throw an egg into the pot — shell and all. When I pour it, I use a tea strainer.

SANTA BARBARA: A pinch of salt in the coffee brings out all the hidden flavor.

SAN FRANCISCO: Most people served rancid coffee and wonder why it's bitter. They don't realize that unless the lid is on good and tight the coffee spoils. And keep it in the refrigerator, by all means.

BILLINGS: It's not the coffee. It's the cream, I'll bet. Unless the cream is thick and fresh the coffee will be bitter.

FORT WORTH: My secret is a little chunk of butter, the size of a pea. Butter substitutes won't do. It has to be butter.

FAIRBANK, ALASKA: I'll bet hundreds of readers will tell "Hate Myself" that the trouble with her coffee is the pot — or the water or that she is using too little or too much coffee. They are all wrong. It's her brew. The only way to make good coffee is on a wood burner.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Many Recipes for Cloud Nine Pie Discovered

By MARY BOOKE

Nearly two months ago I asked for readers for the recipe for Cloud Nine Pie. My friend Dorothea H. Skea then served it readers here and yesterday for it and strange to say yet my one is different. But the one we tried was so good I am sure I will yield to temptation and base more experiments on it as we will be having Cloud Ten and Cloud Eleven on Pies before the year is out.

CLOUD NINE PIE
(The Dorothea H.)

Meringue Ingredients:
4 large egg whites
¼ tsp. cream of tartar
1 cup sugar (first amount)
Filling Ingredients:
4 large egg yolks
1 cup sugar (2nd amount)
¼ tsp. salt
½ cup milk
½ cup orange juice concentrate
½ cup water
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
2 tsps. plain gelatine
Grated yellow rind of 1 lemon
2 cups whipping (32 per cent) cream

Make Meringue first: Add cream of tartar to whites and beat until foamy, then gradually add sugar while beating on high until meringue is so stiff it will hold narrow high peaks. Do not underbeat meringue. Grease deep 9 or 10" pie plate with unsalted vegetable shortening and turn meringue into it making very high sides and bottom surface not more than ¼" thick. Bake at 275 deg. F.oho for ½ hr., and then turn off heat and leave in oven to finish baking and drying out for 1 hr. more. (Ha hrs. in oven in all.)

To make Filling: Combine the orange juice concentrate, water (making a cup half and half mixture), lemon juice, and gelatine and let stand to soak. In top of double boiler mix yolks, sugar, salt and milk. Stir over boiling water until it thickens somewhat and coats spoon. Stir in fruit-juice-gelatine mixture for about 1 min. to dissolve gelatine, then remove from heat.

Add lemon rind and cool until it begins to congeal.

Whip 2 cup cream and fold into partially congealed filling. Whip remaining water cup cream and spread ¼ of bottom of meringue shell, then pour on filling slowly for it nearly overflows. Decorate tops with border of cream whipped cream. Chill until set. Serve on same day as made, preferably.

Successful Living

Wife's Upbringing Affects Her Marriage

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I could kiss and hug you for the letter you wrote to the daughter-in-law who thought her husband's parents were butting in. It could not be more my case than if my daughter had written it instead of me.

My son has been married a year. He is our only child and we adore him.

I went to visit them and I was treated like dirt. My son was watched that he'd never be alone with me. If you could see him trying to slip me a kiss when she's not looking!

He used to be so happy, always brought his friends home. Now he never sees a cent of his pay. She hides him. She smells everything.

He had to cut down to her, so she says. He used to beat her. Is it that she cannot adjust to happy people? — Heartsick

Dear Heartsick: That's a pretty good guess. She knows no way of breaking you by being hard and demanding.

Little as it may look that try right now, your son is pathetically fortunate. His values are better. Once he discovers how immature his demanding wife is, and how much firmness she needs, he will be able to take the reins. She is only 19. Give him love. Let him know you are standing by.

Dear Doris: I've always enjoyed putting words on paper even when I was at school. Now that I have a grown family, and a typewriter, I wonder if I could turn some of my ideas into money?

I could write little household hints, but I would be willing to go into other fields and actually do some research if I knew what kind of things needed writing about. — Real-less Pen

Dear Pen: I have just the thing for you — a comprehensive Canadian market list. It is called The Writers' Guide. The fourth edition has just come to me in the mail.

As well as the market list, this new edition gives point-planning short stories, submitting manuscripts, writing for radio and television. And a few other things.

You can get a copy by writing to The Canadian Authors Association, 23 Yorkville Ave., Toronto 5, Canada. Enclose 25 cents.

Dear Doris: According to what you wrote recently, it is up to the groom's parents to make the first move.

What do you do in a case where we haven't met the girl and don't know her last name or address? She and her family live in another province. — The Groom's Mom

Dear Mom: If you can't be whom she is, write. Get name and address from your son.

Welcome the girl, say you think of the family to his side, express delight and anticipation. Offer to help in some way with the wedding.

So you won't be clueless about it, I'll send Dolies of the Groom's Parents along. You do things like standing in reception line, introduce your side of the family to his side, help guests get fed, respond to a toast.

Get to the wedding if you can possibly make it. This is a high point in your boy's life.

Dear Doris: Where can one obtain information, lessons or instruction in drawing, sketching and painting, as a hobby?

I will have little ones at home for a number of years yet and that means being tied to the house for the same number of years, I don't like becoming involved in clubs and organizations but I do want some means of occasionally myself. I like to draw and sketch and this I could do at home.

I have a young daughter who loves to draw too, so this is something we could do and enjoy together. — Artistic

Dear Artistic: Lucky you! Making your talent grow will not only delight you; it will bring you close to your gifted daughter.

You can get a talent test by writing to a correspondence school offering an art course (address on its way).

Or, you could get a "Learn to Draw" outfit which includes instructions and materials. An art store can show you many books about sketching and supply materials. Your idea is tops.

Points for Parents

By MARY HEYSON

Mother: "I'm fixing a bubble bath and you can play in the tub for awhile and cool off. I'll cream my face and fix my hair in here so we'll all look nice and fresh when Daddy gets home."

Mother: "Those hot summer days drives me wild. The children get so fussy in the late afternoon. If it weren't so steamy hot, I could take them for a walk and let them use up some of that energy."

Both mother and children need a quiet, relaxing time at the end of a hot day. For the hot, sticky children, free from any more cooling or relaxing than a tepid bath.

Tate Trial Witness and Lawyer Receive Threats to Lives

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — Prosecution witness Linda Kasabian, ignoring threats against her life, will wind up her testimony today on two nights of murder last August that claimed the lives of movie actress Sharon Tate and six other persons.

After describing on Tuesday the slaying of five persons at Miss Tate's Hollywood home last Aug. 9, Mrs. Kasabian told Wednesday of how hippie chieftain Charles Manson, ordered members of his "family" to kill again the following night because the first killings were "too messy."

Her lawyer, Gary Fleischman, later told reporters that both he and Mrs. Kasabian had received a number of death threats to stop her from testifying but that they were ignoring them.

Fleischman also said that when Mrs. Kasabian walked within a few feet of Manson in court Wednesday, he told her: "You blew it, Linda. You really blew it. You'd better say your prayers."

Mrs. Kasabian, a 21-year-old mother of two, originally was charged in connection with the murders. But she was given immunity to turn state's evidence.

Charged along with Manson, 35, are Susan Atkins and Patricia Krenwinkel, both 22, and Leslie van Houten, 20. Miss van Houten is charged only in connection with the second-night murders of supermarket owner Leno LaBianca, 44, and his 38-year-old wife Rosemary.

Also charged is another member of the hippie family, Charles (Tex) Watson, 24. He is in jail in Texas fighting extradition to California.

Fleischman said he had received a number of threatening telephone calls, including one from a man named Jay earlier this week who said: "If Linda Kasabian testifies, neither you nor she will leave the court alive."

Fleischman said Mrs. Kasabian has been given strong police protection.

Two of the defence lawyers, Irving Kanarek and Ronald Hughes, were both sentenced to 12 hours in jail Wednesday for contempt of court.

Kanarek, Manson's lawyer, was cited by Superior Court Judge Charles Older for contempt for making continuous interjections while Mrs. Kasabian was testifying.

Hughes, representing Miss Houten, was cited for making an abusive remark to Prosecutor Vincent Bugliosi in a hearing in Older's chambers Wednesday morning. He offered no apologies and was fined $75. He refused to pay and went to jail.

Mrs. Kasabian, who was the lookout during the killings at the Tate house, testified that Manson ordered the new killings because he felt: "Last night was too messy and he was going to show us how to do it."

Britain's Labor Troubles Are Only Beginning

LONDON (AP) — The two-week dock strike that ended Wednesday cost Britain more than $700,000,000 in lost exports, but the government's battle with wildcat walkouts and with workers seeking higher wages has hardly begun.

More than 2,000,000 workers in many fields are pressing wage demands that employers consider excessive and the government considers highly inflationary. They included 750,000 farm workers, 180,000 railwaymen, 300,000 miners, 750,000 local government workers, 200,000 nurses and 242,000 teachers.

Their demands range from a 10-per-cent raise by the local government workers to 37 per cent by the farm workers and teachers. All could lead to strikes, already approved by the unions involved. But official strikes are only the tip of the iceberg.

Some 85 per cent of Britain's strikes are wildcat walkouts usually resulting from a local grievance. They often come with little warning and can be highly disruptive to major industry.

Wildcat strikes are the main target of the tough labor legislation the Conservatives promised in their successful campaign for the June 18 election. But now that the Tories are in office they are having second thoughts about some of the bill's provisions, and it is unlikely to be ready for Parliament before the fall, if then.

Originally the Conservatives planned to lay the basis for legally enforceable contracts between management and labor. The bill would have allowed either side to sue the other in court if a contract was broken by a wildcat strike or a lockout.

There now are strong doubts whether this approach will work. Organized labor opposes such contracts, and many employers share labor's view.

Victor Feather, head of the 9,000,000-member Trades Union Congress, said recently: "The law can play no more part than the shotgun carried by a bride's father can ensure happiness in an enforced but legal marriage."

Feather argues that legally enforceable contracts over fixed periods lead to labor troubles and official strikes each time a contract ends. He says more time and money is lost in official strikes in the United States than in unofficial strikes in Britain.

Figures of the International Labor Organization bear him out.

Many British employers doubt whether any employer would be willing to take a union to court in a law suit that could damage his firm's industrial relations for years to come.

Algae Filters Eat Phosphates

ELGIN, Ont. (CP) — Scientists at the Rideau Institute research centre in this community near Kingston are working on a process which may eventually eliminate phosphates from industrial and domestic effluents.

In the experiment, effluents are filtered through three culture tanks in which algae are growing. The algae are expected to consume the phosphates.

Upturn in Economic Activity Seen for 1971

OTTAWA (CP) — A marked slowing in the growth of Canadian output during the second half of 1970 will be followed by a sharp acceleration in the first half of 1971, says an economic outlook report compiled by the 23-member Organization for Economic Co-Operation and Development.

Both the coming slower-growth period and the subsequent resurgence will be more marked in Canada than in the United States, but Canada's anti-inflation program will show more success, the report by the Paris-based international organization said.

The OECD, in the report released here and in Paris, said Canada's gross national product in the last half of 1970 will likely grow by only 1.75 per cent, compared with a 3.25-per-cent growth rate in the first half. But in the first half of next year, it should grow by 4.5 per cent.

The rate of inflation in Canada should fall from four per cent in the first half of this year to 3.5 by the second half, and then to three per cent in the first six months of 1971.

The OECD said "no general relaxation" should be made in Canada's current economic restraints. Some selective measures should be taken, however, to soften the burden of unemployment in parts of the country where it is excessively high.

Reviewing the last six months, the mid-year review said Canada enjoyed booming exports and prosperous conditions during a time when it was recovering from losses suffered in 1969 because of strikes.

The OECD noted that Canada's long-range objective is to reduce, and in time to eliminate, its international deficits on trade in goods and services and become a net exporter of capital as a relatively wealthy industrial country might be. It said fixing the dollar at a higher exchange rate depends on how the balance of payments works out.

The OECD made a "necessarily tentative" forecast that Canada's international payments for goods and services will be approximately balanced this year, but a deficit will develop again in the first half of 1971.

Airmen To Stage Reunion

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian airmen captured during the Second World War will meet here next week for a reunion with 14 British comrades from the "Great Escape" prison camp and with the German who held most of them captive.

For its 25th anniversary celebration Aug. 7-9, the Ex-Air Force Prisoners-of-War Association has arranged flight passage from Frankfurt for Hermann Glemnitz, the former Luftwaffe staff-sergeant responsible for security at Stalag Luft III, the major prison camp for downed airmen.

It was from Stalag Luft III that 76 prisoners escaped through a 320-foot tunnel on the night of March 23-24, 1944. All but three were recaptured, and 50 were shot.

Ex-Feldwebel Glemnitz, who was outwitted in his efforts to locate tunnels, is one of many German air force guards whom Allied airmen held in high regard for efforts to treat prisoners according to rules of war.

Ti-Cats Draw First Blood With 17-15 Win Over Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — In the dressing rooms, you couldn't tell the winning team from the loser.

Minutes after Hamilton Tiger-Cats drew first blood in the new Eastern Football Conference schedule by defeating Ottawa Rough Riders 17-15 Wednesday night, Hamilton coach Joe Restic was complaining bitterly about the officiating.

In the Ottawa room, coach Jack Gotta was making optimistic comments about his rookie quarterback Gary Wood and predicting Riders "will come along."

Restic said the work of referee Bill Shepherd of Toronto and his four-man crew was "unbelievable, unforgivable and abysmal."

He was particularly angry about an interference call on defensive halfback Bob Krouse. It gave Riders possession on the Hamilton 30 late in the third quarter while the teams were only a few points apart.

Restic said the call was made by lineman Lorne Wood of Ottawa, the official farthest away from the play. The other four on top of the play hadn't called it, he said.

Restic also was bitter about the single point Ticats got when Rider Billy Van Burkleo dropped to his knees in the Ottawa end zone.

Van Burkleo had fielded a Hamilton punt in his own zone, appeared to have run out of the end zone with it and then cut back in where he was tackled.

Officials ruled it a single point. Restic said the Ottawa back was "easily two yards out of his end" when he decided to re-enter it, and that Hamilton should have been awarded two points.

In the end though, it was Ottawa's inability to take advantages of golden scoring opportunities that decided the outcome. Hamilton grabbed four times in the last quarter alone; five times in all during the game. Quarterback Joe Zagre gave up three interceptions and Hamilton was nailed with three interference calls.

But Wood failed consistently to move Ottawa at key moments and 23,084 fans went away disappointed.

The game was played in near-90 degree temperatures and both coaches said the humid weather probably accounted for the five Hamilton fumbles.

Fullback Willie Bethea and Tommy Joe Coffey scored touchdowns for Hamilton. Bethea cracked over from three yards out after taking a lateral from Zagre, Coffey got his on a 13-yard pass.

Coffey also kicked a field goal, a single and a convert.

Fullback Jim Mackiza got Ottawa's only touchdown on a one-yard dive into the Hamilton end zone. Ivan MacMillan completed Ottawa scoring with two field goals, two singles and a convert.

On the night's work, Hamilton deserved the win.

Zagre completed 19 of 36 throws for 338 yards; Wood was able to complete 12 of 29 for 133. Ticats had 23 first downs to Ottawa's 15.

Led by halfback Dave Fleming who gained 60 yards on 13 carries, Hamilton also outrushed Ottawa 137 yards to 98.

Mackiza was Ottawa's best on the ground with 49 yards on 18 cracks.

Strike Threatens NFL Structure

CHICAGO (AP) — Like responding to the bugle call for a last-ditch battle, veteran National Football League players grouped in Chicago throughout Wednesday night in a show of strength against club owners in their latest pension dispute that now threatens the game's structure.

A spokesman for the NFL Players' Association said nearly 100 players had arrived by midnight.

The motel for the gathering reported that more players were expected and rooms were being set aside.

It was a chain reaction to owners who announced they would unlock their training camps and invited "any players willing to report" by 6 p.m. local times today.

It was a move obviously aimed at finding out if any veterans would defy the NFLPA and report, thus making a wedge that could lead to fulfillment of the pre-season schedule of games starting with Cleveland at Los Angeles a week from Friday.

However, as time begins to run out solidification against the owners apparently continued. By midnight, players' spokesmen from Cleveland Browns, Chicago Bears, New Orleans Saints and Kansas City Chiefs were among those definitely declaring they would not pass through the unlocked training camp doors.

The world champion Chiefs were unique in the situation. They were granted a week to prepare in camp for the all-star game Friday night.

Unless the dispute is settled the Chiefs will leave camp after the game.

The nub of the squabble is the demand by players for the owners to boost their four-year, $18,000,000 pension contribution offer. The NFLPA is asking for $36,000,000.

The NFLPA said it was shocked by the owners' action Wednesday to open training camps to veterans who wish to report. Rookies only have been in organized practices all along.

"We were shocked," a players' spokesman said Wednesday night, "that the owners did not notify the NFLPA of their decision and instead chose to go direct to the players."

"It could mean the splitting of teams and we are meeting to prevent just that," he said. "We are confident that all NFL players will support the association and we will do all within our power to resolve the dispute in accordance with the players' wishes."

TORONTO (CP) — When it comes to driving, Avelino Gomez belongs on a horse, not a golf cart.

Gomez, one of Canada's most renowned jockeys, who retired this year, drove a cart into a creek Tuesday while playing in a golf tournament.

Gomez and Dr. Bob Hoover, the Ontario Racing Commission's veterinarian who was riding with him, were not injured but a tow truck was needed to pull the cart out of the water.

NEW YORK (AP) — Ben Hogan won't say positively, but there's a good chance that he'll play in the Professional Golfers Association Championship — his first in 22 years — next month at Tulsa, Okla.

"I'm considering it," the 58-year-old all-time great said Wednesday at the unveiling of a Hogan portrait at Golf House.

The event will be played August 13-16 over the Southern Hills course where Tommy Bolt won the open in 1958.

Hogan will make one of his rare appearances in the $250,000 Westchester Classic, starting today at Harrison, N.Y. He faces all of the game's modern giants, including Masters champion Bill Casper, British Open winner Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino.

Hogan was the honored guest at ceremonies Wednesday which in effect formally enshrined him in golf's Hall of Fame.

Stamps Stomp Blue Bombers

CALGARY (CP) — Coach Jim Duncan praised flanker Gerry Shaw and defensive tackle John Helston "for making the big plays" Wednesday night, enabling Calgary Stampeders to whip Winnipeg Blue Bombers 34-18 in a Western Football Conference game.

"Shaw's second touchdown in the third quarter had to be the turning point of the game," Duncan said in an interview.

He said Winnipeg's defensive halfback Ed Ulmer "appeared to misjudge" a pass, allowing Shaw to scamper to the end zone for a 39-yard touchdown on a toss from quarterback Jerry Keeling.

The six-pointer wiped out a 16-8 Winnipeg lead and with the help of Rudy Linterman's convert gave the Stampeders a 14-19 margin.

"Without John's (Helton) play at left tackle we might have been in a lot of trouble," Duncan said. "That had to be his best game with this club—he did everything right."

Helton repeatedly broke through the Winnipeg offensive line and on two occasions nailed quarterback Wally Gabler for large losses.

But the Stampeders, who displayed a Bethea pop-gun attack in the first half, got the win when they erupted for 23 points in the final 30 minutes to prevent the Bombers from winning their first game at McMahon stadium since the 1965 playoffs.

The Bombers, who picked up nine first downs to nine for the Stampeders in the first half before 19,438 fans, held a 7-7 lead after the opening quarter on Gabler's 12-yard run and Gene Lakusiak's convert.

They increased their lead to 16-1 in the second quarter when Lakusiak booted a 23-yard field goal, set up by fullback Bob Houmard's 19-yard dash from the Calgary 36.

However, it was all Calgary in the second half as the Stampeders collected 15 first downs compared with three for the Bombers.

Shaw and tight end Herman Harrison each scored two touchdowns for Calgary. Harrison got one on a 12-yard pass from rookie quarterback Larry Lawrence in the final quarter Shaw's touchdown and Harrison's first came on passes from Keeling.

Fullback Hugh McKenzie and fellow other Calgary touchdown on a two-yard run. Linterman, who replaced place-kicker Larry Robinson, was good on three of five convert attempts. He also kicked a 25-yard single.

Robinson, Calgary's regular place kicker, missed the game due to strained knee ligaments.

Asked if he gave the Stampeders a pep talk after the first half, Duncan said:

"I didn't tell them a thing. They were a little tight in the first league game. In fact, both teams were tight as they were trying to see how the other club would play. But we got ourselves into a jam and worked ourselves out of it."

He said Keeling "wasn't throwing the ball that well but a couple of the boys made good catches on bad passes and Jerry came to life."

Keeling, who had two passes intercepted by safety Paul Brule, completed 13 of 23 passes for 228 yards. Linterman was good on one of three for 12 yards, and he also had a pass intercepted.

Halfback Dave Cranmer was the top Calgary rusher with 53 yards on seven carries. Houmard gained 48 yards on 13 tries.

In pass receiving, Bob McCarthy of the Stampeders caught four for 81 yards. Shaw hauled in three for 80 yards, while Winnipeg's Ken Nielsen caught four for 39 yards.

Gebler, who shared quarterbacking duties with rookie Ken Johnson in the second half, completed six of 20 passes for 72 yards. Johnson hit four receivers on eight attempts for 32 yards. They each had a pass intercepted.

Calgary collected a net offence of 361 yards compared with 127 by Winnipeg.

League play continues Friday night with Edmonton Eskimos visiting Regina for a game against the Roughriders.

Aaron, Morton Travel Different Roads

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hank Aaron is taking the high road; Carl Morton and Wayne Granger the low. And it's a good bet all three will arrive where they're going.

Aaron hammered a pair of clutch-high fast balls over the Atlanta Stadium fences Wednesday night, knocking in five runs and leading the Atlanta Braves to a 9-7 comeback victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

Morton, Montreal Expos precocious pitching ace, kept the ball down and loaded little Jerry Park while battling the Expos past San Diego 4-3 for his 14th victory of the season.

Granger, Cincinnati Reds gifted relief specialist, registered his 26th save of the year by tossing double play balls in the eighth and ninth innings as the Reds nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3.

Bobby Bonds drove in three runs with two homers as San Francisco Giants trimmed the New York Mets 4-3 and the Chicago Cubs slugged Houston Astros 9-3 in National League day games. Los Angeles Dodgers night game at Philadelphia with the Phillies was rained out.

Aaron's second homer of the game and his 29th of the year produced the last three of five Atlanta runs in the seventh inning, bringing the Braves back from a 6-4 deficit. He also drilled a two-run homer in the third and needs 19 to reach the 600 career mark surpassed by only two sluggers—Babe Ruth and Willie Mays.

"I hit high fast balls each time," Aaron said, "I just stuck the bat out there and I was surprised the ball carried so well.

"Can I hit 19 more this season? It depends on how many high fast balls they throw me."

Hoyt Wilhelm came out of the Braves' bullpen in the ninth to fan Richie Allen for the final out, stranding the tying runs on the bases. Allen and pinch-hitter Joe Hague homered for the Cardinals.

Morton, a one-time outfielder, became the second rookie to win 14—Cincinnati's Pat Zachry is the other—by checking the Padres on four hits. Rusty Staub, hitless in 12 previous at bats, provided the margin with a fifth-inning homer.

"I made fewer mistakes tonight," said Morton, who has lost six. "It was one of the better games I've pitched, considering the score. I want to pitch as well as I can every time I go out and I want to win 20 games."

Granger, who picked up 27 saves last year while setting a major league record of 90 record appearances, preserved Gary Nolan's 14th victory in 15 decisions after Pete Rose sent the Reds ahead in the sixth with a two-run single.

Granger replaced Clay Carroll with one out and two on in the eighth and fed Manny Sanguillen a double play pitch, then he got Dave Cash to bounce into a game-ending double play after ninth-inning singles by Gene Alley and Bill Mazeroski.

Despite the loss, the Pirates remained one game ahead of second-place New York in the East Division race, thanks to the timely hitting of San Francisco's Bonds.

After a one-hour, 43-minute rain delay in the fifth, Bonds, who had singled two singles and a bases-empty homer off Met starter Jerry Koosman earlier, slammed a two-run homer off reliever Rich Folkers to send the Giants ahead 3-2. Don Mc-Mahon handed the Mets over the last three innings in relief of winner Lee Pslock.

Billy Williams, Johnny Callison and Randy Hundley homered in a six-run first-inning burst that sent the Cubs and left-hander Ken Holtzman sweeting past the Astros. Holtzman scattered eight hits, including a homer by Doug Rader, to snap Houston's winning string at three games.

AL Strikeout Kings Finally Snap Slumps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bill Melton and Dave Chance, the strikeout kings, have finally broken out of their slumps.

Melton, Chicago White Sox outfielder who struck out 10 times in as many official at bats until he filed out Tuesday night, made contact Wednesday night with two hits that keyed the White Sox 2-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Chance, perhaps the worst hitter in baseball, also had two important hits that started the Cleveland Indians to a 9-8 squeaker over the Minnesota Twins.

Chance shrugged off the finish of his seven-year slump.

"Why are you so surprised?" he asked. "I'm not a big thing at all. Once before I got two hits in one game and I got those off the best pitcher in baseball—Sam McDowell."

With both division leaders losing, only Detroit Tigers were able to take advantage with a 10-3 victory over Kansas City to pull within six games of the Orioles in the East. California Angels were beaten by the New York Yankees 8-3 and remained seven back of the Twins in the West.

In other games, Boston Red Sox stopped Oakland Athletics 4-1 and Washington Senators nudged Milwaukee 4-3.

Melton, who tied a record last Friday by fanning seven times in a doubleheader, and then added three more whiffs in his next game Tuesday night before hitting the ball, was a new man Wednesday night.

After popping out in the first inning and flying out in the fourth, he smashed a double to open the seventh, and scored the tying run on Duane Josephson's single.

Then in the ninth, he singled with one out, moved to third on Josephson's single, off loser Jim Hardin, 2-2, and scored the winning run on Bob Spence's sacrifice fly off reliever Pete Richert.

Chance, who had only one hit in 36 at bats this season—better than usual for him—stunned the Twins with a run-scoring single to the second inning after Harmon Killebrew's 32nd homer in the first for Minnesota. Lester Brown Jr. worked in another run.

Then in the third, Chance beat out a bunt with the bases loaded for a run, and Vada Pinson followed with a seventh grand slam homer of his career.

The Indians built a 8-1 lead when Graig Nettles hit his 18th homer in the fourth and Buddy Bradford doubled in the fifth for the first of Minnesota. Lester Brown Jr. worked in another run.

Chance, 4-5, gave up Tony Oliva's 16th homer in the sixth and then left after walking the leadoff man in the eighth.

Detroit took advantage of Kansas City boo boos for six unearned runs in the fifth inning, two of them on Don Wert's homer.

With two out and two on in the fifth, outfielder Lou Piniella appeared to lose a fly ball in the lights and two runs scored on the two-base error. Then center fielder Amos Otis seemed to misjudge Bill Freehan's liner and it went for a two-run triple.

The Yankees also took advantage of three California errors to build a 6-0 lead en route to their win. The loss was the seventh in eight games for the slumping Angels. The Yankees swept the three-game series.

Ray Culp, 11-9, turned in the best pitching performance of the day, a five-hitter with 11 strikeouts, as he outpitched Oakland's Diego Segui, 6-7. George Thomas doubled in Boston's first two runs and singled in another in a two-run ninth as the Red Sox ended Oakland's seven-game winning streak.

Frank Howard's 29th homer with a man on in the fifth inning put Washington ahead 2-0, and Mike Epstein's leadoff blast in the eighth broke a 3-3 deadlock, ending Lew Krausse's personal six-game winning string.

Area Fishing Still Popular Despite Pollution Questions

By RANDY DERRY
Staff Sportswriter

Despite warnings of mercury pollution, sewage pollution and whatever else people can dream up to waterways, fishing in the Quinte district continues at its normal pace, drawing anglers from all over Ontario and the Northern States.

Well known for its many lakes and streams, this region has been one of the top areas for sport fishing in Eastern and Central Ontario. A fisherman can choose the b a i t and the pole he needs for the successful catching of any one of the wide variety of f i s h found in the region. B a s s, trout, pickerel, and pike are more of the abounding species in our waterways.

Reports from the Tweed Lands and Forest Department state that fishing in general is fair in the district with the species most abundant varying in the three regions comprising their jurisdiction. Trout seems to be the favorite in Bancroft area while pickerel and pike are in the Napanee area and a cross section of all the species at Tweed.

"Napanee and Tweed are the districts for warm water fish while Bancroft and further north seems to be where the cold-water fish are," states a representative of the Tweed department. "Muskie is a little slow but you have to be pretty good to bring in a muskie. You just can't send out an amateur to land these things, in fact the weight limit for one of these big ones is usually 50 hours."

The warm weather is slowing the fishing down but the number of people out fishing is as high as ever. "Over 500 people are sending in reports of their fishing but really we should be getting up to 2,000. We want the fishermen in the district to send in reports of where they were fishing, the lake and township, the number of people in the party, how hours fished and number of fish caught. If we can get this information we can tell what areas need more work, or if the environment is suitable for the species there."

ng

If the environment is suitable or not is a question to wonder about as a large number of fishermen are quite worried about the problem of mercury pollution. But one of the less bothered by the question of our dying water is local angler and proprietor of his own Sports's Shop Bob Bland, "It's been here for years but it hasn't killed anyone yet, I'll admit sometimes it gets really bad, for instance the fish in Stoco Lake don't the water was just like iron. Actually it's about time the government is waking up to this problem of pollution but there are still letting the little things go that lead to the bigger problems. The factories dumping sewage and waste into the streams and creeks that flow into the bays and lakes but nothing is done about it."

Whatever the solutions are fishing won't wait as it continues just as strong as ever. "There's a big draw to the Bancroft fishing etc. but right now there are more fishermen at Traverse Point than on the whole American side released from the ministers office in Ottawa very shortly.

Juniors Drop Second in Row As City Surges for Top Spot

The Richard Ellis Juniors dropped their second game in as many nights Wednesday as they were edged 3-2 in nine innings by the surging City Hotelmen. The loss coupled with Frankford's 6-2 victory over Point Anne leaves the Juniors and Rollins tied in first place but with the Constructioneers having a game in hand.

The Juniors jumped off to an early 2-0 lead after one inning on Cliff Scott's triple and singles by Paul Goodfellow and Ted Wallis. The score remained the same until the bottom of the seventh when City scored two runs on back - to - back singles by Rusty Garvin and Larry Potter and a costly Junior error. Larry Potter was again on base for winning run as he reached first after being hit by Wallis. A sacrifice by Don Gardiner and a long fly ball by Bob Ebber scored Potter for the winning run.

Bob Ebber chalked up the City win giving up eight hits while fanning 11 Junior batters. Potter with two singles and Garvin, Gary Gow and Peg Kellar with singles were the hitters for the third place Hotelmen who have put on a surge of late making a real challenge for the Intermediate League pennant.

Ted Wallis fell to his second loss of the season although he fanned four and walked four. Goodfellow and Wallis with two singles and Cliff Scott adding his triple. Wallis had two single and Goodfellow and Dale Duval with one single apiece.

Rollins and Point Anne continued for a real slug-fest in the first game of the doubleheader won by Rollins 10-6.

The Constructioneers exploded for eight runs in the first three innings before Point Anne reached the scoreboard with two runs in the third.

A fit of wildness by Cornerstone starter Jim Holdcroft consoled for most of the Rollins homerunners in the opening frame as he walked four and hit two batters. In fact he had only one hit against him in his one and a third innings but gave up five runs before Jamie Hunter relieved in the second. Brian Harder's triple in the sixth was the big blast for Rollins. Rick Rosebush's triple in the third drove in two Point Anne runs and that was all until the sixth. Carl Boomhower came out of left field to pitch for Rollins in the sixth and was greeted by Dennis Maher's triple and Vern Whalen's home run and four runs. McConnell, who started for Rollins, came back in to put out the fire.

Wayne McConnell gave up five hits in the route going but two third innings while fanning four and walking three. Boomhower was touched for three runs on two hits and one walk in his third of a inning on the mound. Brian Harder had a triple and single for the winners with Jerry Hill adding a double. Skip Belch and Boomhower each had singles for the first place Rollins.

Jamie Hunter gave up five runs and five hits in relief for Point Anne. He fanned one and walked the same. Vern Whalen's homer and Rick Rosebush's triple and single were the big hits for the Cornerstoners. Dennis Maher also had a triple and singles went to Mike Cook, Ray Summers and Gerald Maher.

After 60 Years of Marriage, The Legaults Still Good Sports

By GEORGE H. CARVER

When you see the old man with the scythe waving your 90th birthday announcement over the horizon, try going out and playing nine holes of golf.

Like me, you'd be due for the old rockin' chair but not Leo Legault. The spry gentleman - and his sportsminded helpmeet fling the gauntlet of defiance into the face of time and dare it to do its worst.

Joe and Mrs. Legault, who live on Everett Street, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary the other day.

As part of the celebration, Joe shot nine holes of golf on the country club links with three silver - thatched tee buddies ,Will Leporte, Ernie Curnett and Clarence Donnelly ... Scores remained a secret.

Mrs. Legault, 83, one of the city's finest five - pin and lawn bowling players, marked the occasion with bowling friends at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club.

Joe gave up his five - pinning a few years ago but these warm summer days sees him out country club way.

He was better than the average run of golfers, bowlers and figure skaters, his favorite sports. At one time he had enough trophies to fill a box car but lost a lot of them in a disastrous fire some years ago.

Joe never brags about his sports prowess. A few years ago he came up (with a five - pin triple of 825 with singles of 281-286-318. Try that on your favorite bowling alley - chaum when you're nearing the 90 - mark.

He was born with all the requisites of a good bowler — not a world champion perhaps, but he developed a consistency that even today rates him among the top - pin-spinners of the district. For three decades he wowed us season with a 200 average.

Joe is one of the few city keglers who has realized the bowler's dream, a perfect game. Some years ago in Peterborough he rolled the convicted "300" in a tournament at the Duffus Lanes. He came home with head high, and packets bulging with awards including a $100 cheque.

Joe was equally at home on the putting green and there's plenty of "links loot" in his trophy room. Joe has also been at an unique golfing record. He is one, if not the only one, who played the game 52 months of the year, on two separate occasions.

He took his clubs and golf balls to the frozen waters of the Bay of Quinte and got in his share of shots, drives and putts.

He would tee off at the government dock and "stroke" it over to the country club. He did it once in 36 and of course his ambition was to break 36 on record. However the "36" mark still stands.

And "on land" Joe was better than the average run-of - nine golfer. He used to shoot in an over - 70 on the Bay of Quinte course and was good for an 80 on the 72 - par course on the old Belleville Golf Club.

He was a figure skater some years ago but never bragged of his exploits. The trophies tell the story. He never went for hockey or the bib and single is a losing effort.

Golden Miles 21-0 win was marked by Peter Hall's homer and two doubles. Glen Andrews had a double and single and Danny Duffy two doubles for the victors. Hall and Dennis Green fired the victory for the Mile fanning 11 and walking nine.

Mike Burke and Andy Lupsetts took the loss for Harvey's giving up 17 walks and fanned 13. Burke had a homer and Joel Bushel had a triple and single for the losers.

diamond sports. He was happy with his winter skating — and economical way — with his lazy summer days on the golf course.

And his gracious lady Mrs. L., has always been at his side, especially in sports.

Engraved from a recent serious operation, Mrs. Legault celebrated her 83rd birthday by indulging in her favorite summer sport, lawn bowling.

As was noted, she was a noted "five-pinner" in her younger days and I was once told there were times Mrs. L. could take the "old man" in a stiff bout of alley bowling.

Mulroney's Sunoco Sweep Tadpole Double-Header

Mulroney's Sunoco tadpoles found a rare Belleville Minor Baseball doubleheader to their liking Wednesday night as they swept the two games from Motorland Chrysler 15-8 and 20-1.

In the later - games last night the Lions Club tykes edged Alhambra 120 6-5 and the Golden Mile tykes whipped Harvey's Hamburgs 21-9.

Wayne Deighton fired the opening win for Mulroney's fanning nine and walking four. He also added a triple and home run to his winning cause. Shawn Mulroney crunched a homer and single and Lyle Kelleher had a solo homer.

Steve Belch, Rusty Andrews and Brad Begbee all saw action on the Motorland mound together fanned four and walked 11. Begbee, Andrews and Mike Vent each had singles for the losers.

Shawn Mulroney picked up the second victory fanning seven and walking two. Deighton again had a field day at the plate for the Sunoco team hitting two home runs. Brother Larry added a double and a single and pitcher Mulroney had two singles for the winners.

Rusty Andrews and Steve Belch took the loss for Motorland giving up 15 walks while striking out four batters.

Howie Coons and Gary Rideout pitched the Lions 6-5 victory picking up 16 strikeouts and walking four batters. Allen Young had a double and single and Brian Hill had two singles for the winners.

Gary Stapely and Billy Sills were tagged with the loss for Alhambra fanning 15 and walking three. Sills had a dou-

League Champions Finish with Win

Plane's Concrete finished out their season on a winning note by winning a 7-3 decision over the Reserve in the only South Hastings League game played last night.

Bernie Coughlan pitched a three - hitter to record the win. He gave up two walks and fanned eight batters.

George Hill was touched for seven hits fanning five and walking four batters.

Ted Abrams singled twice for Plane's with Doug Rollins and Bernie Coughlin each belting a double. Bob Lafferty, Ron Urch and John Tweedy collected the other hits.

Green, Hill and Bud O'Connor were the only batters to hit safely off Coughlin.

New Role for Peyton Placer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dr. Michael Rossi is still suffering in reruns of Peyton Place, but the actor who played him, Ed Nelson, gets a new role this fall: Undercover agent.

His new series is The Silent Force, a 10-minute action show on ABC which will depict a three-man war against organized crime, in a way, the series is a throwback to the days when television abounded with T-men and G-men. In recent seasons only The FBI has devoted an occasional episode to cleaning up the crime syndicate.

Nelson, actress Lynda Day and another Peyton Place alumnus, Percy Rodrigues, will play a small force working under assumed names which each week will out a "fantastic" of the sprawling octopus.

Complying with recent requests from the capital, organized crime and the syndicate will have broad identification without any suggestion of ethnic origin—specifically no mention of Mafia or Cosa Nostra.

In line with long-established TV policy, the bad guys will have bland Anglo-Saxon type names like Smith and Brown. To avoid other complications, the undercover agents will refer vaguely to their home office merely as "Washington."

While The Silent Force will certainly nail the villains, there is some worry about corralling the audience.

The series, along with another new show, The Young Lawyers is scheduled Monday nights, and in most parts of the country will be followed by a live professional football game. But because of the three-hour time difference between the east and west coasts, the two programs will follow the game in the west. Since the length of football games is unpredictable and rival networks have powerful lineups of programmers, there is considerable nail-biting by the casts of the two series.

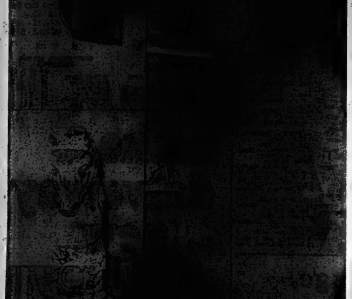
Picton Castle-Boutique Shop Has Unique Array of Gifts

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — When a man becomes "king of a castle" how should he spend his summer vacation? Accompanied by his queen he could pass the long hot summer dangling his feet in the moat but it would be a no born holiday at best.

Mr. and Mrs. James McDougall, a Toronto couple vacationing in Castle Villeneuve overlooking Picton Harbor, have discovered a practical way to enjoy palace life by opening The Boutique. Situated in a spacious corner of the castle's grounds, The Boutique's eleven quiet with a queen's ransom of ceramic pieces, eye-catching antiques and frankly fake jewelry.

Featured in the craft shop's ceramic collection is the work of Toronto artist Mrs. Paddy. In Mrs. Paddy's display is "Christmas in July", a miniature replete with green decorated with domes of colored lights powered by a single bulb. The tiny tree topped with the traditional star, hides a music box which plays one of the classic Christmas carols. This novelty item should appeal to the nonsense hunter determined to remember a friend with something different.



For the woman who admires "rings on her fingers" Toronto craftswoman Dorothy Netherton has created a giant jewel case filled with gem stone originals. Flashing in velvet ring trays are amethysts, turquoises and many other stones, all polished and set by Mrs. Netherton.

This gem craft, properly termed lapidary work, features both native and imported stones. Some of these stones are dyed to bright colors before being set in rings, bracelets, pendants, necklaces or earrings.

A vivacious woman who finds castle life challenging, Mrs. MacDougall sews colorful pandora, beach shifts and whimsical hats for sale in The Boutique. She notes that this summer she has accepted a small consignment of antiques in the shop. Among these pieces is a handsomely carved piano stool upholstered in rich tones of red and gold.

Coupled with The Boutique's "something old" are a number of real items that are definitely very new. Mrs. MacDougall observed that her plastic flowers are sellouts with each shipment.

Strung across the ceiling in the shop are wind chimes which tinkle fabulously when chased by a summer breeze. The sound of these blended with The Boutique's display of antiques, ceramics and gem stones creates an atmosphere of originality. For the tourist bored by staffing his suitcase with peasants stamped "a souvenir of Picton" The Boutique offers special mementoes for "the folks back home."

A Horse of Many Colors

With a handcrafted ceramic horse is Mrs. James McDougall, proprietor of The Boutique on the grounds of the Castle Villeneuve overlooking Picton Harbor. The ceramic art work of Mrs. Eileen Puddy is a major attraction at the little shop which serves the needs of souvenir, trinket and novelty hunters.

Sidewalk Sale Opens

TRENTON (Staff) — Merchandise displays will abound in Trenton's downtown business section for the next three days.

The occasion is the "Third Annual Sidewalk Sale" sponsored by the Trenton Retail Merchants Association.

Donald Krock, chairman of the Retail Merchants Association, told The Intelligencer that his organization would attempt to provide a carnival and holiday atmosphere for the occasion this Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"Businesses will be clearing out their summer stock for fall merchandise and there definitely should be bargains," he stressed.

It is expected that the sidewalk sale will be centred on Trenton's main business thoroughfare, Dundas Street West.

DIFFICULT DIRECTING

Comedian Jack Carter, who has been signed to direct Lucille Ball in one of her new seasons Here's Lucy episodes was quoted as saying: "Directing Lucy is like trying to flag down the Super Chief with a cigar lighter."

External Affairs Department Suffers Severe Blood-letting

OTTAWA (CP) — A year ago he was a much-travelled Canadian diplomat, multilingual, with more than 15 years of experience and seemingly well-regarded by his bosses in the external affairs department.

Today, he holds down a minor government administrative job, doing work he would have considered beneath his talents a dozen years ago.

In a year, his salary has dipped by more than $6,000, he says. He doesn't pretend to be reconciled to his present position, but comments philosophically: "It's bread and butter."

In different ways, the same story has been repeated many times in recent months as external affairs has gone through the trauma of a staff reduction and reorganization program dictated by the government's austerity measures.

It seems safe to say that the score opened by the "blood-letting"—the expression used by one responsible officer—will be some time healing.

The Professional Association of Foreign Service Officers, the working diplomat's bargaining unit, says bluntly that the results did not justify the hardship or the effect on morale.

Official figures show that the Canada-based staff strength in the department—all staff except that in the passport office and embassy has been recruited locally abroad—was trimmed by 230 to 2,008 in the eight-month period ended June 30.

The number of foreign service officers, personnel who carry out diplomatic functions, dropped by 54 to about 680.

Though 33 such officers received dismissal notices, only four were laid off from the government service. Another three officers, senior personnel, were retired early.

The total number of external affairs personnel laid off was 11.

Built of the manpower saving came from attrition, retirements and resignations not offset by new recruitment.

Altogether, 63 employees, diplomatic and non-diplomatic, were declared surplus. Nine were reassigned back into the department. The rest, new-paying jobs.

Thirty-one were assigned to other government departments, frequently at lower salary levels.

Nine officers were assigned to other departments on a temporary basis "seconded" in the public service jargon.

"It was a pretty harrowing experience," says the former counsellor who, after much looking around outside the public service, finally accepted another job within the department as a precipitous decline in salary.

Another counsellor, ultimately seconded, says his mother and sister-in-law still show shock symptoms six months after getting the dismissal notice that climaxed a long career in the foreign service.

Beyond the human factor, however, there is criticism about the allegedly adverse effect which the retrenchment program is having on the physical operations of the department, at home and abroad.

External Affairs Undersecretary A. E. Ritchie acknowledges some validity in the frequently-heard charge that the work of the department has not lessened in proportion to the 11-per-cent overall manpower cut, even though those laid off were adjudged "surplus to requirements."

"In fact, we're trying to carry on almost as large a program with a reduced number of people," says Mr. Ritchie, who labelled the staff imbroglio when he took over as top man in the department about this time a year ago.

"We are now examining our priorities to determine what things should continue to be done within our capacities," he told The Canadian Press. "This may mean some activities will be further restricted or alternatively that there will be some improvement in resources of money and personnel available to us."

President John Sharpe of the foreign service officers association said in a personal statement that the impact of the government's expenditure guidelines was particularly severe—and unnecessary—on the foreign service.

"Over a slightly longer period of time and on a planned basis the same savings could have been achieved through the process of attrition."

Most of those let go enjoyed publicity but an exception is Allan Millard, 36, a foreign service officer ranked after 13 years. Mr. Millard got his notice after failing to win a promotion.

In a widely-publicized case, he took legal action on grounds that natural justice had been denied him: two members of the promotion board were candidates for the same type of advancement.

Mr. Millard was upheld in the Supreme Court of Ontario, but decided against pursuing his appeal within the department.

"I no longer wanted to work for the government, except possibly for the Canadian International Development Agency," says Mr. Millard, father of three.

He was dickering for a job with CIDA when the 140,000-member Canadian Union of Public Employees offered him the position of executive assistant to president Stanley Little. He took the job, which pays $15,000 to start—comparable to what he was earning in external affairs.

Another employee told of sending out more than 100 letters trying to land a university job—and not getting one.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Preparation Best For Natural Birth

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 8-months pregnant with my first baby and have at last made the decision to have my baby by natural birth. My closest friend has had two of her babies this way, and has at last talked me into it. I'm going to ask my obstetrician about it when I see him tomorrow.

I'm surprised at my own bravery. Normally, I'm aquamish about pain. In fact I can't stand it very much. But I figure that my friend is right in saying, "Our grandmothers and great-grandmothers had a sad time babies without any anesthesia frills, why can't we?"

At first I was thinking of having a general anesthetic, but I changed my mind because I wanted to be awake when my baby first cried. Then, I also considered having "saddle-block" or some other form of local anesthetic, but as I say, I'm determined to stick to natural child birth. May I have your opinion? — Mrs. O.

Comment: I believe that your doctor's opinion — when you visit him tomorrow — will be much more rational than mine. He knows you, your temperament, how you react to pain, your physical condition, and the size and position of your baby.

I don't think it's necessary for a mother to make a firm decision about having a natural birth. For example, if there is a breech presentation in a mother who is having her first child, a few whiffs of gas or some other anesthetic may do much to take the edge off the labor pains.

Perhaps you are too sensitive to pain (as you have suggested) and would be silly to refuse helpful anesthetics. It's true that our grandmothers had their babies by natural birth. Perhaps working the tax fields developed their muscles and strength. Besides, they had no choice: anesthesia was unknown.

Your decision to have natural child birth comes a bit late. You and your doctor should have talked it over much earlier. He would have advised you about taking proper breathing exercises and muscle development which make child bearing so much easier. Reading books about it helps.

What I have been saying is that choosing natural birth technique should not be a "last minute" decision. Many women have had successful results by relying on natural birth — but in most cases they prepared for it early. (Ask your friend about it. Mrs. O. Chances are she will say she did too.)

Dear Dr. Steincrohn. If exercise is so important for the heart — as many doctors say — then why is the heart-attack patient kept in bed so quietly for weeks after his attack? Why shouldn't he be allowed to walk around right away? — Mrs. U.

Comment: Because the wounded heart requires special care and rest to prevent sudden mechanical failure — or sudden "electrical" failure, which may produce unnaturally rapid irregular beats like ventricular fibrillation. It takes at least 4-6 weeks for initial healing of the infarct in the heart muscle.

Consider a heart attack more than an ordinary sprain. For example, when a bone is broken, the doctor puts it into a cast until it heals and strengthens. You might say that the heart-attack patient is put into a "bed-cast" temporarily.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Politic First Meant Wise

Thoughts at Large:

Hard is believe, isn't it, that when the word "politic" first appeared in English, its original meaning was "wise" and "prudent"? • • •

A frank and open husband or one who is free to tell his wife anything he is sure she will find out later anyway.

• • •

No man is more dangerous than a "man of common sense: as Moliere put it three centuries ago: "Un sot savant est sot plus que sot ignorant." ("An erudite fool is a greater fool than an ignorant fool.") • • •

If the hoary metaphor that all the world's a stage is true, it is equally true that most people spend their lives in the audience or in the wings, leaving the main "politic" first appeared in English, its original meaning was "wise" and "prudent"? • • • stage and action after they have departed as before they arrived.

• • •

Genuine nobility of character comes to its finest test on a ship — if you can be the only one aboard who isn't seasick and still not feel a tinge of superiority, not to mention heartiness.

• • •

After a few years of marriage, a couple can get along very well without loving one another, but not without respecting one another.

• • •

Americans who imagine that our political invective is fiercely personal ought to recall the kind of thing said by Disraeli in the British Parliament 100 years ago; in speaking of Lord John Russell, the Prime Minister observed: "If a traveller were informed that such a man was leader of the House of Commons, he might begin to comprehend how the ancient Egyptians worshipped an insect."

• • •

The higher you go in an organization, the more you know about machinery, but the less about its physiology — so that a President can kick off every basic muscle and nerve-end, but is puzzled when the organism shows symptoms of indigestion; flatulence or heart failure.

• • •

There will be no rest, and no release, for the human spirit as long as any membership keep confusing the pursuit of pleasure with the pursuit of happiness.

• • •

A modern "statesman" is a man who doesn't read his own speeches when he gives them; he knows only that the man who delivered these words in 1984 — "Victory is no longer a dirty word: it is only a word to describe who is left alive in the ruins" — was Lyndon B. Johnson.

• • •

How languages differ — the most frequent word in English was not used at all in Latin, and has no Latin equivalent. (Also, there was no Latin word for "yes.")

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For July 31

Your birthday today: This year it is much easier of a scramble to get ahead, or to get a start. The urgency that besets you has a ready outlet in commercial ventures, so is the case with scientific, philosophic and other noncommercial activity. So much of the action is new that you have to devise ways of achieving your goals. Today's natives seldom fully understand their inner strength. They talk themselves into and out of most of their troubles.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Romantic interests advance today with Libra influence. Finish the workweek at the usual quitting time. Make it a lively evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Put in an extra effort so as to make nothing incomplete at month's end. Home conditions are better, comfortable. Do something for somebody you love.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Financial matters, re-arrangements of belongings take up much time and energy today. Older people thrive a bit better.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Push personal matters vigorously; get things lined up so you know where you stand. Your confidence builds. Romantic events are promising.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Today is good for confidential work, particularly if you have protective habits. You may even have to invest something to celebrate to avoid giving away your technical knowledge.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your dreams are now a little closer to reality. Perhaps at present you can get at least a rehearsal of just one of them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Make every effort to wind up the month with a good-sized achievement, perhaps the perfection of some move or gambit in your hobby.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Introductions to people and customs from afar are good for the mind today. Marriage and partnership situations become somewhat happier.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Aside from a growing chance to receive financial help from a second job, your taste for gourmet foods is likely to get you involved in overeating or overtaxing your digestion. Enjoy yourself!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): It is as if you are prematurely off duty, finished with your work and running (it's a word). Leave work early and find a quiet place with different people around.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): If you will rearrange and improve your home, some special advantage develops — a chance of using the situation to increase future earnings.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Indulge a touch of wanderlust, but don't just drift — look for strange customs, new scenes and ideas. The sketch may determine how to handle that particular matter in the future.

Compulsory Sex Bad

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP) — CBC producer Erich Koch told a Couchiching Conference on Love and the Establishment Wednesday that elderly people feel pressured by society into continuing to have sex relations.

It is assumed to be good for old people even though they may want a tranquil life, free of physical sex, he said.

Meeting with Bales Planned

Construction Unions Delay One-day Strikes

HAMILTON (CP) — The Ontario Building and Construction Trades Council has postponed planned one-day strikes pending the outcome of a meeting with Labor Minister Dalton Bales Aug. 14.

Ken Martin of London, council president, and Henry Kobryn of Windsor, council secretary, made the announcement Wednesday after an invitation from Tom Eberlee, deputy labor minister, to meet for an exchange of views on proposed amendments to the Labor Act.

"We hope to convince Mr. Bales that the proposed amendments are anti-labor and should be scrapped," Mr. Kobryn said.

The Toronto meeting will be followed by a session in Hamilton Aug. 20 at which representatives of building-trade unions will hear a report on the meeting and decide on further action.

The strikes were scheduled to start Friday with a work stoppage by about 7,000 workers in London and Windsor.

The Toronto Building and Construction Trades Council protested Maple Leaf Gardens for Aug. 18 and had issued invitations to workers across the province to hear union views about the proposed amendments.

"We will have to follow the provincial executive's lead on this," said Clive Ballantine, business representative of the Toronto council.

But "I don't expect very much" from the meeting of union leaders with Mr. Bales, he added.

Mr. Martin said the London council had cancelled a rally planned for Friday and he expected the Essex-Kent council would follow suit.

The Windsor Construction Association sent a telegram to members of the Essex and Kent Counties Building Council Wednesday saying if no members of the construction trades report for work Friday "we shall consider it as a direct violation of the collective agreement and its effect and we shall be compelled to take appropriate action."

John McInnis, president of the council, said the telegram was a threatening message and the union was not going to knuckle under.

The labor-law amendments that provoked the construction trades were introduced in the legislature June 22 and are scheduled to become law when sittings resume in October.

The amendments would permit employers in the construction industry to form associations to bargain collectively with each of the trade unions.

Unions and companies would be responsible for damages in illegal strikes or lockouts and fines for violations would be raised ten-fold to $1,000 for individuals and $10,000 for companies and unions.

Threatening illegal strikes would become illegal and the Ontario Labor Relations Board would be given wide powers to order such strikes stopped.

Army Plays Host to Young Hikers

OTTAWA (CP) — Many of those unregimented, anti-establishment kids hiking in droves across Canada this summer are spending their nights as house guests of the army—and both host and guests say they're pleased with the arrangement.

The youths are packing the 13 armories the government has designated as summer youth hostels.

Operated jointly by the state secretary's department and the defence department in Ottawa and local groups, the capacity of the hostels ranges from about 30 to about 200 beds.

A bed for the night is free, and in some places one meal a day is also provided.

One travelling student had special praise for the hostel in Kingston, Ont., where guests are accepted 24 hours a day and there are no officious "registration hassles."

An official in Ottawa said behavior, including fears about drug use, had posed no problems. He said the running of each hostel has been put in the hands of local workers familiar with the youth scene.

The Vancouver hostel has had the most trouble with crowding. The city is a favorite destination for this year's young travelers.

The hostels will operate until schools open in September. Projected cost of the project is $250,000.

The hostels are located in St. John's, Nfld., Charlottetown, Longueil near Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton, London, Kingston and Thunder Bay, Winnipeg, Calgary Edmonton, Revelstoke, B.C., and Vancouver.

TORONTO (CP) — Bruce Kidd, noted for his long-distance running ability in the early 1960s, announced Wednesday he will contest the New Democratic Party nomination in the provincial riding of Beaches-Woodbine.

Tugs Release Alaska Ferry

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) — Four powerful tugs pulled the 253-foot Alaska Ferries vessel Taku off the rocky shoreline of Kinahan Island early today.

The Taku ran aground Wednesday with its 224 persons aboard. There were no serious injuries.

A radio man aboard the 3,204-horsepower tug Rivtow Lion said the Taku, lightened by removal of passengers, most of the crew and 71 vehicles, was pulled free at high tide and then anchored offshore for a damage survey.

"She's got two holes in her as far as we can see," the radio man said.

Meanwhile, a three-mile oil slick that flowed from the Taku's ruptured oil tanks appeared to be headed seaward. Department of Transport planes dropped the detergent Seachem over the slick in an attempt to break it up and DOT officials put a log boom around the stricken ship to keep any more oil from flowing away.

The Taku has a reported oil-carrying capacity of nearly 127,000 gallons, and had taken on fuel at Ketchikan, Alaska—less than 600 miles Northwest of Prince Rupert—only hours earlier.

The Taku's outer hull was punctured and light diesel fuel poured from the bow tanks between the inner and outer hulls. Company officials said, however, that the spill was brought under control after only 17,000 gallons had escaped.

There were 207 passengers and 45 crew members aboard the ferry, enroute to Prince Rupert from Juneau, Alaska. Apparently, she missed a marker buoy by a half-mile and steamed onto the mile-long island at a speed of 17 knots.

Kinahan Island stands between the open sea and this northern B.C. port of 16,000 people.

Car-makers To Be Sued By States

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — State Attorney-General Duke Dunbar Tuesday authorized Colorado's participation, with more than a dozen other states, in a United States Supreme Court suit Aug. 4, to charge that the Big Four auto manufacturers have conspired since the 1950s to keep motor vehicle air pollution-control equipment off the market.

The states intend to ask the court to issue an injunction requiring the auto manufacturers to install at their own expense effective anti-pollution devices on all vehicles manufactured after a date set by the court.

Named in the action will be General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp., and the Automobile Manufacturers, Inc., Colorado officials said.

U.S. Planning To Dump Gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representative Cornelius E. Gallagher (Dem. N.J.) said today the government is planning to move a trainload of nerve gas through the South this summer and then dump it in the Atlantic Ocean.

He said he's been assured the army has taken every precaution to ensure safe disposal of the deadly GB gas, now obsolete and stored in liquid form at the Blue Grass Munitions Depot near Lexington, Ky.

The gas is to be loaded onto a navy vessel at Huntington and towed 250 miles out to sea, and sunk in 1,500 feet of water.

Heat Wave May End Before Civic Holiday

Quinte Area Camps Filled

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The long August weekend zoned into the Quinte district today — the holiday starts as hot, humid and hazy as the sweltering week it leaves behind.

Relief is on the way. Somewhere out there, obscured by the week-long heat mist, cooler air is gathering momentum for a predicted arrival sometime Sunday.

Meantime, the weather may compound some problems as Quinte dwellers seek to escape the relentless heat mass that has stifled urban areas all week long.

The lands and forests department at Tweed today report provincial park camp sites in its area already filled — although accommodation was still available at Presqu'ile near Brighton.

And provincial police were envisioning that heavy holiday traffic could multiply further with best-the-best flights into open spaces.

The holiday weekend arrives in the wake of the highest humidity reading of the year so far.

The duty forecaster at CFB Trenton said the humidex, scale — which indicates the degree of discomfort caused by combined temperature and air moisture — reached 100 Wednesday and Thursday. Humidex ratings between 70-84° are considered comfortable. Before noon today the humidex rating was 94.

Weather forecasts call for continued hot and humid weather today and Saturday with isolated showers and thunderstorms. High temperatures should remain in the mid-80s.

Cooling air is expected to move into the district sometime Sunday bringing temperature highs down to 80 degrees.

Little hope of finding a holiday haven from the heat in provincial parks north and south of Belleville was in the offing as the weekend started.

At lands and forests official at Outlet Park — the area's most popular provincial resort — said the park's 482 campsites have been filled since earlier in the week.

A small overflow area at the Sandbanks — about 50 sites — also was filled.

The no-vacancy situation for campers was expected to last until at least Monday, he said, and park officials were directing campers to private resort areas.

At the north end of the Quinte district Bon Echo provincial park has been full all week, at lands and forests official at the department's Tweed district office reported.

As of 9 p.m. today Black Lake park — near Sharbot Lake — only had a few vacancies and these likely would be filled.

However, Presqu'ile provincial park near Brighton still had ample accommodation this morning.

Less than 200 of the park's 500 camp units were in use, a park ranger reported.

Meantime, district provincial police were facing the weekend with some concern.

They conjecture that the usual high - density holiday traffic flow could be swollen further by a flight from sweltering urban areas.

"Everybody will be heading for the open spaces," said a senior official at OPP district headquarters in Belleville today. "With such an expected traffic volume we're asking the public to use extreme care and caution."

"Remember when we used to think smoke was a health hazard?"

Belfast Youth Dies In Battle

BELFAST (Reuters) — An army marksman killed a youth early today during a battle between British troops and civilians in a Roman Catholic area of Belfast.

An army spokesman said 19-year-old Daniel O'Hagan was warned three times to stop throwing Molotov cocktails. When O'Hagan refused to surrender, the marksman was ordered to open fire, the spokesman said.

O'Hagan, shot in the neck, was dead on arrival at hospital. Residents in the area later denied that he had taken part in the throwing of gasoline bombs.

Street fighting began about 1:30 a.m. (8:30 p.m. EDT Thursday) and did not quiet down until after daylight.

Trouble began when two youths were arrested for causing a disturbance in the predominantly Catholic New Lodge Road area. A gang of youths began stoning police who called in the troops.

Relief Sunday Said Possible

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hot humid weather which has kept a blanket of smog over major cities in southern Ontario and Quebec will continue today and Saturday, but relief may come Sunday.

Weathermen are watching two areas of low pressure moving in from South Dakota and James Bay which could bring cooler air to sweltering urbanites.

In the meantime these lows are pushing warm air in front of them and this warm front will keep temperatures in the high 80s and maintain the invisible curtain which keeps car exhaust and chimney smoke from escaping into the upper air.

Temperatures of 85 to 90 degrees were forecast for southern Ontario today with readings only a few degrees lower in the northern part of the province. By contrast, the cooler air of the low pressure area resulted in forecasts of temperatures in the mid-70s for James Bay.

Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec City were told to expect more sizzling hot and humid weather, with temperatures in the 90s but some relief from scattered showers or thunderstorms.

The Toronto weather office said a temperature inversion—temperatures lower at the surface than the layers above—kept car exhaust and factory smoke from rising more than 300 feet into the air.

Bobcaygeon Area Home Dynamited

BOBCAYGEON, Ont. (CP) — A Muskoka area summer home owned by a Toronto man was dynamited and destroyed by fire early today, police said.

No one was injured in the explosion, which occurred about 1:30 a.m. (EDT) when a dynamite bomb exploded outside the home of Mrs. Morley McIlmoyle who lives just outside this community 15 miles northwest of Peterborough.

Mrs. McIlmoyle said she was making her bed when an explosion shattered a window behind her. The drawn curtains protected her. Four other persons in the house at the time also escaped injury.

Mrs. McIlmoyle said she had no idea who was responsible for the explosion.

All the windows on one side of the house were shattered and a large hole was made in the foundation and wall. A car parked by the window where the explosion occurred was also damaged.

No Signs of Violence

Trenton Constable Had Heart Seizure

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
(Staff Reporter)

TRENTON — Trenton Police Constable Mark Hodden, who died Wednesday afternoon after answering a disturbance complaint at a College Street home, died of natural causes.

Coroner Dr. David Lintern of Brighton told The Intelligencer Thursday that an autopsy revealed Constable Hodden died "a natural death".

"He suffered a heart seizure; there were no signs of violence. It's just one of those things," the coroner said, adding that it was doubtful that an inquest would be called into the Constable's death.

Dr. Lintern went on to say that Constable Hodden had a gastric ulcer which bled, putting strain on his heart.

"The seizure could have been caused by any kind of exertion," the coroner said.

"There is no doubt about the cause of death or the fact that no violence occurred.

"Constable Hodden fell forward and received a minor bump to his nose and this is probably what caused the rumors of a beating."

In an interview this morning Trenton Police Chief R. J. Rutherford answered questions concerning the death of Constable Hodden.

The 37-year-old father of two children died in Trenton Memorial Hospital about 4:30 p.m. two hours after answering a disturbance complaint at a College Street home.

In reply to the question if there were two men in the patrol car at the time of the incident, Trenton's Chief Constable emphasized "definitely."

"It's a policy of this department to have two men answer all disturbance calls," he asserted.

Israel Accepts Mideast Ceasefire

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Israel accepted today the United States Middle East peace plan already agreed to by Egypt and Jordan, it was announced here.

An official communique after a two-hour cabinet meeting said Israel accepted the plan "having considered the appeal of the president of the United States and while reminding its commitment to its basic policy guidelines."

It said Israel would appoint, at the appropriate time, a representative for peace talks without prior conditions under the auspices of United Nations envoy Gunnar Jarring.

It was not immediately clear whether the right-wing Gahal party would carry out its threat to leave the coalition cabinet. The party was scheduled to meet at the start of next week to make its final decision.

The communique said the peace talks would take place within the framework of the UN Security Council resolution of November, 1967, with the aim of reaching a binding peace agreement.

It said Israel is prepared to accept the proposal for a minimum 90-day ceasefire on the Egyptian front "taking into account the clarification provided by the government of the United States and not withstanding the dangers inherent in the matter."

These clarifications were understood to refer to U.S. assurances that the Egyptians and their Soviet advisers would not be able to exploit the limited ceasefire to increase their missile network and military potential to launch an offensive once the 90 days were up.

Nixon Gives Pledge

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — President Nixon reassured Israeli Premier Golda Meir that he could join Egypt and Jordan in accepting the U.S. Middle East peace plan without fears of being outflanked by military position.

Nixon told a televised news conference that the United States has assured Israel that if it accepts the plan, which calls for a 90-day ceasefire, "a natural proposition connected with that, a condition of that is that there will be a military standstill during that period."

The United States is committed to a balance of power in the Middle East and "I believe that Israel can agree to the ceasefire and can agree to negotiations without fear that by entering negotiations her position may be compromised or jeopardized in that period."

Nixon noted Israeli officials have expressed concern about an Arab military buildup during a ceasefire but "we and others have attempted to assure them that this would not be the case."

Hot Spell Popular With Some People

In a heat wave anything is likely to go pop.

But, if you're in the soft-drink service that's no cause for complaint.

The current hot-'n'-humid spell soaking the Quinte district may have slowed the pace of living for most, but not all.

The decisions of the district delcpnints daily — and the demand is for drinks, the cooler the better.

Soft drink companies supplying the area out of Belleville report peak business during the last few days — their sales paced with climbing temperatures and humidity.

The commercial ice business is moving faster than a Jetpropelled skater.

At Glen Roy Creamery, manager Peter McMevin reports his ice plant's production is just keeping up with daily demand.

Bulk of the business is in block ice to commercial operators — many of them tourist resort owners.

In mid-week demand had reached 15-18 tons of blocks daily.

Soft drink producers report a similar situation.

Sales have doubled over since the weather turned — "or the better that is," reported one representative of a leading brand soft - drink.

What he meant was that continued wet weather earlier in the summer had produced poor demand in June and early July.

"It's been fabulous," agreed another company spokesman. "We've been waiting for it."

"The demand's so heavy the phone's been ringing all day from store outlets."

Surprisingly, warm weather is not that disconcerting to another private enterprise sector engaged in a business that's traditionally winter - oriented.

A city factory revealed today the industry now is gearing for one of its biggest months of the year.

August, he says, always has been significant sales month for the fur trade.

Old Reaper Still Operative

Malcolm Bird, antique farm machinery enthusiast, stands beside still usable 1880 reaper which he acquired this year at Rawdon township auction for $100 — $20 more than the price nearly 90 years ago! Reaper and old thresher are stored in garage on Bird Crescent, north of city.

Passing Years Add to Value Of 90-year-old Grain Reaper

How much is an antique (circa 1880) reaper worth on today's market?

As far as Malcolm Bird, former Belleville area resident now living in Toronto is concerned, the price has gone up about 25 per cent in the intervening nine decades.

A native of Thurlow township, just north of the city, Mr. Bird has a penchant for old-time farm machinery and owns several vintage kerosene engines and also an 1880 horse-powered grain separator which he has restored and converted to gasoline engine operation.

For the past two years Mr. Bird has demonstrated the old thresher at district fairs and also at steam power reunions throughout the province.

In June this year he noticed that an old farm reaper was to be sold at an auction sale at the Rawdon township farm of Ernest Broadworth.

He took in the sale and was the successful bidder at the old reaper at $100.

Reapers were the forerunners of grain binders.

The difference was that while the binders tied the loose grain into sheaves, the reaper merely cut the grain and slid it off onto the ground in loose bundles. Then workers came along and tied the bundles with a twine of straw.

The old reaper, built by L. D. Sawyer and Company was sold in 1883 to Mr. Broadworth's father-in-law Sylvens Sine at a cash price of $80.

The original bill of sale was turned over to Mr. Bird at the auction.

The old machine, which is still in good operating condition, was used in Rawdon until the advent of the grain binder. It's present good condition is attributed to the fact that it has always been kept under cover.

Mr. Broadworth last used the old reaper about 20 years ago to cut a field of buckwheat.

"I hope to display it at Belleville Fair this year," said the new owner.

Organizer Signing Up Parade Participants

Love a parade?

Enough to participate?

Then get in touch promily with Arthur Corfield, parade master for the Quinte Exhibition.

Mr. Corfield, now busy organizing the big cross-town procession marking the exhibition's opening night Aug. 13, is putting final touches to the program.

The parade — scheduled to march from East Hill playgrounds to the Exhibition Grounds — will involve at least five bands, scores of mounted riders, floats, mobile exhibits and walking personnel.

There's still room for participants wishing to enter a float or band (or both) in many other ways in the actual parade, says Mr. Corfield.

However, names of all personnel are needed for programs to be used by public announcers, commencing on the parade as it passes downtown and the Exhibition grandstand.

Hence, says Mr. Corfield, it's urged that any persons still wishing to join the big parade, contact him immediately.

Teachers End Five-week Field Course

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Last night marked the end of a five-week period during which five guidance teachers have undergone a business-oriented participation pro-gram throughout Belleville.

The five teachers, Orville Matthews of Belleville, Charles Browning of Madoc, John Murphy of Marmora, Allen Kay of Cloyne, and Barbara Lindsay of Oshawa, have been visiting plants in the city since June 29.

The Ontario Department of Education, in co-operation with the Belleville Chamber of Commerce sponsored the program which was designed to enable teachers to meet with every portion of industry.

Terry Hawkins, co-ordinator of guidance for Northumberland and Durham Counties, has been helping the Department of Education with this special program.

As a highlight for the end of the industrial period, the teachers dined with businessmen and representatives from local industry at the Belleville General Hospital.

Following the dinner, Mr. Hawkins stressed that "guidance people can set young people on the right track and to enable them to give the proper advice. Almost 200 companies throughout Ontario were approached to become involved in the summer program."

In this way, "industry can find out where education is going and guidance advisers can discover what industry has to offer and the new changes which have been developed."

He explained that of the 285 companies approached, all of them agreed with "great enthusiasm" and in this way the students would get "a good calibre of guidance" when the teachers returned to their schools.

The local companies involved were: Allied Chemical Canada Ltd., Canada Manpower Centre, Wilson Concrete Products Ltd., Canron Brothers Sportswear Ltd., Ontario Hydro, Mead Johnson Canada Ltd., International Hardware Co. of Canada Ltd., The Intelligencer, CJBQ Radio, Northern Electric Co. Ltd., Bell Canada, Union Carbide Canada Ltd., Metaphenes - Adamson Mfg. Co of Canada Ltd., ADCO Limited, Belleville General Hospital, Canadian National Railways, Superior Electric Co. Ltd., Electronic Controls Ltd., Family and Children's Services for Hastings County and the Corporation of the City of Belleville.

Miss Lindsay of Woodland Centennial Public School in Pickering said that she had "never been exposed to industry . . . this is the first time I've really been exposed to the working world.

"I went from my lessons into teaching.

"However, she was granted one week off and still continues to work overtime to catch up on the billing," the spokesman said.

As the breakdown in negotiations between the PUC and the union continued, both parties faced a 5 p.m. Friday deadline, after which the union is legally entitled to strike.

Contract negotiations between both parties have been deadlocked since the old contract expired April 1, 1970.

A labor department conciliator was unable to resolve the situation which could result in the first strike in the Trenton PUC's history.

Wages and retroactive pay remain important issues in the continuing dispute between the commission and the 25-member union.

"It's all very well to talk a few years off to see the world, or to get a job," but without an increased knowledge of what industry demands and the education to back himself up. "the young man won't have a chance."

Further describing the role of industry, Mr. Hawkins indication such as subject promotion courses.

With the new forms of education such as subject promotion, a student could have a diploma but might have taken nothing but grade nine subjects. They could do the same in university. Industry must know what the students are taking to gauge qualifications properly."

Frank Murray, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce commented that "a good deal of faith has been restored as to the calibre of teachers.

"When they visited the mid-s station, they were full of questions and by their attitudes, one could see that they were interested."

The five teachers involved in the program now go through at least two or three years of regular schooling and then they marks their fourth year of upgrading their guidance programs. All five have been participating in guidance programs at their schools.

Wined and Dined

Frank Murray, president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, welcomes area guidance teachers and representatives of Belleville business and industry to the meeting and dinner served last night by the Belleville General Hospital. The event was the conclusion of a five-week course in which the teachers visited 19 businesses in the city. Seated with Mr. Murray are Terry Hawkins, co-ordinator of guidance for Northumberland and Durham Counties, Philip Rickard, administrator of the Belleville General Hospital, J. R. Reynolds, city manager, and O. F. "Brad" Bradley, manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

Fired Office Worker Becomes Strike Factor

TRENTON — A spokesman for the Trenton public utilities commission today denied that the recent firing of a female office worker was intended to intimidate union members.

He said the woman, Mrs. Sally Honey, had "no recourse to file grievance technically, because upon receipt of a no-board report, filed by a department of labor conciliator, the contract between the PUC and local 2066, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers was null and void.

Union representatives charged Thursday that the firing of Mrs. Honey for insubordination was "just a form of agitation."

Rehiring of the junior office worker at no loss in seniority or pay, was now an essential part of the union's bargaining position, a union spokesman said Thursday.

However, the PUC representative said the refusal of Mrs. Honey and other staff members to work overtime was an attempt to slow up the PUC and put the union in a better bargaining position.

"This was clearly a clerical situation where the bills had to go out and the girls could have cleared up the situation themselves by working overtime. But they refused to do so," the PUC spokesman noted.

In addition, the PUC spokesman said the holiday cancellation notice read: " . . . until this condition(the delay in billing) is rectified."

This meant, said the spokesman, the girls' refusal to work overtime necessitated cancellation of holidays to complete the billing.

The PUC spokesman added Mrs. Honey was not entitled to holidays because she had not yet been in the commission's employ for one year.

"However, she was granted one week off and still refused to work overtime to catch up on the billing," the spokesman said.

As the breakdown in negotiations between the PUC and the union continued, both parties faced a 5 p.m. Friday deadline, after which the union is legally entitled to strike.

Contract negotiations between both parties have been deadlocked since the old contract expired April 1, 1970.

A labor department conciliator was unable to resolve the situation which could result in the first strike in the Trenton PUC's history.

Wages and retroactive pay remain important issues in the continuing dispute between the commission and the 25-member union.

RCA Submits New Bid

OTTAWA — A new 963-million bid for construction of Canada's domestic satellite has been made by RCA Victor — rivals for the contract involving a production program at Northern Electric's Belleville plant.

The new bid was revealed yesterday by Communications Minister Eric Kierans.

Mr. Kierans said the long drawn satellite controversy might be considered by the federal cabinet Thursday night and a decision could be announced today.

However, no announcement had been made up to shortly after noon. A Northern Electric senior management official said this morning he had heard no reports of any decision being made.

Constable Died of Seizure

Chief Rutherford also said that Hastings County Crown Attorney W. Pringle granted each of the three persons charged in the incident bail of $500 cash yesterday afternoon.

He said the trio - Gordon Welsh, 18, of Trenton, Helen Kerr of no fixed address, and Carl Anderson, 29, of Trenton - would appear here in provincial court for recand.

Thursday, Trenton police charged Gordon Welsh and Helen Kerr with assaulting a police officer and Carl Anderson too with causing a disturbance.

In addition, a fourth suspect, named Wednesday by Trenton police as Gordon Welsh's brother George, was reidentified today by Chief Rutherford as Gordon Delbert Welsh, 22, of Trenton.

He is a brother of Gordon Wesley Welsh, 18, and police issued a warrant Thursday for his arrest on the charge of assaulting a police officer.

The police chief said that the charges still stand against the four persons despite the coroner's report Thursday which said that Constable Houlden died of a heart seizure.

To the question "was Constable Houlden the police officer who was assaulted, and if not, who was?", the chief replied, "the assault was not necessarily against Constable Houlden - there were five officers there."

However, he declined to elaborate, saying that police officials were now in the process of sorting out the case.

Chief Rutherford said that a police funeral will be conducted Sunday at 1.30 p.m. from the United Church in Frankford. Interment will te in Stockdale Cemetery.

Builder Seeks Approval For Low-cost Housing

New housing at a price which the family in the $4,800 to $5,300 income bracket can afford to buy is possible, according to a Belleville builder.

In these days of inflated housing costs, this might seem an impossible dream but it is Maurice Rollins' dream.

Mr. Rollins told the city parks board yesterday that he is preparing a proposal for the construction of 110 housing units in the West Park Village district.

The units would make up an 11-building complex, each with 10 self-contained housing units.

Constructed by a condominium company, the units would be built through National Housing Act financing to families in the low income bracket.

Mr. Rollins said prices would range from about $13,000 for a two-bedroom house up to about $15,000 for a four-bedroom unit.

Low down payments with amortization over a longer than usual period would bring the units within the financial range of low income families.

The local builder said that the federal government had voted $200 millions for this type of housing and already most of the money had been committed.

Mr. Rollins said his project would be a "first" for Belleville in this type of condominium type housing. The units would be similar to the townhouse type low rental housing

CPR Man Killed

BRIGHTON (Staff) — Canadian Pacific trains were being rerouted over Canadian National rails between here and Port Hope today after a freight train derailment that killed a railroad employee at Cobourg Thursday night.

Alphonse Germuil, 49, of McDonald's Corners near Perth, a CP Telecommunications worker was killed when 25 cars of a 111-car CP freight left the rails at Cobourg. Two other men in a bank car were slightly injured. Mr. Germuil was crushed beneath one of the derailed cars.

A Canadian National spokesman at the railway's Kidner area offices in Belleville today said CP traffic was being rerouted while repair problems until the line was unplugged.

Always Two Sides

Biafra . . . Northern Ireland . . . and now South Africa. As one voice amid the world-wide Press, we know only too well how attention can be focused relentlessly on such areas and their politics virtually hung, drawn and quartered — while ignored almost completely are the people who live there and the fact that politics as such bear little resemblance to a country's way of life.

Ignored too are the industry of a nation, its educational processes, the fact that people are people the world over. Politics, aided by instant communications, have become such an instrument of propaganda that a nation's overall image emerges as a distortion of the real thing.

Biafra is now forgotten, after some three years of international hysteria over the fate of its people (at least it can be said a lot of humanity was demonstrated), and food and medicines distributed, which had it not been for world concern, might not have been the case). Northern Ireland we hope is done with violence, for the time being at least, and having said that we must remind Canadians once again that the trouble there was the work of a relatively small segment of the population.

Now it is South Africa which is getting the political hot air — South Africa which last year, incidentally, increased its gross national product by almost 7.5 per cent, or two per cent over the target. Factory employment, according to the South African government, was up 10.9 per cent and spread over all races. While workers increased by five per cent, Colored and Asians by nine per cent each, and the Bantu by seven per cent. South African industrial achievements of late have included development of a new process for uranium enrichment and invention of a new steel-cutting machine which has been patented in 32 countries.

As for the republic's controversial policy of apartheid one wonders what would happen if the whole system were suddenly abandoned and non-whites — Bantu, Colored and Asians, who are in the majority — given the vote along with the minority White population? Here is one answer, and it is given by a non-white, Transkeian Legislative Assembly chief whip T. E. Katshunungwa. Transkei is a region of South Africa in which the African population has self-government and Mr. Katshunungwa is quoted as saying that his country would not support a policy of multi - racialism in South Africa. "Our culture is different from that of the white man. We would rather remain African nationalists. We are not ashamed in the Transkei because at least we have a country to boast of. We have accepted separate development (apartheid) because we claim the Transkei as our fatherland." Here he also noted that the mother tongue, Xhosa, is the official language.

It is unfashionable of course in Canada and wherever else apartheid is condemned out of hand to acknowledge anything such as this, or to recognize that there might be some truth in the South African view that its expulsion from international sport stemmed from political pressure by the Communists and Afro-Asians, or to heed Prime Minister Vorster's claim that South Africa "is honest and sincere in trying to solve a difficult question to the satisfaction of all the various racial groups." However, when a leading member of the non - white population — Transkei Chief Whip Katshunungwa — says "no" to a multi - racial society — then perhaps it is time we did consider some of these other aspects of the situation.

South Africa Seeks Naval Aid

Black Africa Prime Target for Communist Infiltration

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — As a balkanism erupts over possible British sale of arms to the South African navy, the John Vorster regime is giving the same answer it has been giving for years.

South Africa is the anti-Communist bastion of the West south of the equator—the only dependable and stable ally of NATO between South America and Australia.

In effect, it is saying: Put aside feelings about our racial policies and recognize that the Soviet Union and Communist China are making inroads in the new African countries and the Soviet navy is building its strength in the Indian Ocean.

It says that the Cape of Good Hope sealanes are as vital to Europe as they are to South Africa; in fact, South Africa could withstand their loss better than others.

South Africa took upon itself the role of defence of the South-ern Hemisphere against communism in the last decade. But it had been largely a voice in the wilderness as it cried its warnings about the Soviet naval buildup.

The warnings were largely discounted in London and Washington. Some Americans considered Pretoria downright hysterical. Experts said the Soviet lines of support were too long to be a danger in the area.

The Labor government of Britain went along with UN resolutions banning arms to South Africa. It declined even to give equipment to keep naval vessels in top shape as provided under the Simonstown agreement.

The great ally of South Africa was the British Conservative party while in opposition.

Calls for a reversal of Labor government policy were frequently made by Sir Alec Douglas-Home, now foreign minister in the new Conservative government and the man who recently started a new storm by announcing that Britain is considering sale of arms to the South African navy.

His reasoning was that the sealanes are essential to British, particularly as Middle East oil comes around the Cape.

South Africans have been assured that the non-Communist world has not seen the danger.

Vorster said last year that his country was prepared to fight alone to defend the sea route on her own behalf and on behalf of the rest of the world. He said the Communists realized the importance of South Africa in relation to the sea route.

North America and Europe would suffer even more than South Africa if the route was closed by Soviet submarines, he said.

"We should suffer, but our economy is so far advanced that we should be able to keep going for a very long time."

Pretoria says Western Europe would lose the 40 per cent of fuel oil needs that is shipped around the Cape, mostly in supertankers, now that the Suez Canal is closed. It would also lose food.

Even if the Suez was opened, the presence of a large Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean would make the Cape route safer.

Putting together several statements from South African officials and newspapers this Red peril emerges:

—The Soviet fleet can use harbor facilities in Somalia and Aden, where there is a Russian harbor master.

—The island of Zanzibar, part of Tanzania, is a "Communist stronghold." The Communist Chinese are building a naval base at Dar es Salaam on the Tanzanian mainland.

—The Soviet Union and China are attempting to gain influence among new African states, hoping to oust Africa from east to west and isolate largely white-controlled southern Africa. In this regard Diego Suarez, which has a Marxist government and there is fear of Chinese influence in Tanzania, with only the Congo-Kinshasa dividing the two coastal states.

—Soviet trawlers, "spy boats" to some, patrol the African coast. Other vessels are stationed in mid-Indian Ocean.

—The Cape sea routes are "teeming" with Soviet submarines.

South Africa failed last year in efforts to interest Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay in a south Atlantic defence alliance.

South Africa is not involved in NATO.

Commander Gen. Rudolph Hiemstra said recently that it is "stunning" that the NATO powers do not realize the extent of the threat of Soviet hopes for world domination.

The fact that Russia has begun to overflow its wide accessibilities is reason for a review of Atlantic alliance strategy.

"In the whole area from Australia to South America, South Africa is the only fixed point offering naval base facilities and a stable industry and government."

The Financial Gazette of South Africa said recently that the Cape sea route is a vital lifeline of NATO.

"How long will it be before they (Soviet submarines) cut this lifeline which is defenceless — except for South Africa's awareness of the danger."

Defence Minister P. W. Botha put it another why:

"We are the guardians of the gateway to the East—from Europe around the Cape—and we hold this in trust for the free world."

"We carry the latest fishing equipment — Geiger counters, mercury content meters, phosphate level indicators . . ."

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

July 31, 1970 . . .

An American doctor, sought for one of the most grisly murders in the history of London, England, was arrested 60 years ago today—in 1910—at the pilot station at Father Point, near Rimouski, Que. The arrest of Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen and his companion, Ethel Le Neve, marked the first use of radio for tracking down a criminal. Crippen was hanged in Pentonville prison, London, on Nov. 23, 1910, for the murder and mutilation of his wife.

1936—Vincent Alexander was named Governor-General of Canada.

Call for Action

Downtown Fires Have Left Two Eyesores

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I have a question for our municipal fathers which I am sure numerous other citizens ask themselves when they are in the downtown vicinity. Can the city take any action and if so, when will it commence to rid our city of two major eyesores? I speak of the burnt-out rubble adjacent to the Belle Theatre and the equally unpicturesque shambles adjacent to the arena centre.

There is an old saying which is "A picture is worth a thousand words". However, I shall spare your readers boredom by not stating my opinion of these eyesores — because it would take a thousand words to express it. I do have one thing more to say, however; it is high time for the city to take whatever steps it has in order to rid our city of these two eyesores.

ONE FOR A LA BELLEVILLE

A Little Work on the Side Money-Loser for Pensioner

Hamilton Spectator

If a Hamilton old-age pensioner hadn't worked so much last year, he'd have made more money.

Edward Wells, 69, of Upper Gage Avenue, worked part-time for a drugstore and car wash during 1969, and earned $1,374.

If he had stopped working after he made $900, he would have received an additional $223 this year from the GAINS pension plan; he would not have paid $151 in income tax nor would he have paid $141 in OHSIP premiums.

In effect, he would have made $1,425 instead of $1,374.

His earnings for 1969, combined with his receipts from the Canada pension plan, old age pension, a small pension from the Ontario government and interest on his savings amounted to $3,158.

This total, he paid income tax of $161 and OHSIP premiums totalling $141. Because he earned over $900 in 1969, $223 will be deducted from the money he receives this year from the Canada pension plan.

Because he made more than $1,800 last year, he cannot receive a supplement to his old-age pension. Had he not worked during 1969, he and his wife would have received $14.83 a month each as a supplement to their old-age pensions.

His income tax, OHSIP premiums, the reduction in Canada pension plan payments and the loss of the supplement to his and his wife's old - age pension totals approximately $300.

If Mr. Wells had not earned enough last year to pay income tax, he would have paid no OHSIP coverage free of charge.

"Even when a man tries to earn a little money on the side, he just can't," said Mr. Wells, a former plant manager for the Hamilton division of Dufferin-Mic Concrete Company.

He retired from the firm about 18 months ago. When he was working full-time, he averaged about $9,000 a year.

This year, he intends to stop work when his earnings reach $900.

His wife, who suffers from arthritis, is now in hospital undergoing a hip operation.

Mr. Wells says he has children whom he could go to if he needed financial help badly, but he doesn't want to do this:

"I'll just keep on, if you can't keep a little independence, you can't keep anything," he said.

Canadians Get Unbalanced View

Right-wing Conservatism Virtually Without A Voice

Orillia Packet and Times

What the press of this country needs right now, more than anything else, are a few good journalists with the guts to be conservative. Not so long ago, it took courage to be a liberal, and to champion the cause of the downtrodden — labor unions, athletes, unemployed, students, every kind — against an entrenched bourgeoise establishment. To be a leftist became the mark of the free-thinker, of the intellectual, and most of today's journalists grew up proud to be numbered in an intellectual profession with a tradition of crusading on behalf of the overwhelming Right.

It's about time our media woke up to the fact that yesterday's crusading is now on top, and chewing the cars off a lot of middle-class Canadians who find themselves virtually without a voice in a press where it has become both fashionable and profitable to parrot the nonsense of the New Left.

Among our journalists today, pros or broadcast, it's the "in" thing to be liberal, and most newspapers and all broadcast newsmen are naturally oriented to the left.

There is, of course, nothing wrong with commitment to the left, be it political or philosophical, but a national press which has so overwhelming a built-in bias is incapable of airing both sides of any issue, and so providing the public with the balanced view which experience indicates most closest to the truth.

Canadians tend to see the personalities and issues about them in terms of caricature, drawn in the black-and-white of liberal dogma: thus Agnew is a buffoon, Rhodesia is a slave camp, all negroes are oppressed, Americans are greedy bunglers, monarchy is an anachronism, and so on. Like the cartoons in an editorial page, such caricatures reflect a forthright point of view, but Canadians are entitled to see caricatures drawn also from the contradictory side. For the first time, there is no such dialogue between left and right points of view in Canada's press and broadcast media.

The lack of a balanced, objective press has already been responsible for some remarkable phenomena: the political assassination of Diefenbaker, and in the U.S., of LBJ; the unquestioning, uncritical, universal press acclaim of Trudeau as prime minister; an ignorance without precedent in Canadian politics; the emotional involvement of Canadians in wars like Vietnam and Biafra in which virtually one side only is reported.

It has also caused an increasing rift between Canada's press and the public it purports to serve; a gulf which the defeated Agnew was quick to point out, but which few editors have yet recognized.

Whatever their politics, most Canadians are conservatives; conservatives; that is, they believe in a society progressing by building on the foundations of those institutions which experience has proven to be good, replacing the faulty or outdated and "conserving" the best.

Are there no young journalists in Canada today who can speak for such people and such a creed?

Stanfield Says Western Europe Feels Canada Has Lost Interest in Region

OTTAWA (CP) — There is a feeling in western Europe that Canada has lost interest in that area, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Thursday night.

Arriving back from a month-long, 6-country tour of Europe, the Conservative Leader said he found a "strong impression" among the countries of Western Europe that "Canada has lost interest in them."

With Britain negotiating for entry to the European Common Market, Mr. Stanfield said it is important that Canada establish "the closest possible contacts" with common market members.

"We should be in very close touch and put ourselves in the position where we could make proposals."

"The ECM is now the greatest market in the world and we don't seem to be showing that much interest in it."

The Conservative leader, accompanied by his wife, visited Belgium, France, Germany, Yugoslavia, Russia and Britain, talking with government leaders and officials and taking some time out for holidaying.

In Communist countries, he said, he tried to learn as much as possible about attitudes toward a European security conference that would lessen tensions in that area of the world.

"I was a little disappointed," he said. The most the Russians appeared to favor was the withdrawal of foreign troops from Europe. But he said there were some signs of flexibility and "If we keep talking perhaps it can lead to some sort of detente."

Mr. Stanfield said that in his talks with British Prime Minister Edward Heath, and other government leaders in London, he "stressed the dangers" of British rescinding arms sales to South Africa.

He said it was clear that the British government was concerned mainly about security in considering such sales. "I said that I felt the security aspect would be far more than offset by the dangers to the Commonwealth."

Prairie Premiers To Work as Team

EDMONTON (CP) — While they may be far apart politically, the three Prairie premiers agreed Thursday they can work together to the advantage of Prairie residents.

Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer, a New Democrat, Saskatchewan Premier Ross Thatcher, a Liberal, and Alberta Social Credit Premier Harry Strom gave the indication at a news conference ending a one-day meeting of the Prairie Economic Council. It was the eighth meeting of the council since its inception.

Mr. Strom said the council originally was established to provide an exchange of views, "but we are now agreed we can go further."

The Prairie provinces can look forward to the day "when we can make collective decisions," he said.

There may be some people who would construe this as "ganging up" on Ottawa in particular and while this statement may be fair, Mr. Strom said "we are not going to apologize."

"There will be many areas in which there will be a mutual brief presented to the federal government by the three provinces."

The council completed a lengthy agenda and decided the next meeting would be held in Winnipeg in December.

Of 15 items on the agenda, eight were requested by Manitoba, five by Alberta and two by Saskatchewan.

Three resolutions were passed including one asking Ottawa to investigate the possibility of an alternate trans-Canada highway route to be constructed under the 50-50 cost-sharing program that existed for the present highway.

Another strongly urged Ottawa to consult the Prairie provinces before implementing any agricultural program similar to the LIFT project—designed to reduce wheat acreage and pour money into the Western economy.

Mr. Thatcher said all three provinces appreciated the money involved in the program but were "disturbed about the fundamental and basic issue that the program was not discussed with us before it was implemented."

"We do think we are entitled to be consulted and we don't want these programs foisted on us."

In another resolution, the council urged Ottawa to make sure all present and future agricultural marketing agencies and commissions have Prairie representation.

"Even now some national agencies, such as the National Dairy Commission, have no Prairie representation with the result that their policies work against Western agriculture," Mr. Schreyer said.

Canada's two major railways, the CNR and CPR, came under attack from Mr. Thatcher and the prospect of Prairie retaliation against the railways in the form of increased taxes was suggested.

Frost Returns to Algonquin

ALGONQUIN PARK, Ont. (CP) — Wearing an open-necked shirt, wrinkled trousers and heavy shoes and carrying a striped maple walking stick, Leslie Frost returned to Algonquin Park last week.

He led 25 men who will advise Ontario Lands and Forests Minister Rene Brunelle on conditions in the 2,900-square-mile park.

It was a nostalgic trip for the former premier of Ontario. He first fished in the park 59 years ago and his association with it has gone on ever since.

The committee was set up last September under Mr. Frost, following charges by the Algonquin Wildlands League that the park was being misused.

The men inspected lumber operations, talked to rangers who supervise portages, and visited a girls' camp, a fisheries research program, the Ontario Forest Technical School south of Dorset and the visitors' centre and museum.

The problem of the committee, he said, is to reconcile recreation with lumbering so they can operate side by side to the advantage of all.

"The regenerative powers of the Algonquin forest and of the forests of surrounding Haliburton, Muskoka and Nipissing are absolutely astonishing."

He outlined some of the other problems the committee has to consider:

—Should establishments be set up in some areas where middle-aged and older persons could enjoy the park?

—Should snowmobiling be permitted?

—What should be done about the increasing numbers of people visiting the park: canoeists, motorists with tents and trailers?

—How can canoe routes be protected from crowding and pollution?

Richard Smith, Liberal member of the legislature for Nipissing and a committee member, said friction between canoeists and lumbermen could be eliminated by proper planning.

A recess regulation forbidding lumbermen from cutting anywhere within 1,500 feet of a waterway was unreasonable because with bluffs in many places there was no need to go back as far as 1,500 feet.

Donald Jackson, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Temiskaming, said his first consideration was the jobs of thousands depending on the lumber industry.

TREE PLANTINGS

Private landowners purchased and planted 14 of the 42 million forest trees distributed by provincial tree nurseries in Ontario in 1969. Red pine and white spruce accounted for more than half their plantings.

Mr. Halas has fought an expropriation order from Pitt Meadows municipality, 20 miles east of Vancouver, giving him $30,765.53 for his home and seven acres. Mr. Halas promised to stay at the side of the road until he gets a better deal. (CP Photo.)

Pay Boosts Moderated During Spring Quarter

OTTAWA (CP) — Some moderation in the upward trend of major wage settlements was reported Thursday by the labor department for April, May and June.

Ninety-nine settlements were examined, covering collective bargaining groups of 500 and more employees and exempting the construction industry. They called for an average annual base-rate wage increase of 8.5 per cent.

While this was down from an officially-revised figure of 9.4 per cent for the first quarter of the year, it was still ahead of an average 7.7 per cent in the second quarter of 1969.

The labor department said the 99 new wage settlements, when taken in conjunction with raises called for in previously-signed contracts, indicates an annual base-rate increase of 7.7 per cent for the 12 months ended June 30, 1970. This compared with an average increase of 7.3 per cent in the previous 12 months.

The objective declared by the government's prices and incomes commission and endorsed by the government itself, is that six per cent is a reasonable upper limit for annual wage and salary increases granted "in present circumstances."

The labor department said that the agreements covering the last 12 months, when "deflated" by the increase in the consumer price index, produced a base-rate wage increase of 4.4 per cent in real or uninflated terms.

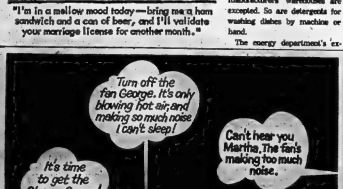
Dishwasher Detergents Escape Phosphate Curb



OTTAWA (CP) — Dishwashing detergents have escaped the government order to reduce phosphate content. The order goes into effect Saturday.

Regulations require that the phosphorus content of detergents for laundering textiles be cut to no more than 20 per cent by weight. Penalties can amount to fines of $5,000 a day.

Existing stocks in stores and manufacturers' warehouses are excepted. So are detergents for washing dishes by machine or hand.

The energy department's explanation of the exemption is that industry expressed concern that dishwashers now in use will not function properly without phosphate-type detergents.

The phosphate released by dishwashing is, of course, a relatively minor amount compared with that from laundry," the department said.

Five Women Live Two Weeks on the Bottom of the Sea

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Five women who lived two weeks on the bottom of the sea have borrowed the odds that lipstick and powderpuffs one day will be standard equipment aboard United States undersea ships.

The space agency officials caution women's liberation groups not to get their hopes too high, because it will be eight to nine years before a female flies in a U.S. spacecraft.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans late in this decade to have space stations orbiting the earth with as many as 50 persons aboard.

That's when women will play a role. But they must be qualified in a medical or scientific field.

The question of women in space came up in Washington Monday when five female scientists and technicians received awards as the first women team to live and work underwater.

Their undersea stay from July 6 to July 20 was part of a program called Tektite II in which 17 teams, 16 of them men, are taking turns at long submersion in warm water of Great Lameshure Bay in the Virgin Islands.

They lived in a dwelling submerged 50 feet and made frequent trips outside in diving gear to explore marine life.

Project manager for the female team was Richard Spence of NASA.

Spence said "We've got to start looking in that direction," when asked whether NASA would consider bringing women into the astronaut program.

He said the women worked as efficiently as men on Tektite II.

A small group of American women have argued for distaff astronauts since the Russians sent the world's only spacewoman, Valentina Tereshkova, into orbit for three days in 1963.

Mary U.S. space chauffeurs note, however, that the spaceship used then was totally automatic and say the Soviet Union probably sent Valentina up more for propaganda than technical gain.

Most determined of the U.S. women have been Jerrie Cobby and Jacqueline Cochran, both pilots with thousands of hours flying time, and Jean Hart, also a pilot, wife of Senator Philip A. Hart (Dem. Mich.) and mother of eight children.

Miss Cobb applied for astronaut training, but was rejected.

Up to now, NASA's position has been that it's not that women can't learn to fly in space, but that space is still a pioneering venture for which man is more suited.

Women officials say, can always use her perogative to change her mind and get married after NASA has invested several hundred thousand dollars and a lot of time in her training.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, chief astronaut physician, says it would be nice to have women along on extended flights such as two-year missions to Mars.

But, he cautions: "They've got to be able to do useful work and, considering the distance, and you certainly can't have just one woman among a lot of men."

Family Dinner Held For Belnap Couple

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. (Pete) Belnap celebrated their golden wedding anniversary recently when they were honored guests at a family dinner at the Catherine St. home of their son and daughter-in-law, Tom and Nadine Belnap, Sunday, July 19.

Among those attending were grandchildren Bill, Tom, Joanne, twins James and Jane Belnap, Peter and Trudy Foley and great-grandson Scott Foley of Oshawa, Steve and Peggy LaMarre, John Foley and daughter, Helen Foley, Miss Judy Greer of Verona and Miss Betty Young of Belleville.

After dinner the family gathered to take pictures and present Mr. and Mrs. Belnap with gifts including a money tree.

James Belnap and his twin sister, Jane attended the door and the guest book.

Guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Belnap with their son Tom and daughter Helen. Servers included granddaughters Peggy LaMarre, Joanne Belnap and Trudy Foley assisted by Judy Greer and Betty Young.

The table was centred with a three - tier anniversary cake trimmed in gold and flanked with gold and white tapers.

In charge of the lunch was the Four Square Club of which Mrs. Belnap is a member.

Many friends called including some old time pals of Mr. Belnap in the First World War.

The Belnaps were married July 19, 1920 in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Brighton by Rev. Pickford attended by the bride's sister, Grace Rowley and the brother-in-law, the late John Rowley. The reception was held at the bride's mother's home, Mrs. Tom Marlow.

They left for Toronto on their honeymoon.

The bride was the former Frances Eleanor (Lena) Marlow daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marlow of Brighton.

Improved Eating Habits Sought

MONTREAL (CP) — Working from the premise that people are what they eat, the Montreal Catholic School Commission spends $1,500,000 annually on experiments to improve lousy eating habits.

Pizza, French fries and soft drinks are out in their 39 cafeterias around Montreal. Also taboo are the candies, marshmallow puffs and chocolate milks usually dispensed in vast quantities by cautering services.

Replacing them are cheese, raisins, buttered rolls, fruit and plain milk, with options of cottage cheese and yogurt for the calorie-conscious.

Hot dogs are served occasionally and ketchup and pickles are usually available.

"We want the children to know pickles are good; ketchup is good now, but they don't have to eat it every day," says Nicole Saint-Jean-Demers, nutrition chief at the MCSC.

The purpose of her menus is twofold—to demonstrate good food habits and to show the pleasures of a varied diet.

At first, a common aversion to vegetables must be overcome.

"It's said Canadians eat only potatoes, peas and carrots," Mrs. Saint-Jean-Demers said. "We are serving kernel corn, broccoli, brussels sprouts, cauliflower, beets and so on.

"When we introduce something new, we give the children a small sample."

Only 25 per cent of the 55,000 students served by the experimental program buy the 70-cent hot meal. The rest bring sandwiches and supplement them with a beverage and fruit or dessert.

As working mothers are common in new housing developments, the nutritionist believes that the school's hot lunch is the only one of the day for many children.

"Lunch is becoming the most important meal of the day," she says. The Montreal city health department says 80 per cent of students skip breakfast, and this explains why rolls and fruit are available during the mid-morning break.

Drastic and uneven dieting is prevalent among girls. Both sexes suffer from complexion problems which often have their roots in inadequate or unbalanced diets.

The usual approach by nutritionists is not-sell. But occasionally they get tough and try to break what looks like a bad habit.

For example, students often run into the cafeteria, grab a table and delegate one person to pick up food for everyone. This means many never see the array of nutritious foods lined up to tempt them.

Canadians Malnourished

SASKATOON (CP) — Although Canadians, with one of the highest standards of living, should be among the best-fed people in the world, the indications are that they are malnourished.

"After all, a person can even be fat and still be malnourished," said Margaret Pope, nutrition consultant for the federal food and drug directorate, Ottawa.

She was one of several food and drug directorate personnel who attended a recent Consumers' Association of Canada meeting here. During interviews on nutrition in Canada, they made the following points:

—A recent study of Newfoundland school children showed that 75 per cent of their diets considered poor or fair from a nutrition viewpoint.

—Canadians more recent study of nearly 2,500 Ontario Grade 9 students showed 39 per cent of the boys and 45 per cent of girls were eating diets classed as poor by nutritionists.

—About 400 cases of rickets, a bone disease caused by lack of vitamin D and leading to bow legs or knock knees in children, were discovered in Montreal and Toronto hospitals in one year.

—Tests on livers of apparently healthy adults who died in accidents showed that stores of vitamin A necessary for good eyesight, were abnormally low.

"This is why it is so important that the national nutrition study, which began in June, be done," said Dr. R. A. Chapman, director-general of the directorate.

The three-year, coast-to-coast study will involve about 21,000 Canadians. Survey teams will do the study on a random sample of persons in the five regions of Canada.

Medical and dental checkups will be carried out, and a 25-minute interview will try to get information on specific dietary habits.

Shorter Haircuts Give Hope to Paris Milliners

PARIS (AP) — Shorter haircuts, meaning smaller hats, have given new hope to Paris milliners.

For several years, the milliners and hair stylists have been waging an undeclared war. Up to now it was victory for the coiffeurs, and the result was that only five top-name milliners have survived.

High fashion houses also have been cutting in on the traditional milliners, with their own hat departments. They all show headdresses with their collections to complete the fashion look, but try to get away from "that thing called a hat."

But Mme. Paulette, the dean of the traditional milliners, has looked at the new hairstyles and says "hats are necessary. . . . they are being accepted again."

Accessories have been given new emphasis this season. Couturiers are matching them up, often to hats.

Balmain teams tweed turbans with top hats. Cardin matches tight jersey bonnets with gloves. Paulette plays with sweeping plumed musketeer styles, done in melange, or with tartan turbans in patterned wools or previous brocade mixed with fur. Jacques Fath's color fits pieces of felt and fur together as in a puzzle.

Makeup, too, comes in for evolution this season. Elizabeth Arden says the purpose is "not to disguise but to transfigure." Focus is on cheeks, eyes and brows. Cheekbones come in for a glossy touch. Thickly eyelashed eyes are given a dreamy look by delicately painted on ones, borrowed from butterfly colors.

Harriet Hubbard Ayer stresses eyes and mouth. A series of colors has been worked out to go with the new winter colors. Women are advised to no longer match their eye shadow to the color of their eyes, but with their costumes.

New Women's Group Called Men Our Masters Opposes Women's Liberation Group

NEW YORK (AP) — Men take heart. A new women's group is ready to tackle the w o m e n 's liberation movement. It's called MOM — Our Masters

MOM says a women's place is in the home and that the women's liberationists "haven't the vaguest concept of what sex is."

"Men fight and die for us," proclaims Marie de Pasquale, a part-time legal secretary who founded MOM in March in the New York area.

"They support us so we may outlive them and inherit their money. They hold doors open, they help us on and off with our coats, pay for our entertainment, say sweet things to us and they even give us a rib so that we might be here in the first place.

"Let's at least bequeath them the two mightiest manifestations of their masculine pride: their business acumen and their physical strength.

"Our purpose is to preserve femininity for women and masterliness for men. We oppose the campaign to reduce men to household fixtures."

Miss de Pasquale says MOM members plan to debate liberated women and demonstrate their ideas through programs, including fashion shows and rallies.

MOM, a small group, currently is working to encourage a male auxiliary called WOW —Women Our Wonder.

Good News for the Dimview Reader

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: When it comes to finding reading matter for persons with poor sight, the Diversecraft large print books are leaders in the field. They come both in hard and soft binding; $5 for hard covers, 75 cents for paperbacks. There is a surprising variety of titles.

In Fredericton the IODE groups started a collection of them in our public library. — Librarian, York Regional Library, Fredericton, N.B.

Dear Librarian: Our dimview readers will bless you for this news. I was interested in the comment you sent me from a correspondent in England:

"I am a widow of 65 and housebound through arthritis. My eyes are not bad but I get tired. Three months ago the WVS started to bring me library books but I found it difficult to read small print. However, they very kindly now bring me large print books. It has made such a difference, especially as I want to read during the night."

Full details to anyone writing in.

* * *

Dear Doris: You had an excellent item on Group Action for Innocent Bystanders. Could you give me more details?

The long-suffering consumer gets it in the neck from both directions. It is high time we did something to protect our rights.

A local group tried fighting inflation, and did succeed in lowering the price of bacon and bread, by boycotts — but I have heard nothing of them since. I reported a totally misleading claim on a label, to a national consumer organization. It has apparently nothing could be done about it.

Is there any way of waking the majority from sheep-like docility? Better sensible and prompt action now, than a bloody revolution when things finally get intolerable.—B. W.

Dear B.W.: The idea was to get somebody started — simply because there isn't any working organization at the moment. Not the kind of group that can protect the little fellow from steamrolled - for strikes for instance.

Sheep-like docility is a menace. Any one of us can take a stand if we've a mind to, but we have to put some pep into it.

* * *

Dear Doris: Four years ago a dear friend who had lived here since she was a little girl returned to her native Lebanon to dwell with her only living relatives.

We correspond, but now I have not heard from her for six months and I am very worried. The telegraph companies say they cannot guarantee to deliver any messages and one cannot be reached by long distance telephone.

Could you suggest any way by which I can find out about her? She was living in Beirut or one of its suburbs "On-the-Road-to-Byblays." — Frustrated and Worried.

Dear Frustrated: The quickest way to get the machinery in motion is to write to Miss Lavina Johnson, "director, National Enquiry Bureau, Canadian Red Cross Society, 95 Wellesley Street East, Toronto, Canada.

(What's troubling you? Putting it on paper to Doris is the first step towards solving your problem.)

Ann Landers

Woman Shaves Each Morning with Husband

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why do you advise women with five-o'clock shadow to have electrolysis? Why not tell them the best solution is a cheerful disposition and a good razor.

ANN LANDERS

I started to shave at 18 and I've been at it ever since. In the meantime I married a wonderful man and we have a beautiful family. My husband and I shave together every morning. My beard is tougher than his and we joke about it. When we go out in the evening I have to shave again. He doesn't. We joke about that, too.

So you see, Ann, a sense of humor can get a woman through almost anything, and I am living proof. Sign me — THE BEARDED LADY.

* * *

DEAR LADY: — Yeah. A sense of humor — and a good razor. Thanks for writing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for "Also Ran" and for all the other bitter wives who think they got a raw deal. "Also" had had it. She was sick and tired of catering to a selfish husband. I felt the same way and I did something about it. I got a divorce.

Now, after 18 months of soul searching I know who was really to blame. When I realized my husband was contributing only 25 per cent of his effort to our marriage I decided to give 25 per cent too. That left 50 per cent that nobody was giving. No marriage can survive that much dead air.

I've had some good talks with women since my divorce — some are happily married, the majority are not. I've reached the conclusion that most husbands only give 25 per cent. The wives who have the successful marriages are giving 75 per cent. This is what being a wife means. I hope all your 25 per cent wives out there will see this and wise up. — LERNDA LOT.

* * *

DEAR LERNDA: I will undoubtedly be labeled a traitor to my sex for printing your letter, but it's a good one and I agree with you. Any woman who thinks marriage is a 50-50 proposition is kidding herself. And the beautiful part of your theory is that the wives who are willing to give more than 50 per cent soon discover that their husbands are willing to up the ante also.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I had two telephone calls this morning from mothers of 11-year-old girls. Both woman said the same thing — that I am old-fashioned and out of touch with the times. Why? Because I refuse to allow my 12-year-old son to go to boy-girl parties.

I am sure the children are not doing anything wrong at these parties. They dance and eat and are home by midnight. All the same I think 11-and-12-year-olds are too young for this type of thing.

My son is not mad. He's relieved. The mothers of the girls are mad. It seems they just can't wait for their daughters to grow up and be popular. If you say I'm square, Ann, I'll reconsider, but I hope you'll be on my side. — MUSKEGON MOTHER.

DEAR MUSKEGON: How I wish more mothers were as "old-fashioned" and "out of touch" as you are! There's nothing sadder than 11-and-12-year-old girls whose mamas doll them up and push them into the adult world. Don't budge, Lady. You're on solid ground.

Vancouver Company Develops Unique Divorce Kit

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver company has started production of do-it-yourself kits for navigating choppy through one of life's stormier seas — the Canadian divorce court.

The package, offered by Action Kits Ltd., stops short of a street map of downtown Reno, Nevada, but it does include all the legal documents and forms necessary and instructions on how to use them.

The action kit costs a mere $75 compared with lawyers' divorce fees ranging up to $600. But even at that bargain rate, the competition is getting thick and fast.

Following Action Kits Ltd. other diverse kit companies have sprung up — LO-COST Divorces Ltd. and Global Divorce Service, which offer similar kits at $59 and $40 respectively.

"What makes you feel good is when you talk people out of divorce — and we've done it in a couple of cases," said Action director Jack Markham.

He recalled selling a kit to one woman, then getting a visit from her late husband the next day, who threatened to tear apart the Action office, the divorce kit, and Mr. Markham.

"He eventually calmed down and it was obvious that he didn't want the marriage to end. He said that when his wife had started filling out the forms he was just shaking.

"A week later they came in together and said that the kit was a great deterrent to have by the house because either of them could start filling it out, and neither really wanted the marriage to end."

Mr. Markham said that he and the other members of the company feel a great responsibility towards saving marriages wherever possible.

"Divorce is a very serious thing," he said. "Anyone who is involved in it cannot be a fast-buck artist—they shouldn't be in it if they are."

LO-COST came into existence two months after Action Kits and is operated out of a one-room office by Lee Gershman and Don Burdeny. Mr. Gershman said his company offers a $34 commission to any customer who sells a kit to a friend.

Roland Gaye, a heating and air conditioning salesman for 15 years, said he began operating Global Divorce from his apartment after reading about divorce kits in the newspapers.

Barbecued Spareribs on A Grill

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Some years ago you gave some recipes for campers mentioning your secretary had cooked these things on a portable grill at their campsite. At the time we weren't interested but now we have a camper and I'm looking for camping recipes. — Irma Mott.

ANSWER: That was in July 1968 Irene.

BARBECUED SPARERIBS

NOTE: Before leaving home, simmer 4 lbs. spareribs 45 min. Cut into serving portions. Chill and carry in portable cooler on ice. Or parboil ribs at campsite. Dip in Barbecue Sauce: (NOTE: It is advisable to mix these sauce ingredients before leaving home and carry them in a jar to your camp.) Mix together:

1 cup catsup
½ cup water
¼ cup vinegar
1 tsp. garlic salt
2 tbsps. brown sugar
2 tbsps. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. salt
2 tsps. dry mustard

Dip ribs in sauce. Cover grill with foil, arrange ribs on it and cook about 6" from hot coals for 20 min., turning frequently and basting sparingly with sauce. Heat leftover sauce to pass when ribs are served.

PEPPERED PORK CHOPS
(Serves 6)

Mix together ¼ to 1 tsp. rubbed sage, ½ tsp. salt and ¼ tsp. black pepper. Rub this seasoning mixture into both surfaces of four thick loin or rib chops (1¼ to 1½" thick). Spread a sheet of heavy duty foil on rack on barbecue and arrange chops on it. Cook until rich gold on both sides, turning 2 or 3 times. Pork Chops should be cooked through. Serve with:

BARBECUED BAKED APPLES (serves 4)

4 baking apples
4 tbsps. brown sugar
½ tsp. cinnamon
4 tsps. butter
4 slices lemon

Core apples. Make 4 slits down sides to split skin to within ½" of bottom to speed up cooking time. Mix together the sugar, cinnamon and butter and fill centres with this mixture. Top with slices of lemon. Wrap each snugly in double foil. Place on sides, directly on coals, for 20 to 25 min., rolling them over ¼ turn every 5 min. until they have had one full turn. Serve with pork chops above or for dessert. NOTE: More camping love tomorrow Saturday, Aug. 1.

Points for Parents
By MARY HAYDON

Mother: "Terry looked a little lonesome when we put him on the bus, but he'll enjoy learning to swim and canoe at camp. It will be good for him to live with other boys for a few weeks."

Mother: "Terry's friends have all gone camping but he would be too homesick away from us for a month — and we would miss him too much. He'll be grown and gone too fast as it is."

A child achieves independence easier if his mother "lets go" little by little through the years as the child grows up.

In the first game, Stinson Construction won the battle for fourth spot in the league standings with Point Anne last night by edging the Distillers 6-5.

Carby's, who are proving to be the spoilers of the league, scored two runs in each of first, connecting for a long homer to left field with Guy Carby on base. The Distillers again reached the score sheet in the third when Chuck Rowbotham squeezed a single between two Rollins errors for two runs. Singles by Goyer, Rowbotham and Neil Campbell produced two more in the fifth.

Shutouts in Vogue For Minor Soccer

Shutouts are a common happening in the world of soccer and the Belleville Minor Soccer games Thursday night proved this last night as all three contests played ended in one team failing to score.

In two mosquito games Circle TV Blanket Lacrosse 3-0 while Belleville United whitewashed the Cosy Grill 4-0. Doug's Auto Body shutout National Billiards 2-0 in an atom game at Albert College.

P. Archer and D. Britton were the Circle TV scorers in their victory over Lacrosse.

Mike Evans had a five goal performance for Belleville United against the Cosy. Tony Meagher had the other tally for the victors.

D. Wright and W. Moros each scored two goals for the winning Doug's Auto mates. N. Hurst fired the odd goal.

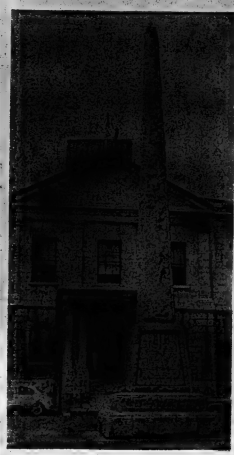
The Sailors' Church

At the foot of Bonsecours Street stands the oldest church in Montreal, that of Notre Dame de Bon Secours. Built in 1657 and rebuilt in 1771, the church was a favorite of sailors. The house (far right) was the residence of Louis-Joseph Papineau, a nationalist leader in the 1830s but served as a flophouse for many years until a journalist renovated it as his residence.

The Bearers of Tradition



In the once-thriving Bonsecours Market square, only a long-haired painter and his girl friend remain to carry on the tradition of the marketplace. The building now houses City departments.

Tourist Haven

A family walks out of Saint Amable Street onto Place Jacques Cartier, showpiece of Old Montreal. The brick house was once owned by Denis Viger, statesman, publisher and vigorous public figure who fought for responsible government. Built between 1803 and 1805, the house is one of many near the square that have been restored.

Old Montreal Is Being Reborn

By GARY FAIRBAIRN

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite the decay of centuries, Old Montreal is being reborn.

Many old gray-stone houses dating back to the 17th century have fallen into disrepair and bear "for sale" signs, but a greater number have begun a new life as elegant restaurants and fashionable boutiques.

Place Jacques Cartier, converted into a pleasant mall by an $800,000 city renovation program, is a conspicuous example of the benefits of renovation. Commercial establishments, including a tobacco shop in a 1720 structure, seem to do a thriving business.

A tradition may have begun this year when the square became the focus for celebration of St. Jean Baptiste Day, holiday.

At Place d'Armes, where Old Montreal blends into the financial district, uniformed secretaries eat their lunches in the midst of architectural history. Beside Notre Dame Church, which looms over the south side of the square, is a seminary occupied by the Sulpician Order for almost three centuries.

Looking up at the twin towers of the church is a statue of Sieur de Maisonneuve, who in 1644 routed attacking Iroquois near the square, personally killing the chief.

Much of Old Montreal has been restored. In all its antique charm by the municipality, volunteers, private enterprise and individuals. The residence of nationalist leader Louis Joseph Papineau, once a flophouse, now is the home of a music critic.

But much remains to be done. At Place Royale, where soldiers marched and criminals were publicly executed, there is only Obelisk, marking the first settlement, and a monument to a harbor official. Parked automobiles cover the rest of its available space.

For the Founding Few

The Obelisk, a rough but dignified monument, bears the names of the members of the Society of Notre Dame of Montreal, who sent Maisonneuve to found Ville Marie — Montreal — in 1642. The building behind houses the department of national health's quarantine service in Montreal.

C of C Meeting Is Postponed

A meeting of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce executive in the board room of Victoria and Grey Trust scheduled for last night, was postponed until Thursday, August 4 at 7.15 p.m.

To be discussed at next week's meeting will be the financial report, reports from the tourist committee, plans for the annual meeting of the chamber, plans for the winter carnival and a proposed meeting with representatives of area Chambers of Commerce.

Also to be included in the Thursday meeting will be the election of officers and directors to fill expected vacancies.

YMCA Directors Meet at Breakfast

Interim arrangements were made this morning for managing the Belleville Family YMCA at a breakfast meeting of the Y's executive committee.

The meeting was necessary because of the sudden death on July 28 of Y general secretary, Bert Messacar.

Program directors, Dave Hahn and Maureen Kelly, were to have begun their holidays this week and this would have left the facility without a professional staff for the rest of August.

The program directors will stay on for the rest of the week and on August 3, Jim Hughes, a physical education teacher at Moira Secondary School will supervise programming for two weeks while Mr. Hahn and Miss Kelly take their vacations. The YMCA will be closed for the last week of August.

The executive committee also decided this morning to hold a special board of directors meeting on August 18. Y president, John Hayman said this morning that he expected that a new general secretary would be announced at that time, if not before but that this was not certain.

The hiring committee set up to find a replacement for Mr. Messacar, who resigned in June for health reasons, has been interviewing prospectives but no decision has been reached.

Mr. Hayman said this morning that the Action Plan of the Y would be held up somewhat by the death of the general secretary because the new general secretary should participate in any revision to the Belleville facility.

"However, I am meeting with someone today about a new membership campaign."

Youth Employment Office In Business at Marmora

MARMORA (Special) — Marmora now has a Youth Employment Agency run by two local young people, Graham Bell and Marilyn Wells, with the help of Tom Adamchick of Renfrew, a summer employee of the Department of Education, Youth and Recreation Branch, now working in Marmora.

The organization is to provide short-term or temporary jobs to the youth of the village of Marmora and surrounding area. It is expected that there will be a demand for temporary help in the area. Such a program would provide employment for youth requiring pocket money, as well as providing a service to the community.

To defray costs, a registration fee of 25 cents is required of each youth registered. This token cost signifies the sincere intention of those registering. This money goes toward office costs, as the people employed in the agency are doing it on a voluntary basis with no remuneration. They expect to be able to provide a service in the following areas: babysitting, dog or cat sitting or walking, bookkeeping, car washing, dish washing, frog and worm picking, farm help, floor polishing, grass cutting, general clean-up men, gardening, mending, painting, snow removal in winter, shoe shiners, typing, temporary store or restaurant help, truck driving, window washing, etc. The office will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays and Saturdays from noon to 3 p.m.

The staff will be approaching as many businessmen and homeowners in the community as possible, but it is hoped that these people will also approach the agency.

This endeavor is a joint venture in which everyone's co-operation is necessary. The village council provided the use of an office in the town hall, and a phone — 472-2532. The Recreation Committee, by sponsoring Tom Adamchick's employment, has provided the initiative toward this project.

The agency's motto is, "If you will continue to be: "If you can invent the job, we can provide the student."

Parks Board Wants Ideas

What kind of facilities would city taxpayers like to see provided in the East Zwick's Island area where long range plans call for the development of a public park?

To find out public thinking about the park development, the city parks board has decided to invite comments and suggestions from residents who would use the area.

Preliminary concept sketches have been provided the parks board but before preparing development concept plans, consultants Johnson, Sustrenk, Weinstein and Associates would like to consider any ideas that private citizens might have.

As a preliminary to the East Zwick's park development, the city has been using the area east of the Bay Bridge Road as a sanitary land fill site for garbage disposal.

Now the area is all but filled and the city is making arrangements with Commercial Refuse Services for garbage disposal at a Sidney township site.

For many years a waterfront development has been envisaged for East Zwick's by the city parks board. Other possible developments call for a miniature golf course and provision of a swimming pool.

Yesterday parks board members discussed the provision of water and sewer services for the area's a normal park facilities such as washrooms and drinking fountains.

Board members agreed that if a swimming pool was provided at the park area, a daily water consumption of 15,300 gallons should be provided for.

Present plans call for sewage from the area being disposed by the Four Seasons Hotel now under construction in the same general area.

Offbeat Ball Game Scheduled

MILFORD (Staff) A unique baseball game sponsored by the South Marysburg Recreation Association will be played next week at Milford ball park.

A local team called The Mill Ponders is scheduled to go to bat against members of the Picton town police force and the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Prince Edward County ball fans are urged to attend this special event pitting the long arms of the law against the stubborn legs of the donkeys.

Dodgers' 'No-Hit' Backstop Beats Montreal-with Bat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jeff Torborg, who used to be a no-hit catcher in more ways than one, has shed his mask and revealed himself as a fence-buster.

Torborg, who caught Sandy Koufax' fourth no-hitter five years ago and handled Bill Singer's no-hit gem two weeks ago, poled his first home run since 1967 as Singer and the Los Angeles Dodgers whipped Montreal Expos 7-3 Thursday night.

The 28-year-old receiver, a .111 lifetime hitter, crashed a three-run homer in the fourth inning and blooped a run-scoring single in the seventh for the biggest offensive blops of his seven-year career with the Dodgers.

"After I hit that bloop single," he said, "my teammates said that I had moved their defence back after the homer and then tricked them by dropping one in."

Torborg's four-RBI night helped Singer breeze to his fifth consecutive victory for an 8-3 season mark. The hard-throwing right-hander, who bounced back from a spring hepatitis attack and fired a no-hitter against Philadelphia Phillies July 20, checked the Expos on six hits and struck out 10.

In other National League games, Cincinnati Reds defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 8-4; St. Louis Cardinals topped Atlanta Braves 4-3 and the Chicago Cubs trimmed Houston Astros 6-5.

Torborg keyed a four-run Los Angles burst in the fourth with a shot over the left field fence off Dan McGinn after singles by Ted Sizemore and Bill Russell. It was his seventh major league homer.

The home run and single gave him 19 RBI for the year and boosted his batting average 10 points to .227. He has batted .181 and .183 in the past two seasons as a part-time catcher.

Johnny Bench clubbed his 35th homer-high in the majors-for two Cincinnati runs; Tony Perez drove in two more with a single and his 81st homer and Lee May cracked a two-run single as the Reds beat southpaw Bob Veale to remain 12 games ahead of the second place Dodgers in the NL West.

The loss trimmed the Pirates' East Division lead over the idle New York Mets to one-half game.

Lou Brock slammed two bases-empty homers and Joe Torre hit a third, leading the Cardinals past Atlanta. Ronlds Jerry Reuss shut out the Braves until the ninth, when Cleto Boyer keyed him with a two - run homer.

Johnny Callison homered and Ricky Wilkens drove in his 36th and 37th runs of the season with a single-surpassing by one his total run-production of 1968-as the Cubs pasted the Astros behind Ferguson Jenkins.

Hargan Giving AL Nightmares

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Steve Hargan's pitching arm went to sleep earlier in the season but since his return from the minors two weeks ago, the rest of the American League has been having nightmares trying to hit the Cleveland Indian right-hander.

Thursday night, Hargan, a 6-foot-3, 180-pounder, made the Minnesota Twins his fastest victims, stopping them without a hit for 7 2-3 innings before winning 2-0 on a three-hitter.

In other league games, Kansas City Royals edged Detroit Tigers 3-2 in 10 innings, Milwaukee Brewers downed Washington Senators 6-2, and Oakland Athletics nipped Boston Red Sox 2-1.

Hargan, who had elbow surgery in 1968 and continued with his arm miseries in 1968, compiling a 5-14 mark, said he "felt great in spring training. But I didn't get much work. The lack of throwing hurt me and I lost everything I strived for in the spring."

Then, he pinched a nerve in his neck "which put my arm to sleep," Hargan said.

He was placed on the disabled list and then was sent to Wichita of the American Association for five weeks before his recall on July 16.

He responded with a 4-1 two-hit victory over Kansas City, beat Chicago White Sox 6-3, going six innings and shut out the Royals 3-0 on a five-hitter before Thursday night.

George Mitterwald, the Minnesota catcher, broke up Hargan's bid for a no-hitter with a bloop single in the eighth. "He hit a good pitch, a slider, low and away," Hargan said.

Leo Cardenas followed with another hit, and a wild pitch and intentional walk followed before Brant Alyea poked a two-run single before Hargan got the last out.

Hargan is 4-0 since his recall with three complete games and has lowered his ERA to 2.34. He has given up only five runs and 12 hits in the four starts.

Vada Pinson crashed a solo homer in the seventh which proved to be the Indians' winning margin after Cleveland had scored twice in the third.

Bob Oliver's one-out, run-scoring 10th inning single gave the Royals their victory over Detroit.

Norm Cash had a two-run homer for the Tigers in the fourth but Kansas City tied it in the seventh on Pat Kelly's run-scoring hit.

Denny Walton triggered a two-run fifth inning Milwaukee rally with a single and doubled home another run in the sixth, helping the Brewers over the Senators.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter gained his 15th victory of the season but needed relief help from Jim Grant in the seventh when the Red Sox threatened.

Hunter, 15-8, left with one out and two on and a Boston run in before Grant got Carl Yastrzemski on a fly ball and Tony Conigliaro on a foul pop.

Horsemen Finish Third

LONDON (Reuter) — Canada's Olympic show-jumping champions finished third with a weakened team in the Nation's Cup event at the Royal International Horse show at Wembley, Thursday night.

Their difficulties began when 29-year-old Moffat Dunlap incurred eight faults at the third fence and the treble.

Barbara Simpson, of Calgary also had a disappointing initial round with errors at the seventh fence and the cow. She also had eight faults.

Jim Day, a 24-year-old from Oakville rode Miss Simpson's Blac Jac for the first time competitively in two years. He achieved a clear round to put Canada back in the fight.

Jimmy Elder, of Aurora, Ont., Canada's captain marred his first round on Snowman when he took a pole off the oxer.

Canada finished the first round with 12 faults to finish third behind Britain with four faults and Italy with eight.

In the second round Dunlap had three more errors and Canada slipped away.

Chuvalo Meets Foreman

NEW YORK (CP) — "I don't predict knockouts," says George Chuvalo,

"There is no way for me to predict the future," says George Foreman.

Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight champion from Toronto, and Foreman meet next Tuesday in a 10-round heavyweight boxing bout at Madison Square Garden.

Although Chuvalo and Foreman were reluctant to make predictions, other fight figures were not so hesitant.

"Chuvalo will take everything out of Foreman after a few rounds," said Jerry Quarry, who Chuvalo knocked out in seven rounds in his last Garden appearance.

"I saw Foreman fight and one thing I know for sure, he can't take shots to the body-too good. He's not fast enough to avoid them so Chuvalo should have him ready for the kill after four or five rounds."

Yank Durham, manager of heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, took the opposite view.

"Foreman will bust him (Chuvalo) up and it'll be over after two, three rounds," said Durham.

"We've been looking at Foreman for a long time now and this kid is a natural fighter," Durham said.

Foreman, 21, has won 31 straight fights since turning pro about a year ago after winning the Olympic heavyweight title at Mexico City. Eighteen of his victories have been by knockouts.

If he can get by Chuvalo, he is considered a possible challenger for Frazier in six months to a year from now.

Chuvalo, at 32, has a six-fight victory streak going and says Foreman is running things to fight him at this stage of his career.

"He's pretty easy to hit, especially with a right hand," said the Canadian champion, who has 59 victories-31 by knockouts-18 losses and two draws in his career.

"The longer the fight goes the better it will be for me. Foreman has only gone 10 rounds twice and both times he was well spent in the closing rounds."

Chuvalo was then asked by reporters if he was predicting a knockout in the late rounds.

"I don't predict knockouts," said Chuvalo. "I leave that up to you guys. I hope you pick the right guy this time."

Chuvalo was referring to forecasts by New York sportswriters that he would lose to Quarry.

Foreman said that predicting fights is for retired boxers.

There is nothing to fighting but learning, Foreman said, and "once you learn all of that, you're going outside the ring and predicting like Dempsey and Tunney."

Defending Champion Hoping to 'Tripp' Opposition in Quinte Golf Festival

Gord Tripp is hoping for one of those golfing days when everything just seems to fall into place, this Sunday, when he attempts to defend the Bay of Quinte Golf Festival title which he won last year.

Looking to unseat the Trenton golfer from the number one spot will be 225 golfers from across the province, including competitors from Sudbury, Don Mills, North Halton and 35 other clubs.

"My game hasn't been too steady lately," claims the defending champion. "I shoot really well one day and then I have a bad round the next."

Tripp toured the course in regulation figures last year to win the event. "It would be nice to win it again," he says, "but whether you shoot a 70 or a 80, I think the most important thing is to have a good time."

The long Bay of Quinte course, which is always in top shape for the tournament drew some praise from last year's winner. "It's a good course because it forces you to use all your clubs — not just a driver and a wedge," says Tripp.

Tee-off time for the large field will run from Sunday morning until 1:30 in the afternoon.

Previous to the big main tournament, there will be mixed four-ball competition, Saturday, with golfers from 23 different clubs competing for first place honors.

Post entries will be accepted in both events.

Frank Beard Playing Golf 'By the Book'

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — If Frank Beard is getting a freeze from his fellow pros because of his controversial, revealing book on the golf tour, he's not letting it affect his sleep or his game.

"No, I'm not sorry I wrote it," the bespectacled, 31-year-old author said today. "I think much of the book was misconstrued and some taken out of context.

"I don't consider it . . . to trade the privacy of anybody. It's an honest report on the tour. . . .

Beard, defending champion in the $250,000 Westchester Classic here this weekend, is off to a good start with an opening round 68, just a stroke off the pace set by Australian Bruce Crampton, Larry Hinson, Tommy Jacobs, Hugh Royer and Brian Barnes, all tied at 67.

Canadians are well back in the field. In fact, George Knudson of Toronto was so far back after the first day—79—that he withdrew from the tournament.

Gary Bowerman of Toronto was also in at 78.

Top Canadian was Wilf Homenuick of Winnipeg. He had a 75.

Beard's book, entitled Pro-

Frank Beard on the Golf Tour, has stirred up some ripples in the tour ranks just as Jim Bouton's book on after-hours high jinx rocked baseball.

Some critics felt Beard told too much and cast unnecessary aspersions on some of golf's heroes, particularly Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player. Beard denies it.

"I haven't had any direct reaction," Beard said today. "I read some caustic remarks about the book by Jack Nicklaus. And Arnold Palmer hasn't said anything to me, but we were never especially close, anyhow. . . .

"Palmer and Nicklaus live in different worlds. They fly jet planes. They are rich and very busy. I don't blame them. Some people said I wrote the book out of spite because Jack and Arnie didn't treat me as an equal.

"It's true they don't treat me as equal, because we aren't equals. They have been much more successful than I. But I'm not harboring any spite."

The rich Westchester, with its $30,000 first prize, was without some of its big names going into today's second round.

Lee Trevino, the leading money winner, overslept and was disqualified. Ben Hogan, 58, his left knee swollen and throbbing, withdrew.

Nicklaus, Palmer and Player all shot 72, Bill Casper a 73.

Eskimos Look for Added Opening Punch

REGINA (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos, the team with the best defence in the Canadian Football League last year, hope to show a new ingredient when they meet Saskatchewan Roughriders tonight: scoring power.

Eskimos in 1969 had the second-feeblest offence in the CFL, exceeded only by Winnipeg Blue Bombers, the team they host for fourth place in the Western Football Conference, as three quarterbacks couldn't help them.

Now with two new quarterbacks, Rusty Clark and Don Trull, a new head coach in Ray Jauch and some sharp-looking pass receivers, the club wants to prove that a 25-21 exhibition win over Saskatchewan last week was deserved.

Jauch, assistant last year to the now-departed Neil Armstrong, has inherited a club that gave up only 4,402 yards in 1969 but moved the ball just 4,534 yards, going the ground route more than most teams.

"Throwing the ball is a lot easier than running it," Jauch said. "The reason why we're not running the ball more is that we have some excellent receivers."

"I think there's a good chance that Clark will start at quarterback, but it's not definite. Every time we've asked Clark to do something he's done it."

Jauch said he also is interested in a look at Gwen Cooper, a castoff from Toronto Argonauts who would be making his first appearance in an Eskimo uniform, although newcomer Sam Campbell is fighting for the same tight end spot.

Meanwhile, Saskatchewan Roughriders will be depending again on veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster who, despite a reported ailing throwing arm, passed sharply Tuesday night in

NFL Owners Have Different Views on Strike

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A scoreless fire existed today in the pro football contract dispute after the veteran players put the owners on the offensive with a coffin-corner kick.

National Football League veterans, almed to a man, refused to report to training camp Thursday after the owners hung out the welcome sign.

It thus appeared to be the owners' move next.

"The situation is more critical than people think," said Wellington Mara, president of New York Giants.

He said his team's scheduled exhibition with Green Bay Aug. 8 would probably be canceled if the situation isn't settled by this weekend.

When no veterans showed up at Cincinnati Bengals' camp Thursday, general manager Paul Brown closed shop. Apparently dismayed over the bitter, sometimes volatile contract war, Brown said it could mean the end of the 1970 season. "I will be in favor of tolling the season," said Brown, meaning to call it off.

Another owner, who asked to remain anonymous, was more optimistic.

"I really don't think we've given them enough time," he said. "Twenty-four hours just wasn't enough time for most players to pack their bags and get to camp.

Rob Lancaster specialist Larry DeGrow was hurt in the game and has been put on the injury list with a torn knee ligament.

Adaptable Alan Ford will take his spot tonight.

Coach Eagle Keys, who always means business when his team goes against the club that was his last employer, wants a close look at how newcomers Dave Deery and Nolan Bailey shape up at tight end.

The position went up for grabs after tough-blocking Jim Worden retired at the end of last season. Keys also would like to see more of backup quarterback Don Weiss, obtained from Winnipeg earlier this year in a trade.

The game, opening the regular season for Edmonton, begins at 8 p.m. CST and will be televised on the CTV west network.

Peter Thomas Conservative Party Chairman

LONDON (Reuters) — Peter Thomas, secretary for Wales in Prime Minister Edward Heath's cabinet and a political unknown, was appointed today chairman of the Conservative party.

The appointment, which came on Thomas's 50th birthday, surprised many political observers who had expected a better-known figure to be chosen.

But it was understood that Thomas was the prime minister's personal choice to succeed Anthony Barber, who Saturday was appointed chancellor of the exchequer.

Thomas held minor office in the last administration of Prime Minister Macmillan. He lost his seat in the Commons in 1966 and returned to represent another district in June's election.

Diplomats Kidnapped In Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (Reuters) — Two American and one Brazilian diplomat were kidnapped here today but one of the Americans managed to evade his captors.

United States embassy spokesman said Second Secretary Gordon Jones was kidnapped but escaped and that Daniel A. Mitrione is still missing, presumably held by members of the Tupamaro urban guerrilla movement.

The embassy said Mitrione is a public security expert employed by the U.S. government and was advising the Uruguayan government on police and internal security matters.

The interior ministry reported that Brazilian Consul-General Aloysio Mares Dias Gomide was kidnapped on his way to work.

confused initial reports here police reported that Mitrione had been released by his captors and that Jones was missing.

The kidnapping came 72 hours after the Tupamaros kidnapped a judge handling cases against their comrades. About 80 of them are in jail charged with crimes ranging from bank robbery to kidnapping and murder.

The diplomats were the first kidnapped in Uruguay despite similar kidnappings in other Latin American countries, especially Brazil and Guatemala.

The Tupamaros announced Thursday that kidnapped Judge Daniel Pereyra Manelli would be released after interrogation and trial by a revolutionary court.

The Tupamaros in the last year kidnapped a banker and released him after 72 days for a ransom and a state power company official who was released without ransom after five days.

The Tupamaros first operated among cane-cutters in northern Uruguay but quickly changed into an almost exclusively urban organization operating in the capital.

Tate Trial Witness Quizzed About Her Drug Experiences

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The defense, seeking to cast doubt on testimony by green-eyed Linda Kasabian, has begun questioning the chief prosecution witness on two topics: sex and drugs.

Defense counsel Paul Fitzgerald led off cross-examination late Thursday with questions about her use of hallucinogenic drugs and her past in group sex parties with Charles Manson and his hippie-style "family."

Mrs. Kasabian said she had taken LSD about 50 times and experimented with at least five other hallucinogenic drugs during a four-year period, saying: "My whole purpose in taking it was for God-realization."

She identified the drugs as peyote, morning glory seeds, psilocybin, hydrochloride, methaqualone, mescaline and pellocyphin.

Fitzgerald, representing defendant Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, began his questioning in the wake of Mrs. Kasabian's four-day account of how clan leader Manson, 42, ordered his followers in lofi actress Sharon Tate and six others.

As her direct testimony closed, the multi-pierced witness said Manson, already having ordered seven murders, told her to dial the lobes of an unnamed man with whom she had had a sexual relation. She said she thwarted the planned murder by knocking on a door in nearby Venice which she knew wasn't the intended victim's, and leaving when a stranger answered.

Fitzgerald suggested that her courtroom testimony may have been hallucinatory as a result of drugs.

Q. Has LSD altered your personality?

A. It stunned me parts of my self — yes. It has altered me to a certain extent.

Q. Have you ever told people as a result of your LSD experience you were under the impression the whole world was a dream?

A. I don't recall that.

Q. Did you ever become paranoic under LSD?

A. Possibly, I can't actually say. Possibly, I can't actually say.

Fitzgerald asked Mrs. Kasabian to elaborate on her earlier testimony about a group sex party at the "family's" home base, the Spahn movie ranch. She had said Manson ordered "everybody to make love to everybody."

She was asked how many persons engaged in sex acts with her during the session.

She replied: "I remember I made love with Leslie and Pat, the three of us together. And Sadie was there. And Sadie made love to me and then Clem was there and Clem made love to me."

Was she forced, or did she try to stop?

"No."

"How would you describe this experience?"

"It was a different experience."

"Did you enjoy it?"

"Yes, I did."

As Mrs. Kasabian spoke, the three women defendants giggled. During pauses in the testimony the three—Miss Krenwinkel, Leslie Van Houten, 20, and Susan Atkins, 21—spoke animatedly with Manson, who sat beside them. All are charged with murder-conspiracy, and the state says the women killed at Manson's command.

Hunt for Plane Ends

HALIFAX (CP) — The air-sea rescue centre here announced Thursday it has suspended the search for a Soviet aircraft missing since July 18 with 23 persons aboard.

A spokesman said 426,000 square miles have been covered in 13 days of searching.

The four-engine turbo-jet AN-22 disappeared on a mercy supply flight to earthquake-ravaged sections of Peru.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Pre-menstrual Fatness Explained

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: More than any of my friends, I suffer from nervousness and bloating about a week before my periods. I get so fat my clothes hardly fit. Then after my period I feel calm, and excess fat disappears. Can you explain, and also tell me what I can do? — Mrs. D.

Comment: I'll try to tell you what it is and what to do about it; but you can be sure I won't say, "Why worry about it? Why get so upset when you know it's only a part of woman's lot to put up, every month, with a natural phenomenon."

Too many of us doctors used to say something like that in the past, and do practically nothing to alleviate the discomforts. Now, we know that you are not imagining it when you say that your clothes don't fit.

This is due to retention of too much fluid in the tissues about a week before menstruation (in those who suffer pre-menstrual — or cyclic — tension). When the period is over, you do not lose fat, but all this excess fluid. The irritability and tension are produced not due to too much fluid (edema) in the brain.

What causes it all? A temporary upset in glandular system probably set off by imbalance in the sex hormones. As a result the pituitary, adrenal and thyroid glands "get out of whack."

What do? About a week before the expected period, start cut down on salt intake as this intensifies retention of fluids. Stay on a high protein diet and cut down on carbohydrates. Some women have hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) which if corrected at this time, and some, more nervous and panic-stricken.

Tell your doctor about your symptoms and he will likely prescribe a combination of hormones, diuretics (fluid removers) and tranquilizers. He might also do some tests to check on your thyroid. If it is low-functioning, he will prescribe thyroid extract to be taken regularly.

So you see, Mrs. D., there is much that can be done to help. Long gone is the day when the doctor said, "There is nothing to be for it. Cheer up! It's just part of being a woman — just like shaving is part of being a man."

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: A few months ago I had rectal bleeding. After an evaluation in my doctor's office he said he could see nothing wrong except my hemorrhoids.

But he did not rely on that diagnosis alone. He sent me into the hospital where I had a barium enema X-ray, a GI series, and a sigmoidoscopy.

He found nothing else wrong. I had my hemorrhoids removed and feel all right now. Have I got anything to worry about? The bleeding has stopped. — Mrs. C.

Comment: I would guess about everything necessary to make sure the bleeding was not due to anything more serious than hemorrhoids. Your short case-history is an excellent example of the proper way to study such a problem and not take the short cut (without complete examination) and sometimes overlook disease more serious than simple, bleeding hemorrhoids.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Every time I am preparing hamburger (ground beef) my children want to eat some raw. Is this harmful? — Mrs. S.

Comment: I don't recommend it — either for children or grownups. The reason? Greater chance for infestation with worms. It's difficult for me to convince some of my grown up friends who like their hamburger rare.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Hippie Costume Misused

In one of G. K. Chesterton's delightful Father Brown stories, a crime is successfully committed by a waiter in an exclusive private club — because the guests and the waiters are both dressed in tuxedos, and cannot be told apart except by their actions and attitudes.

Chesterton is making the point that people who dress the same are looked upon the same, until they begin to function. I thought of this story in relation to the hippie costume that is so popular among the young today.

The hippie costume has been a blessing to a whole generation of misfits, losers and rotten eggs. For the first time they are now able to disguise themselves as hippies, permitting the hippie movement to take the blame (in the public eye) for all their neurotic misconduct.

Until the adoption of this regulation uniform a few years ago, the losers had nothing to identify with and no place to hide. They were forced to take individual responsibility for their behavior, and were not condemned as part of a youth bloc.

Now, by the simple subterfuge of adorning themselves with a few beads or bells, they can be their old luckless selves and pass the ooos along to the movement they pretend to belong to.

The ranks of the true flower-children have become so infiltrated by these "plastic hippies" that I doubt if more than 50 per cent of the youth wearing these costumes have even the remotest conception of the original principles that animated the movement. Or care at all.

Simply by masquerading as hippies, they feel they can get away with the most outrageous conduct, in violation of all genuine hippie beliefs — knowing that the straight public will not discriminate between them and the real thing and always mistakes mere form for substance.

This is why the movement has to die before very long. In a year or two, only subteen-agers will still be affecting the costume, just as they pick up the discarded jargon of the adolescents a couple of years later. The older youths remaining in costume will be the straight and square hoodlums, sadists, oddballs, paranoids and perverts.

But, cultural lag being what it is, the public will continue to condemn something it calls the "hippie movement" long after its core has disintegrated. For it offers an easy and obvious target, a safe means of discharging aggression and frustration and anxiety and hate. In different ways the movement has not only been a boon to the misfits, it has been a blessing to the perplexed public, who otherwise might have been forced to look inward for the causes of our troubles.

Today's natives are firm in their views, gentle in their statements, and apt to follow instincts instead of rules.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Creative avenues might new ideas are most favored. Relations with loved ones come under stress from your tendency to blurt out irrelevant statements.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your good fortune may be taken up for games of quibbling; let some other ideas by the stubborn-cocks. Meditation opens a broad gateway into family and nearby problems.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The closer the relationship, the sharper the differences. Use care and courtesy, while driving or when you have your hands full. Keep moving.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your expansive spirit can become expensive — somebody is certain to take you up on any suggestion and turn it into a form you hadn't anticipated.

B.C. Tugboat Officers Union Struggles to Pay Heavy Fines

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Merchant Service Guild, which represents most British Columbia's tugboats, is struggling to raise funds to pay heavy fines resulting from a strike earlier this year.

The guild was fined a total of $60,000, of which one fine of $5,000 was paid shortly after the settlement of the 3½-month-old coast-wide strike that ended June 11.

The guild won an extension of the deadline to pay the fines to Aug. 30 after its lawyer, Ted McTaggart, argued that the union's financial position was critical and that it would need additional time to pay the penalties.

Under the guild's by-laws, the fines had to be paid from the union's general funds. It now will have to make the payment on schedule even if a ruling from the B.C. Court of Appeals is delayed.

In this case, a change of the Supreme Court judgment would result in a return of the money to the 1,200-member guild which consists of captains, mates and engineers in charge of the operation of the tugboats.

Members of the guild, who handle B.C.'s tugboat fleet of 400 vessels of various sizes, $125,000,000—are being asked to vote on the question of assessing each member an "unallocated amount to meet any shortages of cash to pay the fines."

Exact wording of the ballot question was not disclosed and a guild spokesman said results would not be made public.

The guild, which would not reveal its assets, could try to borrow money if it was short to pay the fines, or it could assess the membership, or do both.

Fines—rates were two of $25,000 and two of $5,000 each—all related to picketing in defiance of court injunctions.

Asked if the guild had considered declaring bankruptcy if it couldn't pay the fines, the spokesman pointed out that such a step would make the contract between the owners and the guild invalid because one of the parties to the agreement would disappear.

It was a costly strike all round.

But the guild, which was less concerned with wage increases than safety factors, got what it was originally after.

Workers Union.

The guild won a wage increase of 39 per cent from Oct. 1, 1969, a further 16 per cent from Oct. 1, 1970, and a final six per cent Dec. 1, 1971. The three-year pact expires Sept. 30, 1972.

Before the increases, a crewman earned an average of $727 a month while a first mate made $1,000 a month, a spokesman said.

And before the new contract, tugboat men often worked 14, 16, 20 and 24 hours a day—and that is mainly what the fight was all about.

The strike resulted in federal legislation establishing a commission that provide the men with at least six consecutive hours of rest a day, plus two more rest hours, making the maximum work day of 18 hours.

The captains now are allowed to tie up the tugboats for the rest periods if sufficient personnel are not available.

The new regulations forbid the use of small tugs, making larger crews necessary to man the bigger tugboats, and they provide for better and safer design of these vessels.

Ottawa Is Skeptical of New Uranium Process

OTTAWA (CP) — South Africa's claim to a new, competitive way of producing enriched uranium, and an accompanying offer to share with other countries, is being treated with a certain amount of skepticism here.

Scientific and diplomatic sources have said that while Canada is unlikely to make any move to pursue the South African "offer," partly because the way it was made suggested to Canadian authorities that it was less-than-seriously meant.

International "posturing," was the laconic comment of one diplomat.

Scientists were even more doubtful. They said that similar claims by other countries—most recently by Japan—failed to produce any concrete evidence that enriched uranium can be turned out for less than the hugely-expensive gas diffusion process used by the United States.

Enriched uranium is the fuel used in nuclear power plants. In the U.S., Canada uses natural uranium, and the Canadian government within the last year has publicly renewed its commitment to this type of nuclear power station.

Nevertheless, enriched uranium processes have evoked some interest here. The British, German and Dutch joint effort to develop a gas centrifuge system for producing enriched uranium is being closely watched by Canada.

But the kind of information sought and obtained from these countries probably would not be forthcoming from South Africa.

John Vorster, the South African prime minister, made it plain in his June 20 announcement of the new process that no details would be allowed to leak out.

Any collaboration to exploit the process would be subject to an agreement "safeguarding our interests," he said.

Mr. Vorster's announcement was the first hint Canadian officials had that South African scientists were seriously working on uranium enrichment. They questioned the validity of the claims because they were made first by a politician rather than a scientist.

In addition, the collaboration offer which was contained in Mr. Vorster's announcement was conveyed to governments of non-communist countries in diplomatic notes. But the approach was never carried further.

Diplomatic sources said that, if South Africa was seriously interested in collaborating with Canada on development, a specific suggestion of talks would have been put forward as a follow-up. So far, no such direct approach has taken place.

Officials of the Canadian position is that the South African note and Mr. Vorster's statement are being studied, but that too little information is available to assess the claim of an economically-competitive gas system.

Even the British-German-Dutch gas centrifuge system, hailed initially as economically competitive, has not proven to be so in practice.
